Patience please — hospital awaiting review

Michelle Daw
JOURNALIST

ARDROSSAN Community Hospital is awaiting a state government review about its future.

The review into accident and emergency and acute care services at the hospital by consultant Michelle Smith is expected to recommend a sustainable model for supplying on-call health services in Ardrossan.

Ms Smith is expected to submit the review to Health and Wellbeing Minister Chris Picton later this week.

A spokesperson for SA Health said the department partners with a number of private hospitals to deliver safe, high-quality care.

"A review is currently underway with the Ardrossan Community Hospital and we will continue to work in partnership to ensure the best possible health services are provided to the Yorke Peninsula community," the spokesperson said.

More than 160 people attended a public information session held to provide an update regarding the delivery of services and planning for the future at the Soldiers Memorial Hall on Sunday, May 21.

Board chairperson Margaret Tomsen said although she could not provide any details about what the review might recommend, it was likely to propose a public/private operating model for the hospital.

The hospital had received some funding from the state government for the accident and emergency service.

"We have been haemorrhaging money from this section for many years," she said.

Mrs Tomsen said the board and staff were doing all they could to ensure the future of the hospital and its aged care residential service, the Ardrossan Community Hostel.

Currently, the staff work with local doctors and SA Health's Virtual Care Service to provide 24-hour medical coverage but Mrs Tomsen stressed it was not intended telehealth would replace the service of local doctors.

She pointed out in February 2023, the hostel was awarded four stars by the Aged Care Standards and Accreditation Agency.

She described this as a "great achievement", given only 54 aged care homes from a total of 2200 throughout Australia were granted the highest rating of five stars.

Chief executive officer Narita Stone called on local community members to do all they could to support the hospital.

"We are not closing," she said. "We are here to do whatever we can to keep our hospital and aged care going."

Need for service

MOONTA Football Club is to be commended for opening its club to serve meals to the community from Thursday to Sunday nights (YPCT 16-5-23).

With the hotels being restricted in their food availability and Cafe Capella's suffering a major fire which stopped their meal output, it severely restricted the places you could have an entertaining night out.

The Port Hughes Tavern is open and provides an excellent menu and is under constant pressure to accommodate the many restaurant attendances.

On a negative aspect, Moonta Bay appears not to have picked up from the Covid-19 pandemic where they had facilities, which prior to the pandemic, thrived with the patronage experienced.

I can remember years ago the young couple who leased the Seagate Hotel/Motel provided an excellent menu as well as having local entertainment.

You could bring in your catch of fish and with a minimum payment they would cook it for you and serve it. They also provided long glasses of beer which were also very popular.

Moonta, Moonta Bay and Port Hughes are currently experiencing a significant increase in permanent residency.

Businesses which are prepared to capture the trade offered by this increased residency will do very well financially.

Only wish I was younger to take up the challenge.

Not a nice look

ALONG the seafront of Wallaroo, there are many part-completed villas, which now look to be abandoned. Next to them is a large dump of builders' rubbish.

This is top-quality land with sea views, and should have been sold to people who would have built top class homes, not cheap villas.

What is the council's position regarding the site?

Is another builder going to continue to finish this project, will this site remain an eyesore or will they demolish it?

What's happening in Wallaroo?
First the swimming enclosure debacle, now this.

Support The Salvos

FOR many years as part of my work, I liaised with Salvation Army workers.

Small personal tragedies and huge community catastrophies can strike anyone at any time, often with no warning.

And for many people, there is no ability or no time to cushion themselves against impending disaster.

One of the organisations people turn to when fate, to misquote the late P. G. Wodehouse, sneaks up and whacks them with a loaded sock, are The Salvos.

Always there with help ranging from a cup of tea and a kind word to the provision of life-changing practical support, in a perfect world they would not be needed.

But alas, our world is far from perfect and for those whose lives have been turned upside down and those who struggle against seemingly overwhelming odds, the knowledge they are there is indeed a lifeline.

So of course, I have written this to urge everyone who can do so to support the annual Red Shield Appeal.

Who knows, one day you, or someone you love, may be grateful to look and see those distinctive uniforms and know help has come.

Festival thanks

THE 26th festival is over, the sun didn't always shine but the show went on regardless as we welcomed all the visitors to Australia's Little Cornwall and celebrated our unique Cornish heritage, traditions and culture.

Celebrating our 50th year is a testament to the vision of the initial organising committee in 1973 who saw the opportunity to commemorate our Cornish ancestors who travelled across the world in the 1800s to make their home here.

This festival gave us the opportunity to continue to keep alive the traditions which are such an integral part of our community and engage the younger generations who I hope will carry on this important legacy for our community into the future.

Thank you to all the volunteers, to every member of the Kernewek Lowender Committee, admin officer Dianne McDowell, finance officer Gabriella Jackman, May Queen Chloe Paddick, May Princess Georgie-Lou McCracken and the staff and students from all our local schools.

All that you contributed was very much appreciated.

I also extend thanks to our major partners, Copper Coast Council and the South Australian Tourism Commission, and other sponsors who generously supported our program of events.

Our annual general meeting will be held in October and I welcome anyone who would like to assist with the 2025 festival to join the committee.

The future of our festival relies on the support of our community and volunteers so this is your opportunity to step up and become involved rather than sitting back and criticising how things are done.

I hope everyone experienced the Cornish Happiness that was on offer!

Kernewek Lowender president

OUR VIEW

A damp festival

THERE'S no way around it, the weather was not ideal for the main celebrations of this year's Kernewek Lowender Copper Coast Cornish Festival.

Overall, it was a wonderful event and, with about 30,000 people attending, I think it can be viewed as a success.

The small but dedicated committee did a brilliant job coordinating the event, and groups and individuals who hosted associated events should also be commended.

Naturally, the rain, especially on Friday, did put a dampener on proceedings and made things difficult for organisers.

I've seen a lot of comments on social media criticising the decision to continue the official opening before letting the school students start dancing.

Unfortunately, there were changes to the schedule and a lack of communication, which meant some students missed out.

I imagine it was a difficult call to make, and no one could have completely predicted the weather.

I also imagine I may well be alone in my views, which I don't mind.

But, it's one thing to bravely call out wrongs, perceived or real, on social media and another to actually speak to organisers.

Social media can be an echo chamber of our own thoughts and beliefs, but what is actually achieved by stepping on your digital soap box and complaining?

The best way to address concerns is to be involved in future planning and join the committee.

Everyone has a busy life and different priorities, I do understand that, but the only way to change something you're unhappy with – is to be involved.

Every other week I feel as if I'm writing about the wonderful volunteers we have and how we need more people putting their hands up to help.

The Kernewek Lowender committee meets later this year, it would be great to see some new faces who have been inspired to join.

IT'S NOT GOOD ENOUGH

Union slams the 'lack of urgency' on hospital security

Michelle Daw
JOURNALIST

THE Australian Nursing and Midwifery Foundation has slammed the state government and Yorke and Northern Local Health Network for its lack of urgency in responding to security concerns at Wallaroo Hospital.

The ANMF SA branch is calling for 24/7 restraint-trained guards to be employed at Wallaroo and Port Pirie hospitals, following recent "code black" incidents.

“It is completely unacceptable nurses, midwives, healthcare professionals and patients and visitors have been left vulnerable to violent and aggressive attacks for too long.”

– Associate Professor Elizabeth Dabars, ANMF SA branch chief executive

Police had to taser a man four times when he smashed through two sets of entry doors at Wallaroo Hospital and then attacked the back of an ambulance on February 14.

A police patrol was on site at the time after dealing with an aggressive, handcuffed patient who required sedation and they confronted the man who had smashed into the hospital.

When asked what was being done

NOT GOOD ENOUGH... Elizabeth Dabars of the Australian Nursing and Midwifery Foundation says the union will step up its campaign for better security at Wallaroo Hospital.

to address security concerns, a spokesperson for SA Health and YNLHN said a review had been completed and a working party formed, which would have input from front-line and management staff.

The working party will review security data and provide advice on potential improvements additional to those implemented earlier this year.

The spokesperson said security cameras at Wallaroo Hospital had been adjusted to cover all outdoor areas and strong, temporary doors were installed hours after the code black incident in February, along with other measures.

“We are considering all perspectives regarding restraint-trained security guards before making a decision on this matter,” she said.

“While we will share high level findings and actions on its completion, it would be inappropriate to share full details of the hospital’s security processes with the public.

“There have been three incidents since February 14 this year when staff reported some form of aggressive behaviour from consumers.

“No staff were harmed during any of these incidents.”

ANMF SA branch chief executive Associate Professor Elizabeth Dabars said the union had not received any formal correspondence or commitment from the YNLHN about its security review.

“It is completely unacceptable nurses, midwives, healthcare professionals and patients and visitors have been left vulnerable to violent and aggressive attacks for too long,” she said.

“There are very regular routine police call outs for various issues — for example, searching patients for weapons or dangerous objects, escorting abusive people off site.

“All health workers are entitled to a safe workplace where any incident of violence or aggression is taken seriously by management and executives.”

A petition launched by ANMF in early March as part of its campaign for security guards to be employed at the two hospitals has since collected more than 1863 signatures.

“We are working with our members to determine what measures we will take in the next stage of our campaign, expected to be launched in the coming weeks,” Ms Dabars said.

The online petition can be signed at anmfsa.org.au/safetyforstaff.

STRUGGLE... Kate Williams, of Wallaroo, with daughter Lilah Errington, said she was surprised at the lack of change facilities locally, in public toilets and businesses, since becoming a mum and often changed Lilah's nappy in the boot of her car.

Focusing on family-friendly facilities

Jess Liddy
JOURNALIST

FINDING adequate baby change facilities when out and about can be an extra pain in the backside for parents.

Baby change facilities can be few and far between and while council websites can help to locate public toilets, some amenities don't provide change tables and, in particular, options for both parents to comfortably change their child in private.

Mum-of-two Melissa Angus, of Wallaroo, said she rarely ventured out when her children were babies because the lack of changing facilities put her off.

"Locally, there's either no change table or it is always located in the female toilets," she said.

"I don't ever remember a time my husband Cade mentioned there being a change facility in male toilets.

"I think having more family-friendly facilities would encourage more mums, especially new mums, to go out more having the comfort of knowing there is a safe space to change their babies.

"Personally, we would always have to change nappies in the car or in the pram around a corner if we couldn't find a suitable option."

Copper Coast Council director infrastructure services Tim Neumann said it would be great to have dedicated parent rooms to provide more space and resources for parents and caregivers.

"We do have two (parent rooms) located at the Ascot Theatre and Copper Coast Visitor Information Centre in Kadina and we are investigating other areas similar to this in more private locations which are less likely to be vandalised," Mr Neumann said.

"While adding change tables to make the accessible toilet blocks more versatile in their use is a budget-friendly way for councils to aid families, it does not cater for simple, yet sometimes essential, requirements like microwaves, private feeding rooms and comfortable furnishings."

CCC provides about two to three public change facilities in each of Kadina, Moonta, Wallaroo and surrounding suburbs.

Mr Neumann said another 11 change tables would be installed in unisex accessible bathrooms within the next few weeks.

"The majority of our public changing facilities are located in our accessible toilet blocks, allowing for a larger unisex accessible family," he said.

"We always strive to provide enough facilities and services in our area to cater for our community and as our area continues to grow, we will expand on what we offer as best we can.

"We continue to upgrade our toilet facilities, with 13 public toilet blocks upgraded in the past six financial years — each including a public change facility."

BWC is looking to improve amenities

Most public buildings in the Barunga West Council area have change facilities, while toilet blocks do not.

CEO Maree Wauchope said council was looking at how this could be improved.

"The one amenity building we have with a changeroom table is a unisex toilet which has recently been built," Ms Wauchope said.

"The amenity facilities we have planned as part of the new tourism and events facility at the Port Broughton foreshore are unisex.

"There can always be improvements to our facilities, and this is something we look to address.

"I strongly believe a well-planned amenity building can cater for parents — in larger retail centres a dedicated parent room may be warranted, and we also encourage businesses to cater for the needs of their customers where it is practical to do so."

The Australian Government's Public Toilet Map app provides locations of toilets and change facilities nation wide.

Hospital services check given to public

MEMBER for Narungga Fraser Ellis said the decision by the state government to invest in Keith Hospital, which was formerly a community-run facility, was a positive sign for the future of Ardrossan Community Hospital as it showed the government was supportive of regional hospitals.

“What happened at Keith shows that the state government might step in and do more here,” he said.

Hospital finance committee chairperson Craig Farrow said the hospital had strong building and land assets worth $8 million but “the challenge has always been operating performance” and the hospital was expected to report a loss for 2022-23.

“The board recognises the issues and is working proactively to improve the situation,” he said.

“There is no one single action that will address all the issues.”

Mr Farrow said the cost of employing agency nursing staff to make up for the lack of permanent staff was a major draw on the budget.

Director of nursing Georgina Drewery said the hospital accepted both public and private patients and was working closely with agencies including Medstar, the Royal Flying Doctor Service and the operators of the local general practice, Medical HQ, to maintain its services.

