Big boost for regional economy

YP Field Days president Greg Stevens says the event has a huge impact on the regional economy.

Journalist: Michelle Daw

THE Yorke Peninsula Field Days is the biggest single event in the region, and president Greg Stevens says it delivers a huge multiplier effect on the local economy.

He estimates it generates between $5 and $8 million through accommodation, food, fuel, other purchases, and site fees paid by exhibitors.

"If 25,000 people come through the gates and each spends about $100 at the field days, that's $2.5M," he says.

"In addition, there are major orders that might be placed at the field days.

"If someone buys a header, that's $1.7M.

"There's probably close to $200M worth of plant and equipment on show, and if you got five per cent of that, you're talking up to $10M in sales."

Mr Stevens says the impact continues after the event.

"Small farmers who may not be able to buy a brand-new header can buy a traded-in one.

"The reason they can do that is because someone else has bought a new header at the field days."

Orders for new equipment often flow on well beyond the three-day event. One local machinery dealer has even booked an area at the Paskeville site for demonstrations after the field days, so clients can see new machinery in operation.

That economic impact is set to grow, with the scheduled completion later this year of a new $680,000 function centre at the site, designed to host commercial and community events year-round. Seating 100 people, it will feature full AV facilities, an adjoining commercial kitchen and an enclosed courtyard.

Built in the form of a steel grain silo to match the adjoining office and toilet block, the venue is already attracting interest.

"Local machinery dealers want to use it for product launches, and we'll also promote it to the wider community for major celebrations such as weddings," Greg says.

"These events will generate business and employment by creating new demand for catering, accommodation and transport, and encouraging more people to make return visits."

Gleaming complex heralds new era

An artist's impression of the completed function centre and office complex at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days site, Paskeville.

ATTENDEES at the 2025 Yorke Peninsula Field Days will get a glimpse of the future when they see the striking exterior of the $680,000 function centre being developed at the Paskeville site.

The centre will accommodate training sessions, conferences, product launches and weddings, with seating for 100 people, full AV facilities, an adjoining commercial kitchen and an enclosed courtyard.

The interior fit out is expected to be completed later this year, then the centre will be made available to host agricultural and community activities. These will generate economic and social benefits for the wider region and extend use of the site beyond the biennial field days.

The centre has been constructed using an Ahrens steel silo, to reflect the success of Yorke Peninsula's grain industry and to match the adjoining new office complex and toilet block.

The complex is prominently sited at the front of the Paskeville site, facing the Copper Coast Highway.

YP Field Days president Greg Stevens thanked the South Australian Government for providing a $400,000 grant and the Copper Coast Council for providing a $200,000 loan for the function centre.

He also thanked companies, farming families and individuals who provided cash and in-kind contributions to support the project.

The office and toilet block, completed as stage one of the project, cost $672,000 and was funded by YPFD and a $200,000 loan from Copper Coast Council.

The new office was officially opened in early July and has replaced the temporary office used by staff and committee members since the original office building was destroyed by arson in 2019.

Take a road trip with Tricia Stringer

Wallaroo author
Tricia Stringer.

POPULAR local author Tricia Stringer will launch her new book, The Road Trip, at the field days.

The launch will take place at the Guest Speaker Centre at 2.30pm on Wednesday, October 1 — the same day the book is released to the market.

Tricia said the novel covers familiar territory for anyone who has taken a long road trip with family or friends — with a few unexpected twists.

Lead character Sharyn Tregonning wants a glamorous holiday to celebrate her 60th birthday, and is furious when her husband Barry surprises her with a caravan trip from Adelaide to Broome. To make matters worse, Barry's annoying friend Ray and Ray's reclusive, frumpy sister Kathleen are joining them.

Tempers fray as mishaps and accidents unfold, but the two women begin to bond as they journey through The Kimberley and deal with the mystery of a dead body.

Tricia said the story was inspired by her own caravan trip to Broome with her husband, Daryl Stringer.

"When you're caravanning all sorts of things happen and I talked to other caravanners about the things that happened to them," she said.

"Some of the things that happen in the story actually happened in real life, but I'm not going to say which ones I'm responsible for."

The Road Trip is Tricia's 18th novel for adults, written at her home in Wallaroo.

She said she was thrilled to launch the book at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

"It's a bit exciting because this is my home patch," she said.

"I just love the fact that it's getting its first airing in my community. I think I'm lucky to live in this community — even if they're not readers, people are very interested and encouraging.

"And the field days are so special, it's a fantastic drawcard for our area."

Rose grower of international renown, Gavin Woods from Kadina will talk about growing beautiful roses, at the 2025 Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Gavin's petals of wisdom

KADINA'S Gavin Woods will bring 50 years of experience growing, exhibiting and judging roses to this year's YP Field Days guest speaker program.

Gavin started showing dahlias aged 15 and has flourished into a dominant force in the field.

"My mother was a florist and I was dragged along with her to get flowers, so I started showing flowers quite young," he said.

"I was never good at sport as a kid, but I was always quite competitive."

Gavin is now president of the Rose Society of South Australia, vice-president of the World Federation of Rose Societies, and has twice served as national president.

At the 2022 World Rose Convention, Gavin was one of four people presented with the Australian Rose Award for outstanding service to the rose.

The 'queen of flowers' has taken Gavin and his partner Kim around the world to explore significant rose gardens and judge roses, most recently in Japan.

"There's many places I wouldn't have been or seen if it weren't for roses," he said.

"But we won't be focusing on that, we'll be focusing on how people can get the best out of their own garden just for their own enjoyment.

"Yorke Peninsula's one of the best places in the world to grow roses, so I'll be highlighting that and going through what I call the seven steps to growing great roses."

While there won't be any roses on display (they don't start flowering until about a fortnight after the field days), there will be myth-busting and freebies.

"I may well have rose plants to give away but I'll certainly have Neutrog (fertiliser) product and rose society gear to give away