Keeping mental health on the forefront

SOS Copper Coast SPN has welcomed an independent review into South Australia’s mental health laws.

The South Australian Law Reform Institute, based at the University of Adelaide, recently made 61 recommendations for reforms to improve mental health laws in the state.

The review also made 11 suggestions regarding key issues recurring throughout consultation that fell outside the review’s formal terms of reference.

Key recommendations include promoting Aboriginal mental health and implementing culturally responsive and appropriate services, addressing the complex intersection between mental health and the use of illicit drugs and/or alcohol, updating language to reflect rights-based and modern practice, increase the relevance of laws to children, adolescents and older persons; and safeguarding the decision-making capacity of consumers to name a few.

SOS Copper Coast SPN secretary Gerry Guerin said SOS Copper Coast advocated for those who were not okay and offered ideas of pathways available for assistance.

“If this legislation manages to increase the relevance of laws (mental health), our community will be well served,” Mr Guerin said.

“Wherever people are, having someone prepared to connect, listen to their story, trusting, understanding, respecting their experience — meeting them where they are at and responding in real time to support them is the starting point.

“I agree with the Health and Wellbeing Minister’s view that we need to get the balance right for our mental health laws — ensuring we prioritise wellbeing and rights of consumers, and protection and appropriate treatment which aligns with our position.”

As part of this review,

SALRI will consult with relevant parties including experts, persons with lived experience of mental illness, carers and interested groups.

A review of the Mental Health Act is required every five years.

For more information, to view the recommendations, or to have your say go to yoursay.sa.gov.au/mental-health-act-review.

RAA addresses elephant in the room for National Road Safety Week

RAA launched a week-long campaign across the state promoting the Fatal 5 causes of road trauma as part of National Road Safety Week, May 14 to 21.

Five inflatable elephants appeared at prominent locations across South Australia, each representing one of the Fatal 5 – Distraction (including mobile phones), Speed, Dangerous road users, Not wearing a seatbelt, and Driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

The “Speeding” elephant was displayed during the Kernewek Lowender Cavalcade Fun Fair at Kadina oval on Sunday, May 21.

It was accompanied with a message about the dangers of unsafe road use, with cavalcade attendees informed that more than 7500 drivers had been detected speeding in SAPOL’s Yorke Mid North Local Service Area in 2022.

RAA senior manager of road safety Charles Mountain said he hoped the elephants would prompt conversations about safer driving.

“We know to influence change, we must be brave enough to talk about it – RAA wants people to address the ‘elephant in the room’,” Mr Mountain said.

“Everyone knows someone who might check their phone while driving, creep over the speed limit or be guilty of one of the Fatal 5.

“We want people to understand any of these behaviours dramatically increase the risk of a crash.

“With the 2023 road toll spiralling, it’s time to ask ourselves if we’ve been complacent when sharing the road with others lately, and to realise just how the tragic consequences of this behaviour can be.

“That’s the elephant in the room.”

SPEEDING... A five-metre tall, colourful inflatable elephant saddled with speeding was a staple at the Cavalcade Fun Fair event in Kadina on Sunday, May 20.

Increased support for regional crime victims

COMPENSATION will be easier to find for victims of crime living in regional South Australia.

Changes to the rules for victims of crime applying for compensation amended by the state government have come into effect, making the certification of documents easier for those in regional and remote areas.

Previously, when victims of crime applied for compensation, they needed to provide certified copies of two forms of photo identification, which involves finding a legal practitioner or Justice of the Peace to certify the documents.

The government has updated this to allow police officers to certify the documents and only one of the two forms of ID will now need to be a photographic ID.

“For those of us living in a metropolitan area, it’s often easier to find a JP or a legal practitioner,” Attorney-General Kyam Maher said.

“However, for people in regional and remote South Australia, it can be quite a challenging task.

“We firmly believe the process for applying for compensation should be as simple as possible, sparing victims any further or unnecessary stress or trauma.

“These changes will make it far easier for people in regional areas to carry out this task.”

Commissioner for Victims’ Rights Bronwyn Killmier said people who have been victims of crime needed fewer barriers, not more.

“I’m pleased to see the government acting on an issue which has placed an unnecessary burden on victims of crime living in regional and remote areas,” she said.

“I’m aware of numerous cases where people have been forced to embark on round trips of 80 kilometres or more, simply to get certified copies of the documents required to apply for compensation.”

STAYING SAFE... Toby Papps plays with retired greyhound Max on the beach at Fisherman Bay. The Papps family had erected a fenced enclosure at the rear of their property to keep Max safe, and are awaiting more information about fencing requirements from Barunga West Council.

Michelle Daw
JOURNALIST

BARUNGA West Council appears to have backed down on plans to immediately tackle the issue of unauthorised fences around homes at Fisherman Bay.

Director of planning and regulatory services Trevor White had previously said property owners who erected fences without development authorisation would receive enforcement notices to remove the fence in the “near future”.

However, on Friday, May 19 a council spokesperson said staff would not speak to people about their “specific fencing issues” until after an information sheet was sent with rate notices in July.

The spokesperson said information about the compulsory requirements for fencing at Fisherman Bay was included in a community update in October as well as a community engagement program and survey which started in December.

However, the description of fencing in the community engagement survey described tubular style fencing only as an “option” rather than an enforceable planning regulation.

Fencing would only be permitted on side and rear allotment boundaries, with no fencing past the building line of the dwelling setback the farthest from the front or seaward boundary.

Fences would not be permitted on the front boundary of allotments facing the sea.

Respondents to the survey were almost evenly split on the option for fencing permissions, with 48 per cent partially or completely agreeing and 52 per cent disagreeing.

Those who agreed cited the need to create privacy and stop people walking in between homes to access the beach and to provide security for their children and pets.

Those who disagreed said 1.2 metres was not high enough to provide protection against large and agile dogs and the proposal to prevent fencing of front yards meant these areas would be used as parking spaces by others.

A survey respondent against fencing wrote that Fisherman Bay was a shack community, not a residential township and fences would destroy the ambience.

Another who answered “no” said changes to what could be done with fences should have been aired prior to development approval or at least before settlement.

“Doing so now affects property values and what many of us have planned to do with our properties,” the respondent wrote.

Safety concern for dog owners

FISHERMAN Bay shackowner of 10 years Michael Papps believes fencing should be allowed at the settlement.

However, he said he was disappointed as he had been repeatedly knocked back by Fisherman Bay Management for putting up any permanent or semi-permanent fencing, even though there had been plenty around the bay in previous years.

“We used to have some chicken wire we put up with star-droppers, to comply with the council’s dog regulations to restrain our dog, and to have an area for young kids to stay within,” Mr Papps said.

“During this time, our dog was attacked three times by other dogs coming to our shack.

“One time (was) in front of the front porch, with two young, terrified children on the porch, watching their old dog being attacked.”

Mr Papps said once his family had freehold of the property, they worked with their neighbours on an agreed form of fencing and installed a Colorbond fence between the two shacks that extends from the front of the buildings.

The neighbours on the other side did not want a boundary fence, so the Pappses only put a chain fence from the back corner of the shack to the shed to create a safe space for their dog.

“We have never seen the council enforcing its current dog rules in the bay, so a safe space for our big, goofy, retired grey(hound) is very important to us,” he said.

It was rainy and gloomy but... Cornish spirit shines bright for festival

Patrick Goldsmith
REPORT BY

AN estimated 30,000 people attended this year's Kernewek Lowender Copper Coast Cornish Festival, held Monday to Sunday, May 15 to 21.

Locals and visitors alike enjoyed events including pasty baking, art shows and concerts, as well as language and historical lessons, light shows and a blessing of the waters.

Bigger events such as the Fer Kernewek in Moonta on Friday and the Classic Cavalcade of Cars and Motorcycles on Sunday attracted thousands of people.

Kernewek Lowender president Lynn Spurling said while it was disappointing Friday and Saturday were beset by rain, the festival atmosphere kept everyone's spirits high.

"I think everyone who was here really enjoyed the experience and everything we had on offer as we celebrated our 50th year, despite the rain," she said.

"It was great to see once again we could host such a wonderful festival event which continues to showcase all we have to offer."

The 2021 festival attracted just more than 20,000 people, as the community dealt with the ongoing effects of the Covid-19 pandemic, while a whopping 40,000 people came along in 2019.

Mrs Spurling said people enjoyed the variety of experiences on offer.

"All of our associated events, concerts and lessons were so well attended; the pasty making, Cornish lessons, band performances, they all had full capacity which was great," she said.

"Probably it was just on the Friday and Saturday, the weather kept people away from the main events which were outside, but we couldn't do anything about that.

"But all the kids involved in the dancing loved it and they didn't care about the rain at all, I'd say."

Her Excellency the Honourable Frances Adamson AC, Governor of South Australia, officially opened the event on Friday and recounted her connections to Cornwall.

Joining Her Excellency in the official party were her husband Mr Rod Buntin, Emily Bourke MLC, Mrs Spurling, Copper Coast Council mayor Roslyn Talbot, May Queen Chloe Paddick and May Princess Georgie McCracken.

"We have received a warm welcome and experienced the sense of Cornish pride and community," Her Excellency said.

"Every two years, the festival has been held throughout Moonta, Wallaroo, and Kadina.

"I am sure the original committee would never have envisaged the celebrations would grow in the way they have; or that, over its 50-year history, the festival would bring well over one million people to explore the region.

"No other festival in the world offers such diverse, authentic Cornish and mining-related activities in an area steeped in history, heritage and culture."

TRADITIONAL TREATS... Her Excellency the Honourable Frances Adamson AC, Governor of South Australia, with Copper Coast Council mayor Roslyn Talbot after they completed the pasty making competition at Moonta on Friday, May 19.

Inroads to protect Port Hughes coast

Fin Hansen
REPORT BY

EROSION along the Port Hughes Coastal Trail will be studied by an environmental consultant.

Copper Coast Council received $15,000 from the Coast Protection Board for the study, which aims to identify a solution to prevent further erosion to 1.2 kilometre of cliff face.

This is one of three local projects to receive funding, with Yorke Peninsula Council also landing $198,000 to repair Stansbury's seawall along with a $5750 grant for Barunga West Council for a Tickera Foreshore Rehabilitation Project.

Port Hughes resident Graham Fleet said erosion had been threatening the coastal trail, used by walkers, runners and cyclists, for as long as he could remember.

"My wife sent photos of the damage to a former (council) CEO 10 years ago and nothing eventuated," Mr Fleet said.

"When it rains, water runoff has a serious effect on some parts of the walkway.

"We need a solution that ensures water doesn't keep eroding the cliff so we can preserve the face.

"If something isn't done there will be much bigger problems down the track."

Council CEO Russell Peate said water runoff, combined with wave and inundation, had contributed to the cliff damage.

"We're likely to use an experienced environmental consultant whom we've used before to come up with a practical and achievable plan," Mr Peate said.

Mayor Roslyn Talbot said, once a coastal protection plan was identified, council would seek funding, complemented by a council contribution, for the works.

"If we don't protect the cliff top, it will continue to erode and parts of the coastal trail will also be affected," Mrs Talbot said.

"Many people use the trail and we want to preserve it for the future."

VITAL STEP... Copper Coast Council CEO Russell Peate and Port Hughes resident Graham Fleet hope $15,000 in state funding will help to identify a solution for an eroding Port Hughes cliff face.

BWC considering varied rate rises

Michelle Daw
JOURNALIST

A RANGE of rate rises between 8.6 per cent and 10.2 per cent are being considered by Barunga West Council to increase its overall rate revenue.

Elected members were presented with three options for 2023-24 rates at a public information session on Tuesday, May 16.

The options feature a range of increases for different property types, including residential, commercial, industrial, primary production and vacant land, and would increase total rate revenue by either 10.2 per cent, 8.6 per cent, or 8.9 per cent.

CEO Maree Wauchope said she recommended council adopt a total rise of 8.6 per cent, which would increase rate revenue in 2023-24 to $5.286 million.

This overall increase was capped to reflect the rise in the consumer price index.

Under the 8.6 per cent option, residential rates would increase by 5.2 per cent, commercial rates by 2.3 per cent and primary production by 10.5 per cent.

Figures from the Office of the Valuer-General show residential and primary production properties in the BWC area are expected to increase in value by an average of 12.5 per cent in 2023-24 while all classes of commercial and industrial land were expected to increase by 7.5 per cent.

Ms Wauchope said the greater proposed increase in rates for primary production properties reflected council's expenditure on road maintenance in rural areas.

"We spend $1.7m a year on unsealed roads, which are mainly used by farmers and we do about 37 kilometres a year," she said.

The preferred option also includes a 19.8 per cent increase in rates for vacant land.

"We want to encourage and stimulate development of these blocks and stop land banking," she said.

The proposed rate increases align with BWC's Long Term Financial Plan, which aims to ensure council's financial sustainability, bring its assets up to standard, and reach an operating surplus by 2028.

Ms Wauchope pointed out BWC's fixed charges (base amount charged to all properties) were less than those charged by neighbouring councils and BWC did not charge a separate waste collection fee.

However, she said council had to budget for many cost increases in the coming financial year.

These include an extra $50,000 for fuel, $40,000 for electricity, and $54,000 in finance costs.

Total salaries will also go up by 5.7 per cent as a result of enterprise bargaining.

Federal Assistance Grants will decline by $20,000 due to the growth in the capital value of properties in the BWC area but council will continue to seek other grant funding.

Ms Wauchope said elected members could consider standardising the grants paid by council to progress associations within the BWC area.

These varied widely, with the Mundooro Progress Association receiving only $1000 compared with the $6500 given to the Bute Progress Association.

Council will continue to discuss the proposed rate increases at its next council meeting on Tuesday, June 13, and Ms Wauchope said she was aiming to finalise a draft budget by June 28.

"In the financial years coming, we need to finish what we have started," she said.

"We need to cut expenses where we can."

BWC to leave Legatus group

Michelle Daw
JOURNALIST

BARUNGA West Council has voted to withdraw from a local government group which represents 15 local councils, citing a lack of tangible benefits for its ratepayers.

BWC chief executive Maree Wauchope said council was concerned about the group's performance and a lack of alignment with Barunga West's priorities.

"Council has previously expressed concerns over the draft plans and budget presented by the Legatus Group," she said.

"These concerns include an operating deficit of $73,300 in the 2022-23 budget, reliance on grant funding for many identified projects, and proposed increases in annual council membership contributions."

She said Legatus had fallen short in achieving its objectives and BWC was not alone in this viewpoint.

Legatus Group is chaired by Wakefield Council mayor Rodney Reid and includes Copper Coast and Yorke Peninsula Councils.

It aims to facilitate community and economic development by representing constituent councils at a regional level when dealing with other governments, private enterprise and the community.

Council has written to the Legatus Group, to give it 18 months' notice of its intention to withdraw.

If the required improvements are not made, BWC will approach the relevant state minister in 2025 to seek approval to cease being a constituent member.

Ms Wauchope said Legatus needed to make sure it did not duplicate the functions of organisations such as the Local Government Association, state government agencies, councils, Regional Development Australia, landscape boards and tourism boards.

Mr Reid said he was not surprised BWC had decided to resign from the group, given the responses he got from some elected members in March.

"I don't think it's the fault of Legatus," he said.

"Councils that tend to put more into it get more out of it."

He said Barunga West Council was the only council which had indicated it would resign from the group.

"I am disappointed in the decision because I think how as an organisation Legatus can and does help councils in different ways," Mr Reid said.

Mr Reid said BWC had benefited from its membership in numerous ways, including a subsidy for BWC's membership of the SA Coastal Councils Alliance.

The group is supporting Lifeline's bid to set up a counselling facility at Port Pirie, which would benefit BWC residents, and has advocated to the state government to drop the royalty imposed on rubble extracted from borrow pits for road repairs.

Council currently contributes $12,479 annually to support and maintain its membership with the Legatus Group.

The Legatus board has proposed membership fees will rise by 10 per cent for 2023-24 to account for inflation of eight per cent, plus an extra two per cent.

Council confidentiality explained

COUNCILS are bound by legislation when it comes to advertising and conducting meetings.

There have been questions in the community about the number of confidential informal gatherings held by Copper Coast Council.

CEO Russell Peate said councils were required to advertise all ordinary and special meetings.

"I understand people can become upset when meetings are confidential (and we still advertise them), but this is a requirement under the Local Government Act 1999," Mr Peate said.

"We are required to publish the notice of all council meetings on a website and also choose to on Facebook and in the Yorke Peninsula Country Times newspaper so people are aware."

Mr Peate said the decision to make meeting agenda items confidential was up to council.

"Items are usually made confidential when we are legally advised to do so," Mr Peate said.

"This may happen when a matter is raised in commercial confidence, when tenders are being discussed for works and services, or when council employees are involved."

"Council tries to be transparent and provide as much information as it can but there are good reasons for items being confidential."

"We then outline what's occurred in the meetings when the items are no longer confidential."

The Local Government Act obligates council CEOs to publicly display notices at least three days before an ordinary meeting, and as soon as practicable prior to a special meeting.

SOLAR POWER... Baden Napier Electrical and Solar electricians Ben Newton and Dale Slattery look forward to helping with future energy efficient system installations after the announcement of new low-cost loans to support households reduce their power bills.

Energy efficient homes the way forward

Will Hunter
REPORT BY

HUNDREDS of dollars will be slashed from the power bills of eligible Yorke Peninsula households following the announcement of new energy rebates set to take effect this winter.

From July, people on government support payments, including pensioners, veterans, seniors and concession card holders will be eligible to receive a $500 rebate on their power bills.

The relief package is a joint measure between state and federal governments, with the Commonwealth matching South Australia's $127.2 million commitment towards the National Energy Bill Relief Plan.

Under the plan, eligible small business will also receive $625 to help combat rising energy costs.

State Treasurer Stephen Mullighan said the government was doing all it could to help struggling households manage increases to their electricity bills.

"We promised energy bill relief and we delivered," Mr Mullighan said.

"This will make a significant difference to those who can least afford higher energy bills."

In a separate federal budget initiative, $1.3 billion has been allocated to the Household Upgrades Fund, of which $1b will go towards around 110,000 low-cost loans to help households improve their energy efficiency.

This includes upgrading homes with battery-ready solar systems, transitioning to modern appliances and supporting other initiatives such as double-glazing windows.

It is estimated upgrading an average house from a one-star rating to a three-star rating could cut energy bills by around 30 per cent.

Baden Napier Electrical and Solar owner Baden Napier said any efforts to reduce the amount of energy consumed by households was a positive step forward.

Mr Napier said initiatives to improve energy efficiency were needed because energy consumption was growing rapidly.

"Low-cost green loans have been around forever, so I don't think it's an announcement that will change the world," he said.

"However, it will be interesting to see what the government is offering and how they offer it compared to what is already in place."

Mr Napier said, in his experience, previous schemes had been more effective in encouraging consumers to transition to solar compared to low-cost loans.

"I would personally rather see more direct benefits similar to schemes already in place," he said.

"At the moment for solar, we have basically a carbon tax (type incentive in place) — each system can create small-scale technology certificates and at the time of the install, they can be claimed to get a reduction off the price of the install."

"That is reducing each year as time goes by, but there is still a direct benefit which helps with affordability."

Facelift for Polgreen Park amenities

FAMILIES visiting Polgreen Park, Moonta, now have access to upgraded toilet amenities.

The block features two male and two female toilets and a unisex accessible toilet, all with sinks, and an air hand dryer outside.

A changing table, sanitary bin and needle disposal receptacle are also set to be installed to complete the facility in the coming weeks.

Copper Coast Council mayor Roslyn Talbot said the prominent location of the toilets meant the upgrade was vital.

“The toilets are accessible for all to use with an option for people with disabilities and enough room for parents to fit a pusher,” Mrs Talbot said.

“I hope the community respects this facility as if it was their own bathroom.”

The toilet block has been fully funded by council as part of its Polgreen Park Masterplan.

Moonta and District Progress Association president Matthew Stock said the new amenities had improved the accessibility of the entire park.

“The former toilets had no form of disability access, whereas the new ones do,” Mr Stock said.

“They’re in a very convenient spot being adjacent to the sheltered barbecue area and a short walk from the Moonta Dog Park.

“The upgrade has given us ideas for the aesthetics we may use for further upgrades (through the master plan).

“We’re working on the addition of a lawn area, more pathways and refurbishment of the old shelter shed.”

MUCH NEEDED... Copper Coast Council building and maintenance staff members Shaun Morfey and Graeme Kuhndt recently helped construct a new accessible toilet block in Polgreen Park, Moonta, an upgrade Mayor Roslyn Talbot said was much needed.

Driving program hits the skids

Jess Liddy
JOURNALIST

A PROGRAM created to subsidise driving lessons for young Australians has reached the end of the road.

The Keys2drive Program, founded in 2008, was an Australian Government-funded program providing learner drivers and their caregivers a free lesson with an accredited professional driving instructor.

Accustom Driving School and Training Centre, Kadina, provided the program locally and state-wide for more than nine years and directors Kevin and Nelly Burgemeister said they were shocked when the funding was axed.

"If anything, we thought (the funding) would be increased because it was such a great program," they said.

"Keys2drive had a real emphasis on road safety rather than just 'passing a test'.

"We found it beneficial to have caregivers involved in the lesson to reiterate road safety to everyone while the driver was a learner — before being able to drive on their own.

"It also allowed learners to gain more basic road skills, rather than a supervisor just directing them and telling them what to, giving them the ability to think for themselves."

Kevin and Nelly said thousands of learner drivers took the course locally every year and to see it ending at a time the road toll in South Australia was worsening was very sad.

"It is also worrying, as the cost of living increases, families won't have access to a free lesson and may choose to cut back on paid lessons because services aren't cheap," they said.

"We hope the state government might throw some funding behind a new but similar program because being able to implement road safety in a practical way is so important."

A federal Department of Infrastructure, Transport, Regional Development, Communications and the Arts spokesperson said the Australian Automobile Association advised the Australian Government in late 2022 of the decision to not seek further funding for the Keys2drive Program beyond June 30.

"The government has sup-

SAFETY FIRST... Accustom Driving School and Training Centre, Kadina, directors Kevin and Nelly Burgemeister are disappointed the federal government has axed funding for the Keys2drive Program, which allowed learner drivers and their caregivers one free lesson with a driving instructor.

Government's commitment to road safety

IN the recent 2023-24 federal budget, the government increased its funding commitment to road safety.

More than $4 million has been committed to the new National Road Safety Action Grants Program over four years, which will provide non-infrastructure grants to help implement the National Road Safety Action Plan 2023-25.

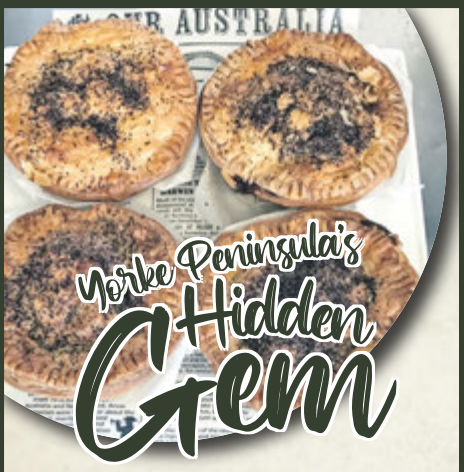

Community education and awareness, including young driver training, is one of the focus areas of this new program.

A federal Department of Infrastructure, Transport, Regional Development, Communications and the Arts spokesperson said the government would also continue delivering road safety improvements through the Road Safety Program, with more than $976m available for new projects across 2023-24 and 2024-25, building on the more than 1400 projects delivered to date.

"In addition, the budget has $16.5m allocated to the Car Safety Ratings Program to improve testing protocols for new light vehicles and provide safety evaluations for used vehicles," the spokesperson said.

"Through its Office of Road Safety, the government will continue to coordinate and facilitate the national efforts to eliminate road trauma in Australia, including by delivering on these commitments."

Marsupials thriving in national park

DHILBA Guuranda-Innes National Park's brush-tailed bettong population is thriving.

New monitoring by researchers as part of the Marna Banggara project, a plan to restore lost native wildlife to southern Yorke Peninsula, found almost half of the 85 bettongs caught had been born on the peninsula.

Nearly every female caught was also carrying pouch young, Northern and Yorke Landscape Board ecologist Derek Sandow said.

About 120 bettongs have now been released during the past two years as part of Marna Banggara, which is jointly funded through the Northern and Yorke Landscape Board, the Australian Government's National Landcare Program, the South Australian Department for Environment and Water, WWF-Australia, and Foundation for National Parks & Wildlife, in partnership with the Narungga Nation Aboriginal Corporation and with the support of Traditional Custodians, the Narungga people.

"It's fantastic to see so many new animals in the population," Mr Sandow said.

"It shows the bettongs we released in 2021 and 2022 are comfortable in the landscape, they're finding food, they're finding shelter, and they're finding mates.

"We also caught bettongs from Wedge Island and Western Australia in the same areas, which is a good indicator the two groups are mingling and breeding and that's great for the genetic health of the population."

One of the bettongs caught was a juvenile male — known as a young at foot — whose mum was born on Yorke Peninsula.

"He was a couple of months old and almost ready to venture out on his own," University of Adelaide PhD candidate Chloe Frick said.

"It's wonderful to see these Yorke Peninsula-born bettongs are surviving the juvenile stage and now having pouch young of their own."

WWF-Australia's rewilding project manager Rob Brewster said the recent monitoring was the best indication yet the species may successfully reintroduced when there was suitable habitat and ongoing feral predator control.

"If this population can be sustained over time, it would be the first successful reintroduction of this species beyond islands and fenced safe havens," Mr Brewster said.

More bettongs from Western Australia will be released later this year.

Grounded art festival lands

GROUNDING... Yorke Peninsula Council arts and culture working group members Jasmine Swales, Sonya Rankine, Meg Honner and Robyn Clasholm.

YORKE Peninsula's premier arts event will be transformed in 2023 as the GROUNDED Yorke Peninsula Art Festival replaces the former Yorke Peninsula Art Exhibition.

Rebranded by the Yorke Peninsula Council arts and culture working group, the 10-day event will feature the original exhibitions plus a range of added festivities.

The festival was previously held at Easter and will now be held from Friday to Sunday, August 11-20.

“We recognise that 2023 offers Guuranda (Yorke Peninsula) the opportunity to utilise the growing popularity of experience-based tourism to attract visitors in August, a traditionally slower time for visitation,” YPC arts and cultural facilitator Sonya Rankine said.

"Our August-based festival will be part of the renowned and celebrated state-wide South Australia Living Artists Festival.

“GROUNDED replaces the Easter Yorke Peninsula Art Exhibition and will offer music, dance, performing arts, First Nations Narungga food, art and culture, artisan foods, beverages, products and more.”

Ms Rankine said art was often healing, inclusive and ground-breaking.

"Why GROUNDED, and what is the purpose of curating an arts festival for the people and visitors of Yorke Peninsula?" she said.

“Yorke Peninsula’s ground is ancient, significant, and productive, shack owners escape to the peninsula as it has a grounding and calming effect on one’s mood.

“The community sets its roots in the peninsula’s ground and works hard to produce excellent things for our people.

“By offering numerous platforms for important storytelling and expression, we can connect with our visitors.”

She said the aim of the festival would be to inspire and grow the celebration of the arts on the peninsula by nurturing creatives, traditional owners the Narungga people, residents, and shack owners.

Businesses and individuals have the opportunity to sponsor and collaborate throughout GROUNDED.

To find out more, call Ms Rankine on 0491 086 854, email sonya.rankine@yorke.sa.gov.au or visit www.ypart.com.au.

Peninsula volunteers' service recognised

VOLUNTEERS from across Yorke Peninsula Council region were honoured with a morning tea at the Minlaton Town Hall to thank them for their service during National Volunteer Week on Tuesday, May 16.

About 70 volunteers attended the event, which included a question and answer session with Stansbury Progress Association chairperson Don McPhee and Yorke Peninsula Netball Association president Sue Brown.

Attendee and Ardrossan Men's Shed volunteer Kevin Betterman said it was hard to put into words how volunteering regularly made him feel.

"It's certainly gratifying and you get a sense of worth for what you do and how you may be helping other people," he said.

"We started the shed to bring a few people out of isolation; some former members of Tidy Towns had realised it was getting too hard for them but had slumped into a state of not going out.

"This was a way to get them back into the fold and it's just gone from strength to strength."

National Volunteer Week is Australia's largest annual celebration of volunteering and this year's theme was The Change Makers.

Mayor Darren Braund said without volunteers, communities wouldn't function the way they do.

There are more than 45 service groups in the YPC area, ranging from progress associations to South Australian Country Women's Association branches.

"On behalf of our council and the community I want to acknowledge and thank every volunteer for their dedication to the region," Mr Braund said.

"Yorke Peninsula has many volunteers from progress associations and sporting clubs through to Tidy Towns and emergency services volunteers.

"Volunteering brings people together, it builds communities and creates a better society for everyone.

"National Volunteer Week is a chance for all of us to celebrate and recognise the vital work of volunteers and to say thank you."

SPOTLIGHT... Yorke Peninsula Council mayor Darren Braund (middle) engaged in a question and answer session with volunteers Sue Brown and Don McPhee.

An uncanny connection

VOLUNTEERS at the Minlaton National Trust Museum recently discovered an uncanny connection of history group member Ann Williams.

Lyn Smith, of Queensland, and Ann Egan, Adelaide, were visiting the area to walk in the footsteps of their forebears, the Hogans, Wilsons and Vierks, who lived in Minlaton from 1881-1920.

After visiting St Malachy's Catholic Church to view two leadlight windows donated by the Hogan family, they viewed memorabilia at the Minlaton Museum, which was part of the original Trehearne Store.

Walter Trehearne built this section to allow his wagons to be loaded and unloaded out of the weather.

"I just happened to be there and heard Lyn comment her grandfather worked for Trehearne's Store before World War I," Ann Williams (nee Peterson) said.

"I told her that my granddad also worked there, George Parish, who was the driver of their horse-drawn delivery wagon and I pointed to the photo of him and Hartley Cross.

"Lyn said her granddad, Andrew Wilson, was in the Trehearne staff photo taken prior to WWI and pointed him out to me; as we stood together looking at it, Andy Wilson, her grandfather, was in the back row standing next to, none other than, Geo Parish, my grandfather.

"How uncanny is that?"

SA Water installs new main at Alford

SA Water crews are installing new water main infrastructure in Alford.

Crews are currently working on a 1.2 kilometre stretch beneath the Bute Road, as part of SA Water's water main management program.

Senior manager of capital delivery Peter Seltikas said the new pipe was made from PVC, known for having better flexibility and being more resistant to soil movement, compared to fibro-cement.

"Our water main replacement program is one of the ways we are proactively working to limit the frequency and impact of leaks and breaks, which are often caused by soil movement and other environmental factors," he said.

"Water mains have a lifespan of up to 100 years and the installation of this pipe will help to ensure a secure supply of clean, safe drinking water to local customers well into the future."

Construction will take around 10 weeks to complete, with works typically occurring between 7am and 5pm, Monday to Friday.

"For the safety of our people and the community, we ask residents and road users to please take note of localised traffic management in place while the works are underway," Mr Seltikas said.

"We will also ensure our customers are notified of any temporary water supply interruptions that are necessary when we move their connections over from the old to new pipes."

Friends of the Building

A DETERMINED group of volunteers, a sub-committee of the SYP Agricultural Society, hopes to complete the rejuvenation of its heritage-listed building at Minlaton oval before the show's 150th anniversary in 2028.

The Sausage Sizzlers

Successful fundraisers for the rehabilitation of the building have to be the Sausage Sizzlers.

For more than two years, the sizzlers team of cheerful volunteers has attended nearly every PepperTree Market in Minlaton or any suitable community event, raising money for the building's renovation.

So far this year they have donated almost $1200.

Thank you to Minlaton Bakery, Minlaton Foodland, Widara Free Range Pork and Babbage Lamb Sausages who regularly donate or provide supplies.

The sausage sizzle is a wonderful Australian invention that brings together hardworking volunteers and hungry visitors and locals.

Those on one side give their time for really good causes, and those on the other learn about a community and donate towards its wellbeing — an excellent example of everyone wins.

More volunteers are now desperately needed to both cook and serve (all you need is your own apron). If you can help, contact SYP Agricultural Society secretary Kali Germein (0488 115 929) or come to one of the sizzles and check out with a volunteer what you can do to support them.

Keep an eye on the YP Country Times Action Ads page for information about the next PepperTree Market, or contact Kellie Saint on 0418 461 080.

JUMPING FOR JOY... St Mary MacKillop School principal Michelle Miller is thrilled about securing $25,000 in funding from the Schools Upgrade Fund.

How is your school planning to use the funding?

- Central Yorke School – replacement of playground at Point Pearce Aboriginal Campus to meet national safety standards
- Moonta Area School – development of comfortable soft areas around the school for students to utilise at break times and as outdoor learning spaces
- Wallaroo Primary School – installation of new carpet and vinyl flooring along with new storage and bench space in STEM classrooms
- Yorketown Area School – installation of a new shade sail over existing playground, purchase of new outdoor seating and upgrades to the centre quad area to make it an accessible and utilised outdoor learning space
- St Mary MacKillop School – installation of an in-ground trampoline to be accessible by all students including those with physical mobility limitations

Schools splashed with cash as funding announced

Will Hunter
REPORT BY

FIVE Yorke Peninsula schools will benefit from the latest round of the federal government's Schools Upgrade Fund following the announcement of more than 120 successful applications across South Australia.

The open round of the Schools Upgrade pledged $32 million towards improvements to learning facilities, including the construction of outdoor learning spaces and repairs to existing infrastructure.

Central Yorke, Moonta Area, Yorketown Area, St Mary MacKillop and Wallaroo Primary Schools will all receive $25,000 to help enhance their campuses.

Labor Duty Senator for Grey Karen Grogan said it was a pleasure to write to schools in regional South Australia regarding the funding they would be receiving under the scheme.

"I know these schools are hubs for their communities," Ms Grogan said.

"They have taught generations of families and are absolutely crucial for ensuring our regions continue to thrive.

"The students, teachers, staff and volunteers deserve to be backed by quality school infrastructure and facilities, and that's exactly what this fund will provide."

Moonta Area School acting principal Samantha Schultz said the school was thrilled to have received funding to improve outdoor learning spaces.

"Student leaders addressed what improvements they would like to see in this area and with that information it was decided a grassed area, a shade sail and seating for the students is what will be developed," Ms Schultz said.

"With the funding provided we aim to develop a section of land which extends from the middle years' classrooms to a garden area recently revamped by a volunteering group of year 10s."

St Mary MacKillop, Wallaroo, principal Michelle Miller said the school would use its funds to install an in-ground trampoline that would be accessible to all.

"Trampolines are fantastic for all children, providing exercise and physical activity in the fresh air and socialisation," Ms Miller said.

"The bouncing and jumping sensation is excellent for sensory needs, helping students to calm and self-regulate."

Kadina Combined Probus second anniversary lunch

KADINA Combined Probus Club members held a special luncheon at the YP Veterans and Community Centre, Port Road, Kadina, recently.

The lunch celebrated two years since the amalgamation of the previous men's and ladies' clubs.

Mother's Day chrysanthemums on the tables plus balloons on the walls of the spacious and cheerful dining room boosted the festive atmosphere.

The 39 members arrived in a timely fashion and seated themselves; it was not long before happy discussions began — these conversations are looked forward to as seniors recount their activities and experiences.

President Reece Pridham

welcomed those present as the meals were served by YPVCC volunteers.

Birthday people were congratulated and a lively rendition of Happy Birthday was sung.

A lucky ticket prize draw came next, the winners selecting their choices from a range of wines and chocolates.

Meanwhile, the social chitchat continued, making for a successful occasion.

The luncheon was rounded off by the joint cutting of the birthday cake by ladies' club founding member Leonie Nance and men's club life member Reece Pridham.

The YPVCC volunteer staff were warmly thanked for their time and efforts, essential for a successful day.

Kerne-Walk Safely to School Day

STUDENTS across Yorke Peninsula took up the challenge to make steps towards a healthier future as they participated in Walk Safely to School Day on Friday, May 19.

The national event, championed by the Pedestrian Council of Australia, aims to promote the health, road safety and environmental benefits of regularly walking to and from school.

Pedestrian Council of Australia chairman and CEO Harold Scruby said children needed at least 60 minutes of physical activity a day and students should be encouraged to take walks before, during and after school.

Participating families were given the option to walk from home or, if unable to travel the full distance on foot, park the car a distance away from the school and walk the rest of the way.

Wallaroo Primary School students walked to school dressed head to toe in traditional Cornish attire, ready to celebrate the area's Cornish history with a day of festivities at the Kernewek Lowender in Moonta.

Principal Dominica Thompson, said many already walked to school as part of their daily routine.

Yorketown Area School asked students to meet at a nearby playground so they could walk as one, with members of SAPOL joining them for a healthy breakfast.

Ardrossan Area School students also came out in droves to make the journey towards a healthier future, traversing school grounds for a bacon and egg sandwich in recognition of their efforts.

CROSSING SAFELY... Wallaroo Primary School crossing duty monitor Jess Martin stops traffic to allow Parka Launder, Samara Frick, Lilly Fear, Natalie Frick, Lexi Geldart, Stacey Giehl Rowe and Mayah Rowe to cross safely on their way to Kernewek Lowender celebrations.

HOLDING HANDS... Stacey Giehl Rowe, Mayah Rowe, Paris Rowe and Jenevieve Heinrich participated in the annual Walk Safely to School Day at Wallaroo on Friday, May 19.

TATTOOS... Yorketown Area School students Olivia Smith and Imogen Chapman got into the walking spirit with their Walk Safely to School Day tattoos.

DELICIOUS... Yorketown Area School students enjoyed a hot breakfast before making the trek to school on Friday, May 19. It was cooked by pastoral care worker Louise Lang and SYP Community Hub youth worker Carlee Fowles.

EMERGING... Wallaroo's Austin McDonald is finding his feet in Australian Formula Powerboat Grand Prix racing, having joined the circuit earlier this year.

McDonald hits straps as a powerboater

Fin Hansen
REPORT BY

Austin McDonald has already built consistent form just a few months into his powerboating career.

The 26-year-old adrenaline junkie, who lives in Wallaroo, has joined the Australian Formula Powerboat Grand Prix circuit for 2023.

McDonald finished eighth in his first race meeting earlier this year and has since chalked up several promising results at races along the east coast of Australia.

Growing up in Gawler, McDonald took the traditional route to sprint cars by racing dirt karts as a junior across regional South Australia.

"I was SA2 and 3 for a while in dirt karts and won plenty of races... the best part was being able to race almost every weekend of the year," McDonald said.

"I grew up going to the speedway as a kid so I've always been pretty keen on motorsports."

McDonald and his family shifted to Wallaroo for a sea change about three years ago and, at the same time, he started racing 410ci sprint cars.

"I won a couple of state series in formula 500s, before moving to the premier 410 cubic inch sprint car class," he said.

Having experienced ample success on the dirt from a young age, McDonald turned his attention to the water.

"My dad (Andrew) raced powerboats in the '80s and '90s so I wanted to follow his lead," he said.

"You need a high-level boat to race at all so I bought an F2 Molgaard hull race boat, which weighs about 450 kilograms, from Denmark last year.

"It's fitted with a Mercury Optimax 200XS engine and is averaging about 175 kilometres an hour."

Having missed his grounding years of powerboating, McDonald said he's spent lots of time learning the ins and outs of the sport.

"I think I've adapted pretty well and racing pretty competitively at a national level already," he said.

"Basically, each course is 2.7kms with four or five left-hand turns and a right turn. The race is timed at about eight minutes with one lap at the end to decide who wins.

"I've hit speeds of 180-190km/h — it's like you're floating on water, there's nothing like it.

"One of the tests I had to pass to be able to race was the cell test, where they strap you to a cockpit upside down in a pool and you have to get out three times."

McDonald has been juggling his powerboating career whilst managing his own business, Premier Mobility and Equipment Repair Service, which repairs all types of mobility aids in FLOATING... McDonald has reached speeds of up to 190 kilometres an hour whilst racing along the east coast of Australia.

regional SA.

"I spend about 15 hours a week working on my boat in the shed, meaning lots of late nights working on it after work," he said.

"With the speeds we race at, you really have to run right through the boat carefully checking all the nuts and bolts before a race.

"We also have to rebalance it sometimes, depending on where we're racing."

McDonald said joining the International Formula Powerboat Grand Prix circuit was his overarching dream.

"You need to be winning in Australia consistently to get to Europe," he said.

"But at the moment I'm pretty focused on learning as much as I can and continuing to improve my speed."

McDonald visited his major sponsor Can Do Marine (Copper Coast Marine Centre) whilst meeting some of his supporters at Wallaroo on Friday, May 12.

Can Do Marine owner Bruce McKenzie said he was very pleased to be sponsoring Austin McDonald Racing.

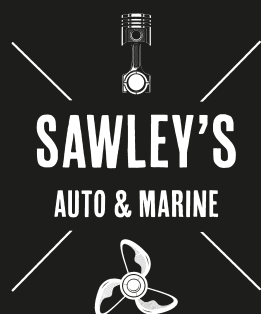

"I've always enjoyed working on high-power performance motors, so to be involved with a race boat like Austin's really suits us," McKenzie said.

"I've watched him in three or four race meetings in New South Wales this year.

"The cost of competing in powerboats is big so there's opportunities for other local sponsors to get behind this local boy.

"All sponsorship money goes towards Austin's accommodation and travel costs."

To sponsor Austin, contact his team via Austin McDonald Racing on Facebook.

Locals clash for Youth Shield

Peter Argent
REPORT BY

William Pearce, Tom Luck and Kade Herbert went head to head the annual Youth Shield match at Thebarton Oval on Friday, May 19.

Pearce (Paskeville) and his state under 20 side were victorious over Luck (CY Cougars), Herbert (Bute) and the under 18s, 10.10 (70) to 3.14 (32).

Pearce was the second best on ground, behind the under 20s medalist Adam D'Aloia, playing as a leading half forward and kicking a game-high three goals.

"I have played in the under 20 game for the past two years, but this is the only time I've had the opportunity to wear state colours," Pearce said.

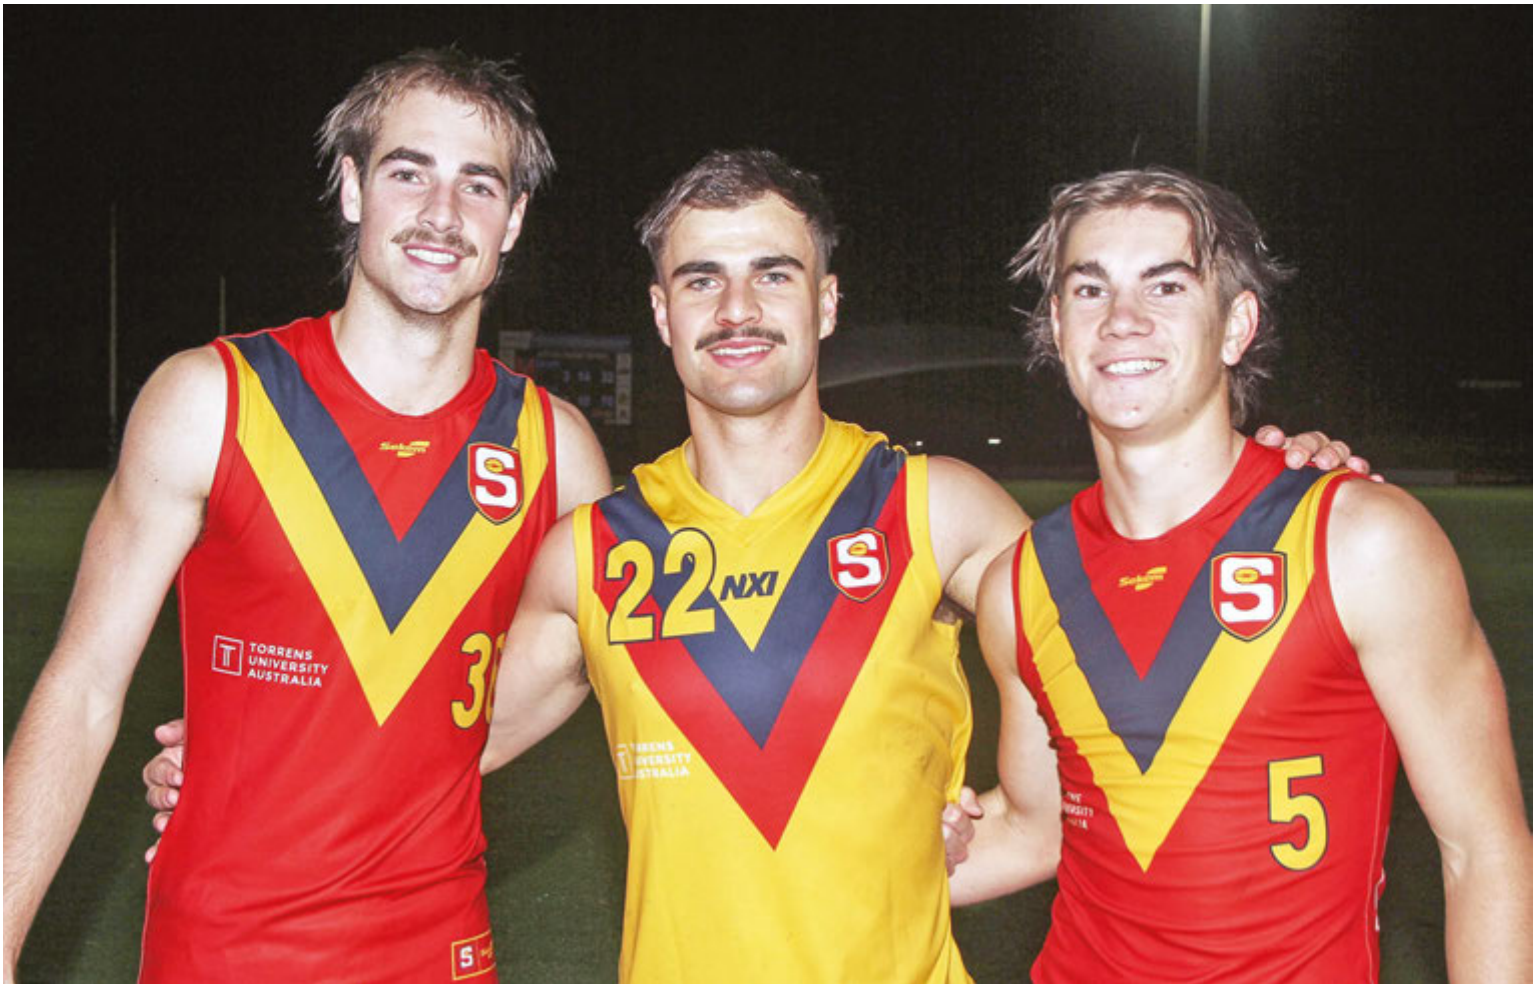

"With the conditions after halftime, players had to work harder with their skills but before that, the ball pinged around a fair bit."

Pearce played his junior football at Paskeville/Bute and started with the Woodville-West Torrens in its under 14 program.

"I would have played a good handful of A grade games for Paskeville, back when the SANFL under 16s was an abridged season," he said.

"Dad, Lynton played a lot of footy for the Magpies back at home and captained the club."

Luck and Herbert were serviceable for the under 18s; their state program continues with a clash against the Allies at Thebarton Oval, on Sunday, June 4.

STATE COLOURS... Tom Luck, William Pearce and Kade Herbert clashed on Friday night, with Pearce's under 20 state side getting the win.

Netball talent emerging out of the peninsula

Jess Liddy
JOURNALIST

Central Yorke Cougar players Summer Davies and Sadie Polkinghorne have been named in the 2023 Adelaide Thunderbirds Talent Academy.

The academy consists of one emerging academy and five development academies based in locations across South Australia.

Polkinghorne said she felt lucky to be selected and was excited about the program's opportunities.

"Girls from all over the state were able to trial in Adelaide and at four different country locations," she said.

"From these trials an Adelaide Thunderbirds Talent Academy was selected, and I was fortunate enough to make the academy for emerging athletes with 20 other girls.

"During the first training session I learned about the importance of identifying weaknesses in my own game and then finding ways to build those skills to become the best player I can be.

"I love playing in a team, working with teammates to find a way to beat the opposition.

"Along with development of my netball skills and me as a player, I am looking forward to meeting new people and making new friendships."

Marley Holmes and Nellie Polkinghorne, CY Cougars; Eleanor Brown, CMS Crows; and Hallie Koch, Moonta, have been selected in the development academy based in Clare.

Brown said it was a great program and a huge opportunity for girls in regional areas.

"The past few years there have been some gaps between metropolitan and regional opportunities for young netballers," she said.

"It will be great to meet girls from other areas and gain netball knowledge from our coaches."

A Netball SA survey revealed 88 per cent of parents felt the program assisted in preparing their children for trials and future pathway opportunities.

In addition, 79 per cent of athletes 'strongly agreed' they developed as an athlete during the course of the program and the remaining 21 per cent 'agreed'.

TALENT... Sadie Polkinghorne and Summer Davies, Central Yorke Cougars, have been selected in the 2023 Adelaide Thunderbirds Emerging Talent Academy.

SAPSASA swimming success for students

About 20 students from the northern and southern Yorke Peninsula zones competed in the SAPSASA Swimming State Country Schools Championships at the Marion Aquatic Centre on Friday, May 5.

The event was the most successful to date for the combined team, with individual and team medal winners. Each student achieved personal best times.

Results: Gold medals, girls: Chloe Junggebur, Alexandria Cameron, Eloise Crosby, Addyson Cox (10yo 4 x 50m freestyle relay); Lucy Mattschoss, Addison Graham (11yo 4 x 50m freestyle relay). Silver: Tarquin Wilden (boys' 12yo 50m backstroke), Lachlan Dart (boys' 11yo 50m breaststroke), Lucy Mattschoss (girls' 10yo 50m freestyle), Eloise Crosby (girls' 10yo 50m breaststroke), Lachlan Dart, Alfie Mahar (boys' 11yo 4 x 50m freestyle relay). Bronze: Lachlan Dart (boys' 11yo 50m backstroke), Louie Roenfeldt (boys' 10yo 4 x 50m freestyle relay).

These results are even more remarkable as the training was done in a 15-metre pool, the only facility available on the Copper Coast.

The students are also to be commended for putting in 100 per cent effort during training and competition, as well as demonstrating the key sporting values of friendship, respect and excellence.

Many thanks to Nina Farr and Fiona Meyer for their amazing coaching support, and to Aaron Smith for being a brilliant team manager.

AFL

George Hewett (Broughton-Mundoora) started as Carlton's substitute against Collingwood in Sir Doug Nicholls Round on Sunday, May 21.

The Magpies proved too strong for the Blues, winning by 28 points, 13.7 (85) to 7.15 (57).

Hewett finished with 11 touches, including nine handballs, one mark, three tackles and three clearances in a half of football.

SANFLW

Edithburgh's Shineah Goody and Woodville-West Torrens finished their 2023 campaign with an impressive come-from-behind triumph against 2022 title winner North Adelaide on Saturday, May 20.

The Eagles were six points down at the long break but a goal by Kadina's Kayleigh May at the 13-minute mark of the last quarter clinched an eight-point win, 4.9 (35) to 3.7 (25).

In what is expected to be her last game before she is drafted, Goody had 15 disposals, including 11 kicks, five marks and four tackles.

In her first win with the Eagles senior team, May finished with five touches and three tackles, as well as her pivotal major.

VFL

Southport Sharks had a 39-point loss to the Box Hill Hawks, 6.9 (45) to 11.18 (84).

Boyd Woodcock (Paskeville) was the Sharks' leading performer, with 26 touches, three marks, a pair of tackles, six clearances and 1.1

on the scoreboard.

The Sharks had a heartbreaking two-point loss to the Gold Coast Suns the previous week-end, losing 10.14 (74) to 12.4 (76).

Woodcock was simply outstanding in this game, finishing with 38 disposals including 25 kicks, nine marks and nine clearances.

He also kicked one goal (and a behind).

Caleb Poulter (Ardrossan) and the Footscray Bulldogs had a 34-point loss to Werribee, 8.9 (57) to 13.13 (91) on Sunday, May 14.

Poulter finished with 14 disposals, four marks and six tackles in this contest.

Suncorp Super Netball

Sasha Glasgow (Moonta Bay) was a star in the West Coast Fever's round 10 match against the Queensland Firebirds on Sunday, May 21.

She converted a massive 14 of 20 super shots from outside the arc in the impressive 34-goal win, 97 to 63.

Along with her strong performance from super shot range, she operated at a perfect 100 per cent efficiency — 15 from 15 — from one-goal range.

Glasgow also recorded 17 goal assists and 17 centre pass receives in a quality all round performance.

Sarah Klau (Yorketown) and her NSW Swifts teammates were too strong for the Collingwood Magpies in the early Sunday game.

Klau played as goal keeper and was credited with three intercepts along with an impressive six net gains in a big 85 to 56 win.

After 10 rounds, the Swifts are second with seven wins and a draw while the West Coast Fever is equal third with seven victories.

SANFLW... Shineah Goody, Woodville-West Torrens, enjoyed a win in her final SANFLW game for the season.

Celebrating Bute's sporting success

Advertising Promotion

BUTE Football and Netball Clubs are inviting the community to help celebrate past premiership success. The clubs are holding reunions for the 1973, 1983 and 1993 netball premierships in A, D, E and F grades as well as the 1973 A and B grade and 1993 A grade football premierships on Saturday, June 3.

Football club president Matthew Rose said he was looking forward to the day.

"It is great people want to come back and celebrate," he said.

"We're planning a pretty low-key reunion for football, maybe with a few speeches, but ultimately we want people to come out and watch the game against the Southern Eagles and enjoy the atmosphere."

The club is also celebrating the completion of the Bute Sporting Club upgrade and will award two life memberships at the completion of the football matches.

"It has been a little while since we've won a premiership, so it will be nice to celebrate what we achieved," Rose said.

The 1973 victories were milestones for the football club, with the B grade side winning its fifth consecutive flag and the A grade taking home its first for three years against Ardrossan.

A YPCT report from the 1973 grand final described the side as "the Boss of Yorke Valley".

"With only one defeat from 19 starts, the Roosters have something to crow about," it read.

"In home matches they guarded their roosts on 16 occasions from as many starts.

"(The) Only blemish came in the second semifinal, when they were surprisingly defeated by flag holders Ardrossan.

"The Seasideers were going for their fourth flag in a row, but struck the Roosters in strutting mood to go down by 25 points.

"(The dominance is) a little surprising. Population-wise they are in the small group of towns with only Paskeville, Arthurton and Port Victoria below."

The '93 flag capped off a run of three for the A grade side.

"Bute couldn't believe they had pulled off a miracle last Saturday at Moonta in the 1993 YVFL grand final," the YPCT report read.

"Walleroo, on top all day, were spellbound by Bute's finishing burst and just couldn't believe they had lost the grand final.

"Bute were 24 points down at the last change and had only nine shots at goal, compared to 18 by Wallaroo."

The netball celebrations will begin at 1pm in the clubrooms and will feature an afternoon tea by the Bute

RUNNING OUT... Players from Bute's 1993 A grade side, led by captain Ian Taylor, make their way to the field before the game. Members from the team, as well as other premiers in 1973 and netball premiers in 1973, 1983 and 1993 are being celebrated next month.

Corner Store.

"Everyone will get a champagne on arrival, and it will just be a great opportunity to catch up," netball club representative Renee Hewett said.

"For us to have five premierships in those three years is quite something; life member Evyonne Price coached three of those five, including the A and F grade in 1993.

"We think it's really special to be able to come together and celebrate these events with the football club as well."

The E grade side won its first of five straight flags in 1973, while the A grade and the F grade took home flags in 1993. The F grade's win was its first of seven straight too while In 1983, it was Bute's D grade which won and again it was part of a pretty successful run, winning four flags by 1986.

"We've invited all our life members too, because they were pretty important during these times," Hewett said.

"It's going to be a great day."

Moonta claimed the Kernewek Lowender Cup and the Michael Wanganeen Indigenous Round Trophy with a 23-point win over Kadina.

Boosted by the inclusion of former AFL player Tyson Goldsack, the Demons sit just one win off the top of the ladder as they look to finish the 2023 season as back-to-back premiers.

Playing in front of a good crowd at Kadina, the home side got the better start but kicked just two goals from seven first quarter scoring opportunities.

The Bloods failed to add to their score at all in the second quarter; however, Moonta kicked 3.5 to assume a 13-point lead at halftime.

Ryley Maitland was playing at his best through the middle of the ground for the visitors, as were Jayson Manners and Giles Ellis for Kadina.

The Bloods were wasteful in front of goal again in the third quarter, kicking 2.5 to Moonta's 3.3 and leaving it all to do in the last quarter.

The 17-point three-quarter time margin couldn't be overcome though, as Moonta nailed four last quarter goals to seal the deal.

Patrick Fry and Goldsack finished the day with three goals each for Moonta while Matthew Borlace was the only multiple goal scorer for Kadina, finishing with two.

Kadina will look forward to having the week off while Moonta will welcome Wallaroo to Moonta for another Copper Coast derby.

Goldsack provides a forward focus

Moonta's forward line may have been boosted by the addition of 2010 AFL premiership player Tyson Goldsack, but it was off the field the club really benefited from him.

A grade coach Luke Pridham said not only did he learn a lot, but so did all the players.

"I think you could say he really exceeded all our expectations," Pridham said.

"He was brilliant in that mentor role and did exactly what was asked of him all day, which we knew he would."

Goldsack played out of the goal square for the whole of the match, at times dealing with more than one direct opponent, and finished with three goals from a handful of scoring shots.

"It was a really windy day, so I think any forward who can have that sort of impact with a number of factors going against them, has done really well," Pridham said.

"While his work on the field was great, we were really pleased with what he offered for everyone associated with the club outside of game time."

"Off the back of two really good wins in our senior grades, we had probably about 100 people back at the club and held a relaxed question and answer session."

Pridham confirmed Goldsack would be making further appearances for the club in 2023, depending on his commitments with Port Adelaide in the SANFL and AFL.

Both sides have the week off on Saturday, June 24, when Moonta play Paskeville at home.

The big games keep coming

“McDonald-Tipstawuti”
REPORT BY

This year's iteration of First Nations Round was without a doubt a great success, with all eight YPFL clubs wearing striking guernseys, designed with Indigenous artwork.

Coinciding with Sir Doug Nicholls Round at AFL level, it was evidently a jam-packed week of football here too, with Moonta and Kadina playing off for the Kernewek Lowender Cup and the Demons welcoming AFL premiership player Tyson Goldsack into their line-up.

Kadina was beaten for the first time this year as Goldsack stepped up with three goals and Moonta made sure its quest for back-to-back premierships is as strong as possible.

The four winning sides for the week were the visiting teams, with the team that had the farthest to go, Southern Eagles to Wallaroo, perhaps the most impressive, dispatching the home side by 70 points.

Bute now finds itself inside the top five, not somewhere it has been much over the past few YPFL seasons, following its 20-point win against Ardrossan.

We have another smorgasbord of football to look forward to this weekend, with Bute's game against sixth-place CMS Crows perhaps the headline attraction.

Round 8 tips

Central Yorke Cougars v Paskeville

Paskeville had the week off and has only claimed victory in one of its first six games of the year. Central Yorke hasn't reached the height of its 2022 season just yet, but as every week passes, I'm more impressed by the output. New recruit Joel Ambjerg-Pedersen has proven to be quite the handful on multiple occasions so, if the Magpies want to win this one, they need to give a thought to shutting him down.

At the final siren... Central Yorke by four goals.

Bute v CMS Crows

The Crows have been one of the benchmark sides of the competition for the past five years, but I'm starting to wonder if the reign is over. A defeat at the hands of the Cougars may have been expected, but I dare say those inside the Crows' nest would've preferred a slimmer margin at least. This young Roosters outfit is on the rise though and four goals to Ryan Phillips last week propelled them to victory. This will be a tight one.

At the final siren... CMS Crows by five points.

Southern Eagles v Ardrossan

Without a doubt, Eagles are the form team so far in 2023 for me. Not necessarily form as in winning your first six games (see Kadina), but there appears to have been a vast improvement from the elimination final finish in 2022. Ardrossan, on the other hand, has just one win to its name so far this year and is too often reliant on the same pillars throughout its spine.

At the final siren... Southern Eagles by three goals.

Moonta v Wallaroo

Wallaroo is the only team yet to register a win and new coach Corey Smelt will be up against it trying to turn that around this week against Moonta. After slipping up against the Eagles two weeks ago, last week's result against ladder leaders Kadina proved the Demons aren't messing about.

At the final siren... Moonta by 15 goals.

Southern Eagles outshine Wallaroo

“The Dogged Scribe”
REPORT BY

The Wallaroo faithful welcomed Southern Eagles to Wallaroo oval for First Nations Round.

After a Welcome to Country, the A grade teams lined up in good conditions, despite rain threatening all morning.

Wallaroo put out a young team against the Eagles, who recently upset the apparently undefeatable Moonta.

Nick Westhoff lined up against the large Jarred Redden and the game got underway.

The Eagles came out on top of the first quarter but not easily.

The Dogs applied good pressure to the disorganised Eagles and found lots of the ball.

Only some poor conversion and inaccuracy in the forward line prevented them from finishing the quarter ahead or equal with their opponents.

Wallaroo's first goal of the day came from a Chase Martin soccer kick and the Dogs looked switched on.

Connor Smelt stealthily ran from full back to take a hand pass from Josef Rack to roost one from beyond the 50 to score.

The Eagles looked sluggish against the quick run and pressure from the youthful Dogs, yet their skilled players capitalised on turnovers.

Best on for the visitors was Jackson

Hooper in the middle and Luke Hoare in defence.

For Wallaroo, Hayden Ingram played a good first half, as did Steven Clay.

The third proved to be a blow out quarter for the Eagles, who started winning the midfield and pushed the ball into their forward line to Ryan Weidenhofer and Patrick Neal-Bullen.

Wallaroo was not helped by poor disposals when coming off half back and through the corridor.

Eight goals for the Eagles in the quarter put the game beyond any doubt.

To their credit, the Dogs dug in for the last quarter and didn't give up, battling hard until the final siren.

Young Hunter Wellgreen laid some strong tackles against the bigger bodies, despite feeling tired from a nearly full game on the field.

In the end, the Eagles went back home with the win, but the Dogs can be proud they made it hard for them.

For a lot of the day the Dogs matched the Eagles and, if not for early missed chances and the third quarter, it would have been a far closer game.

I thought the Eagles' best on ground was Weidenhofer with six goals, Michael Beelitz the full forward with five, and the midfielder Hooper.

For Wallaroo, Ingram played well, as did the quick Clay in the midfield, and Angus Johns played a strong defensive role in the centre.

YPFL B GRADE... Caleb Rivers, Southern Eagles, leaps for a mark in front of teammate Miles McEvoy and Wallaroo's Nathan Wright and Lachie Cavenett.

“Roo Ted”
REPORT BY

Patches of sun, cloud and a strong chilly west to southwest wind were experienced by the crowd of 323 people who rugged up to watch Ardrossan take on Bute.

Both sides tackled hard in the first quarter, but Ardrossan won the term kicking 3.1 to 2.4.

Ardrossan’s Thomas Dickeson kicked a great goal from 35 metres out in the second quarter to help his side hold onto a four-point lead at the long break.

The Roos knew they needed to keep the pressure up if they wanted to win the game but the Roosters knew they were still in the match.

The third quarter was set to be a close one, but the Roosters had other plans, kicking 5.1 to 0.1.

There was more hard tackling in the last quarter but the home side came back and kicked 3.2 to 2.2 to win the quarter.

It wasn’t enough though, as the Roosters won the match by 20 points.

The Kangaroos did have some good passages of football and the outcome could have been different if they weren’t kicked out of the ground in the third quarter.

The Roosters deserved the win by playing hard and good marking.

My best for the Kangaroos were Dickeson, Seb Lee, Nicholas Brind, Kye Turpin and Josh Hollitt, while for Bute Ryan Phillips, James Schilling, Benjamin Nash, Cameron Forbes and Delaney Williams were my best.

YPFL JUNIOR COLTS... Amy Meyers, Ardrossan, and Saxon Krieg, Bute, battle for a loose ball.

YPFL JUNIOR COLTS... Jett Pedler, Ardrossan, about to get a kick away from the tackle of Will Trengove, Bute.

YPFL JUNIOR COLTS... Ryan Crosby, Bute, can't get his hand to the ball as it goes over the goalline in front of the goal umpire against Ardrossan.

YPFL JUNIOR COLTS... Will Trengove, Bute, tries to keep control of the ball as he is tackled by Sebastian Gorden, Ardrossan.

YPFL JUNIOR COLTS... Jack Emerson Brokate, Bute, tries to smother the kick of Hugo Linke, Ardrossan.

YPFL JUNIOR COLTS... Ardrossan's Finn Wake gets a kick away from Bute players Matthew Ingram and Max Nicholls.

Cougars blow Crows away

“C.Rowsboffin”
REPORT BY

Yorke Peninsula Football League’s two First Nations Round pioneers, the CMS Crows and CY Cougars, faced-off in a mouth-watering encounter at Stansbury’s Bernie Vince Oval.

The Crows were fresh from the bye and were bolstered by dual Mail Medallist Murphy Short, who returned from SANFL duties.

Cougars, after delivering some brutal pummellings in successive weeks, were cherry ripe for the challenge of some tougher opposition.

Crows made a blistering start with goals from Bodi Warwick, Kai Newbold and Short putting the Cougars on notice early.

However, despite heading into a stiff breeze, Cougars, with a walk-in goal to Will Baker from a delightful chain of play and some razzle-dazzle from gifted youngster Kane Karpany, put some respectability on the scoreboard by the first break.

The second quarter was total annihilation from the Cougars, led superbly at the coal face by Luke Trenorden and Charlie Hay.

Ashley Williams slotted a beauty from a near-impossible angle while Zac Bates and Keigan Elliott contributed to a five goal to nothing quarter.

The young Crows team was expected to come out firing in the third quarter with the breeze picking up towards their end.

However, the Cougars had other ideas, slamming on three quick majors to all but blow the contest out of the water.

Joel Ambjerg-Peterson marked in the forward arc and kicked truly twice in successive minutes while Corey Graham notched his first major of the day.

Then suddenly the Crows clicked into gear for the first time since the first quarter.

Ryley Newbold exerted his influence in the ruck and gave first use to Short and Lachlan Pointon.

Angus Glazbrook, Troy Goldsworthy and Adam Jolly all registered their first majors to dramatically cut the margin to 13 points at the final change.

The last quarter was a dour struggle for the first 10 minutes with the Crows, aided by the raucous support from the Ladies’ Day function, constantly repelling the Cougars’ endless forward forays.

Eventually the dam wall burst, with the Cougars booting four goals to run out comfortable 38-point winners and solidify their claims for a top three finish.

It is back to the drawing board for the Crows with another test looming this week at Bute.

Eagles return to winning ways

“Eagle Eye”
REPORT BY

Broughton-Mundoora took on Southern Flinders in the final game of the Northern Areas Football Association round at Port Broughton on Saturday, May 20.

Several forced changes were made from the previous week's A grade team, and coach Thomas Wheelen stressed they couldn't underestimate the Tigers who had struggled in most of their first four games of the season.

The Eagles started well and controlled the ball around the contest.

The consistent Kallis Freer won plenty of clearances, and Kane Bowley showed plenty of class in the midfield.

Bodhi Sims made a welcome return after illness, and it was awesome to see Rehn Aitchison return after recovering from a heavy hit a fortnight ago.

Wayward kicking was the main concern for the Eagles with accuracy worrying everyone except key forward Sam Dyer, who had his best outing for the year with nine goals.

To their credit, despite being outscored in every quarter, the inexperienced Tigers stuck with the task and played the game out, never giving up.

The final margin was 67 points in favour of the home side.

This week the Eagles make the long trek to play Orroroo at Orroroo.

NAFA A GRADE... Broughton-Mundoora's Bodhi Sims marks in front of Ben Flowers, Southern Flinders.

NAFA B GRADE... Strath Roberts, in his 250th senior game, breaks free from the tackle by Southern Flinders' Isaac Willmore.

NAFA A GRADE... Ben Price, Broughton-Mundoora, kicks whilst being chased by Adam Combe, Southern Flinders.

NAFA B GRADE... Broughton-Mundoora's Brett Ballantyne gets front position in a marking contest with a Southern Flinders defender.

A grade

Wallaroo v Southern Eagles
A cold breeze made for tricky netball conditions at Wallaroo.
The home side had the centre pass and scored a quick goal, suggesting it wasn't there to mess around. Eagles played hard but, with consistent shooting from GA Isabelle Glasgow and strong defence at the other end of the court, Wallaroo led 12-9 at quarter time.
Neither side made positional changes, both entering the second quarter with confidence, and the game continued with a similar flow to the first quarter.
Walleroo's midcourt C Shaye Marshall and WA Georgia Schulze worked in unison to get the ball to their goalies whose accuracy wasn't affected by the wind.
Southern Eagles GD Katie Hocking and GK Taneesha Fleming entertained the crowd with some incredible intercepts.
Walleroo won the second quarter by three goals to have a six-goal lead at halftime, 24-18.
During the third quarter, Eagles GK Fleming came off after injuring her ankle; Emma Goldsmith was subbed in as GD and Hocking swapped to GK. The two worked hard together to create great pressure in the circle and their turnovers resulted in much-needed Eagles goals.
Eagles found their feet in attack and, with beautiful feeds into the circle, managed to creep back to within two goals; three-quarter time scores: Wallaroo 32, Eagles 30.
Eagles had a potential win in their sights but Wallaroo was determined to stop their momentum.
Eagles C Chelsea Giles and WA Stacey Evans fought hard for the ball and offered confident leads. Eagles showed some potential to push in front, but Wallaroo GD Adele Biancardi gained some important intercepts, resulting in critical goals for Wallaroo to extend its lead. Final scores: Wallaroo 44, Eagles 33.
CMS Crows v CY Cougars
CMS Crows and CY Cougars both proved to be tough competition in the first quarter at Stansbury.
Play flowed up and down the court smoothly with Crow Rebecca Harris having an early impact.

Crows defenders Georgina Farrow and Breeana McNeilly put pressure on Cougars' goalies but the defence of Cougars Joanne Davey, Alix Hillebrand and Iluka Zilm-Smith resulted in an 11-10 score line at quarter time.
Crows had a minor line-up change which helped a smoother transition of the ball into the goal circle.
Tegan Goldsworthy intercepted beautifully on the circle and Crows scored yet another goal.
Players used their voices at both ends of the court, making an impact on the game.
Cougar Prue Brind had a heavy fall which led to a quick swap, Tayla Barrand moving into WA to end the first half.
Cougars' defenders continued to work well in the third quarter, driving down to assist their attacking end.
Crows were smooth coming down the court and Tasmyn Biddell stood strong in the circle.
Davey flew high to intercept before the circle, helping Cougars to settle.
Moving into the final term, Crows were consistent with their scoring shots.
Cougars' goalies worked hard but their team couldn't counteract Crows' strong defensive pressure.
Final scores: CMS Crows 61, CY Cougars 34.
Ardrossan v Bute
Bute GS Marissa Hewett scored the first goal of the game at Ardrossan.
Play was fast and physical with many contested balls.
Ardrossan WD Tessa Oster took an impressive intercept as Bute attempted to work the ball down the court.
Quarter time: Bute 11, Ardrossan 6.
The game's speed and intensity increased as Ardrossan fought back, winning the quarter by two goals (13 to 11).
Halftime: Bute 22, Ardrossan 19.
The Roos had the first centre pass after the long break, Bute GK Hannah Wellington intercepted the ball in the goal circle and sent it on its way back to Bute's goalies.
Both teams defended strongly and the ball travelled back and forth down the court before either team goaled. Bute won the quarter by two (9 to 7).

Three-quarter time: Bute 31, Ardrossan 26.
Roos put on the pressure in the final quarter, scoring their own goals and creating turnovers.
Bute continued to push back, sinking three in a row to push its lead upwards.
Ardrossan GD Kate Pfeiffer left the court for the blood rule, leaving it one defender on two goalies in the Bute circle, and Bute scored.
Scores for the quarter were Bute 11 to Ardrossan 8.
Final scores: Bute 43, Ardrossan 34.
B grade
CMS Crows v CY Cougars
Both teams started strongly at Stansbury.
CY Cougars converted from the first centre pass, settling nerves in the young line-up.
Crows' defenders put the pressure on, making the most of a couple of turnovers to be up by four at quarter time.
Crows had good flow down the court throughout the first half, assisted by the high work rate of C Elle Moss.
Cougars made a change in their defensive line up for the second quarter, bringing Iluka Zilm-Smith on at GD.
This move helped Cougars make the most of some inaccurate Crows shooting; they won the quarter, decreasing Crows' lead to one goal at halftime.
Another change at halftime helped Cougars to apply pressure in the midcourt and level the scores going into the last quarter.
Erin Cock was brought on at GA for Crows in the final quarter and she helped settle their attack line.
Both teams showed great composure, making the most of any opportunity, and neither really getting the upper hand.
In the dying minutes, Cougars WA Jess Morony took a clear intercept off Tyla Cook, which Cougars converted to get them one in front.
Crows scored a goal with their last centre pass to level the scores; they held off a final run by Cougars and the game finished with scores level at 28-all.

YPNA D GRADE... Lauren Coleman, Wallaroo, attempts to intercept a pass intended for Zara Smith, Southern Eagles.

YPNA E GRADE... Stella Hewett, Bute, stretches to defend a shot at goal by Alexa Simmons, Ardrossan.

YPNA A GRADE... Claudia Hatcher, Moonta, looks to pass over Kadina's Lainey Charlton.

YPNA E GRADE... Stella Clifford, Ardrossan, defends a shot at goal by Alexis May, Bute.

Close competitions across the board

"First Aid Kit" REPORT BY

It was another exciting week of netball on the YPNA courts, granted I think every week is exciting. We focus on the A grade in this column, but across the board there were three draws, which goes to show how tight competition is. I'd also like to apologise for my errors — naturally, with the YPFL celebrating First Nations Round last week, I believed YPNA to also be doing so. Avid netball fans will have to wait a couple more weeks to celebrate First Nations culture and impact on the court.

Round 8 tips

CY Cougars v Paskeville

Paskeville is coming off a break while Cougars had the unenviable task of taking on Crows. There will be so much talent on this court, with both sides featuring some icons of the competition and young, up coming talent. Pasky has snuck up to second spot and needs to keep winning games if it wants to stay in touch with Crows.

At the final whistle... Pasky by three goals.

Bute v CMS Crows

Ardrossan pushed Bute at times, but playing at Ardrossan can do that in the best of conditions. While Bute will have the home court advantage, and some brilliant players across the team, Crows are on top of the table for a reason. This will be a great challenge for Bute, and enable it to see how close it really is to the ladder leader.

At the finals whistle... Crows by 20 goals.

Southern Eagles v Ardrossan

Could this be the week Eagles record their first win? I could say this every week, I realise that. But I feel something special about this match. Ardrossan was consistent against Bute, even outscoring the Roosters in the second term while Eagles are now the only side without a win.

At the final whistle... Eagles by five goals.

Moonta v Wallaroo

A huge congratulations to Moonta for getting its first win last week against Kadina — it was a comprehensive one at that. Wallaroo seems to have finally found what it needed to get some wins on the board. The Dogs were challenged against the Eagles last week, but pushed on to secure a win, something that may have not happened in years gone by. It's commendable and I'd like to see it continue this week.

At the final whistle... Wallaroo by 12 goals.

YP hockey scores and reports

Results 20-5-23 MEN

Moonta Demons 2 d Moonta Lions 1. Best: Rhys Flowers, Jordan Sandercock, Blake Bowden; Ryley Paulson, Stewart Redding, Paul Williams. Goals: Rhys Flowers 2; Stewart Redding. Report: Saturday's showdown was another great contest with Demons running out winners. This win was made more memorable for the fact the last time Demons won a showdown was at least 13 years ago. At the beginning of the season the club was concerned it would be unable to field two teams, but it seems to be undergoing a small rejuvenation. A contest of this quality is a testament to the club's resilience and the commitment of players from both teams. The game was a fierce contest with great hockey on display for spectators. Lions' goalie Jamie Battle and Demons goalie Josh Badenoch faced some serious shots on goal and they rose to the occasion to pull off some great saves. Rhys Flowers was in great form and his positive attack on the ball earned him two goals. The cliché, all players played well, was certainly true for the Demons. Jordan Sandercock and Blake Bowden were in the best players while Lachlan Mill's attacks on the D are improving every week. Will Van Riet played his first game for a couple of years after recovering from a knee injury. Matt Treloar and Braden Frost used their experience to steady the ship when required. The Lions didn't go down without a fight. Ryley Paulson and Stewart Redding literally played themselves to a standstill and displayed some outstanding skills. Paul Williams was at his rebounding best from half-back while Alex Oakley, Peter Powell and Austynn Wendes worked hard. New players Jacob Grinter and Jesse Mills performed strongly under extreme pressure as well. The club is pleased with the progress its teams are making as they come to grips with the style of play required for turf.

Kadina Rebels 0 drew with Kadina Spartans 0. Best: Oliver Garfield, Reece Dayman, Douglas Stock; Aidan Stock, Tim Millard, Aaron King. Report: Saturday's derby between Rebels and Spartans was played on grass with neither team able to break the deadlock. Rebels looked vulnerable at the start of the game with key players missing. Hannah Pridham helped them out for the second week in a row as a permit player while Ollie Garfield was Rebels' best player. Spartans were close to full strength and it seemed Rebels would face a tough battle. In the first quarter, Rebels defended strongly and generated some serious attacks. Matt Crosby arrived about five minutes into the second quarter, and it seemed that his presence might sway the balance in favour of Rebels. Reece Dayman was once again solid in defence, while Douglas Stock, Pridham and Tim Garfield were all doing well. Aidan Stock was the best player for Spartans but he was unusually goalless. Tim Millard played his usual defensive/creative role from the backlines with Connor Tudhope, Aaron King and Brad Westbrook all having an influence on play. In the closing minutes, Spartans still had enough petrol in the tank, care of an interchange rotation, to have one last surge for goal. Rebels desperately held several attacks at bay to produce a drawn game.

WOMEN

Blue Devils 5 d Moonta Flames 1. Best: Georgia McCauley, Chloe Whittaker, Kelly Whittaker; Kerriane Hage, Emma Gloyn, Tia Johnstone. Goals: Georgia McCauley 4, Aries Isgar; Ashlee Frost. Report: Blue Devils kicked off their premiership points account with a convincing win against Moonta. Devils have gathered a number of Ardrossan players and have a formidable list. They have struggled so far this season to get their teamwork going and have not been as successful as they would have liked. They showed signs of increasing cohesiveness in Saturday's game and got better as it progressed. Georgia McCauley was outstanding and is a machine as she runs from D to D. She has great skills and a powerful hit and scored a handful of goals. She was supported by a resilient midfield, including Chloe Whittaker, Kelly Whittaker, Amber Isgar, Aries Isgar and Katie Johnson. Devils opened the game strongly and their midfield had Moonta on the back foot for most of the game.

Moonta lost Sara Marks early in the first quarter and this loss made Moonta's job even harder. Best players for Moonta were defenders Kerriane Hage, goalie Emma Gloyn, Tia Johnstone and Stef Treloar. Ashlee Frost was Moonta's only goalscorer, with a powerful hit from a short corner as the siren went to end the third quarter. Frost showed good skills when she had the ball, unfortunately the Moonta defence and midfield could not give her enough supply. Paula and Piper Bowden are also to be congratulated on their first women's games. Regardless of the score, this was a hard-fought game. If Devils can maintain their form, they can expect to win more during the coming weeks. Moonta is improving but may take a little longer to develop.

YP Tigers 3 d Kadina Bears 1. Best: Rachael Harris, Pria Sandercock, Debbie Venning; Jacqueline Larwood, Amelia Pedler, Caitlyn Ingham. Goals: Rachael Harris 2, Emma King; Jacqueline Larwood.

UNDER 18

SYP 5 d Moonta 3. Best: Douglas Stock, Buya Owen, Daniel Harmer; Blake Bowden, Isobel Meyer, Lachlan Mill. Goals: Buya Owen 2, Aries Isgar, Jed Alderman, Douglas Stock; Eric Warren 2, Blake Bowden.

SHOOTING

Maitland Rifle Club: Results 20-5-23 — It was pleasing to have 10 members present to contest the final stage of the Pointon Trophy from 700 yards. A moderate breeze, which was reasonably consistent, kept most scores high but not as good as the week before. Jeff Dayman set a cracking pace with a 50.5 in TR class, F standard. A class shooter Bill Gillis posted a very handy 59.4 to lead his classification and following immediately after Bill, Chris Tucker in F standard, B class, got off the mound with 55.2. Meanwhile, we had to wait for the last competitor on the score card, Lynton Wakefield, to post an awesome 60.7 in F class open to lead his group. After another shower during the afternoon holding up proceedings, and a few patches of drizzle which we shot through to keep things rolling, the second round top scorers were Michael Dayman in TR with 47.3, John Shobbrook in F open with 60.4, Bill Gillis went two super centres better with 59.6 in F standard A class, and Chris Tucker in F standard B class gleaned a 57.5. Copper Coast Squash Club

Results 16-5-23
Round three was unfortunately disrupted by non-appearance of some players but, with a little shuffling around, most games were completed at the Copper Coast Sport and Leisure Centre, Kadina.

Match of the round included a titanic struggle between Bob Helmers and Lisa Caffyn, who jumped into a higher spot to accommodate the draw.

Lisa showed she could be at home in the number two spot permanently as she took Bob to an unlucky 19-21 loss in the first game.

This long first game took a toll on Lisa, Bob securing the next two games 15-8 and 15-10.

The other match on court two pitted Len Brennan against training partner Grant Donovan. Although Len won in three games, all were competitive.

On court one, Dave Russack played Joel Byrth in an entertaining match; Dave won comfortably 15-5, 15-11, 15-8.

Joel has had a meteoric rise in the past three weeks, from number three to number one, and he showed he should settle in nicely after a few more matches.

At number two, Phil Charles battled to overcome Barry Moyle in three tough games 15-12, 16-14, 19-17.

Barry has returned to squash from a long lay-off and, with a few matches under his belt, will give all players a tough match.

Blake Pedler and Luke

COPPER COAST SQUASH... Barry Moyle serves against Phil Charles.

New report highlights best grain varieties

GRAINS Research and Development Corporation has released its latest National Variety Trials Harvest Reports for southern Australia.

The six reports cover Eyre Peninsula; Northern Victoria; Mallee SA and Victoria; Central SA; High Rainfall SA, Victoria and Tasmania; and Wimmera and Upper South East SA.

GRDC Southern Panel member and research agronomist Andrew Ware said the harvest reports were a useful resource to help growers and advisers make better informed decisions when choosing what crop variety to plant.

“The harvest reports show us the potential of some of the new varieties and how they can perform in a really good year, like 2022,” he said.

“You can use this information and compare it to a year like 2020 where we didn’t have anywhere near that sort of finish.

“If you can grow a variety that yields well in both those scenarios — and there are varieties that can do that — then you have a lot of confidence that your choice will do well whether it’s a good season or a poorer season.

“The harvest reports have up-to-date information on varietal resistance to help growers plan their management strategies.”

The NVT is the largest independent coordinated trial network in the world and harnesses data from more than 650 trials across 300 sites Australia-wide for wheat, barley, canola, chickpea, faba bean, field pea, lentil, lupin, oat and sorghum.

GRDC NVT regional manager south Trevor Garnett said the reports contained accurate, consistent, independent and timely information about existing and newly released commercial varieties.

“The reports help accelerate the adoption of new and superior varieties, ensuring growers can stay at the top of their game and remain profitable,” he said.

“For the past two years, much of the southern region has been wetter than normal, a lot normally drier areas had higher yields and a lot of disease — you wouldn’t want to judge a variety just on how it performed in those two years.

“The harvest reports contain data for the past five years, allowing growers to assess varietal performance across different years and seasonal conditions.

“They really are an essential tool to help growers find a variety that suits their farming system and local climate conditions, while delivering the best likely outcome under forecasted weather”

NVT Harvest Reports can be found at nvt.grdc.com.au/harvest-reports/south.

INFORMED... Data from national variety trials across the southern region ensure the NVT Harvest Reports have all the latest yield, disease and quality information required to help growers make informed variety choices, GRDC spokesperson said. PHOTO: GRDC

Shifting gears for ag students

THE National Centre for Farmer Health has launched a series of school-based resources to educate secondary students about the importance of farm safety.

The program, Shifting Gears, features stories from four diverse agricultural businesses and provides insights into ways safety plays a role in agriculture today.

Shifting Gears is designed for middle and senior school students who are living on farms, studying agriculture and horticulture, completing work experience, and/or interested in pursuing a career in this field.

“Shifting Gears is a unique program that fills a gap in the curriculum,” NCFH director Dr Alison Kennedy said.

“This is an important step forward.

“Our aim is to empower young people to be part of creating a farm safety culture which encourages lifelong safe practices in farming.

“Our team is proud to support educators in delivering farm safety education — and we look forward to seeing the positive impact of the program on students, their families and their communities.

“Thanks to the support of Rural Bank, Shifting Gears videos will be freely accessible on our NCFH website and YouTube channel.”

Rural Bank head of agribusiness development Andrew Smith said they were proud to support the program.

“We know the importance of delivering messages in a relatable way is key to the uptake of learning, and believe that NCFH has been able to achieve this,” he said.

In defence of South Australia and disgust of NSW exceptionalism

I have been patiently waiting for the drivel to roll in, from Mr Perrottet, Alan Jones and others just like him. And we beggar in your shadow, in your self-illuminated shrine, of course, our state a lonely graveyard, in comparison to thine!

We know the lovely blue harbour, with the bridge and terrific view, a fantastic place to live there, if owning a few million or two. I believe your lovely real estate is the most expensive on the globe, your state has the most homeless, of no fixed abode.

But you praise your state terrific and all our states with doom, why we fight with all our power, to save our souls from gloom. So, before you lance other states, expand your mind and range, take a drink for your liver and be kind for a change.

Now, all our NSW farmers, afflicted with the terrible recent drought, got instant hay and all assistance, from Australian people farthest out. So, against all your best people, living in super cities you defend, why, I back these common folk, these common folk, from the land.

All the previous NSW politicians, why he turns on them in blame, compared to his own performance, theirs is measured simply lame. And we wonder Dominic Perrottet, did you finally really find that in comparison to those others, you're a legend in your mind?

Lowering myself in a Queensland lunchroom at least I'll know where I am because for days I could go missing in another Sydney traffic jam. Come and visit our SA call centre, come and see where we dwell, because our lowly second-class citizens have never seen such a swell.

No doubt your best people were the only ones to defend our land? Pity no-one phoned the SA call centre, to come and lend a hand. So, we will try and battle on, with the stoutest hearts we may and if good fortune favours us, we may be as good as you some day.

Enough drivel Dominic Perrottet! Let me give you some advice. I am drinking the world best sparkling shiraz from SA and it's on ice! Please do stay in Sydney, with the tourists and the push, for SA will never love you, City Bushman, you'll never love the bush!

The ending of a magical series

I WAS not ready for the emotional send-off of Firefly Lane, season two, part two.

As seems to be the new trend on Netflix, we had to wait quite a while for the second half of the last season, I guess to build anticipation.

Thankfully they had a little recap before the first episode, because who can ever really remember the last episode after such a long wait?

Best friends Tully Hart (Katherine Heigl) and Kate Mularkey (Sarah Chalke) navigate a break-up and a make-up in the final episodes of this drama.

To recap season one, which first aired in 2021, Tully and Kate meet as young girls on Firefly Lane and become inseparable friends throughout 30 years of ups and downs.

The series flicks between the past and present, giving us an insight into their friendship as teenagers, young adults navigating their first jobs, and present as new obstacles come their way.

The final episodes are bittersweet to say the least and if you haven't watched until the end then maybe stop reading here.

*Spoiler alert: As Kate endures cancer treatment, Tully prepares for her life without her best friend, and I can tell you now, no tears are spared in these final episodes.

The series still goes between the past and present which will pull on every one of your heartstrings and make the final episode that much more emotional.

So, if you're not ready for a good cry I wouldn't recommend this series; however, in all honesty, it is a story with a great mix of friendship, hardship and hope.

HOT FISHING TIPS

with Greg James www.gregjamesfishing.com.au

Welcome to the column with all the hot tips for fishing around Yorke Peninsula; contact Greg by email at greg@gregjamesfishing.com.au.
Wallaroo: I took the new tinny out to Point Riley on Monday last week and managed to return safely with a feed of squid and blue swimmer crabs, which are still about and full of meat. Many other boaties were regularly moving location, an indication the fishing was slow. I slowly fished my way down south of the jetty. The jetty has squid and tommy ruff (Australian herring) after dusk.
Port Hughes/Moonta Bay: A colleague fished Tipara Reef before packing up and heading over to Streaky Bay in his caravan last week. Slow tides did not help but he caught King George whiting, squid and sprat tommyies. Garfish reports are slow but the jetties have a few squid. Mullet are in the shallows at Cooper Beach on the high tide.
Point Turton: Those rat kingfish pillaged the jetty again last week as anglers tried for squid, tommy ruff and garfish. Boat crews chased whiting, snook and gummy sharks from The Pines and Corny Point.
Marion Bay/Stenhouse Bay: The run of big tommyies continues from both jetties and off the rocks at Foul Bay and Mizzie Flat. A couple of large KG whiting were caught from next to the Foul Bay boat ramp on Sunday when the winds eased a tad. Mullet are off Browns Beach, Gym Beach and the Dust Bowl.
Edithburgh: Tommyies and salmon trout are at the jetties at Edithburgh and Wool Bay/Port Giles. Boat crews reported KG whiting, squid and garfish from Wattle Bay, Marion Reef and Troubridge Island (north).
Ardrossan: Large numbers of travellers are towing vans and tinnies to this part of YP at the moment. Garfish, tommyies, squid and blueys are the main targets with the odd KG whiting coming from the deeper water drops on a fast tide. The jetty has tommyies and small squid.

Tight lines and see you next week!
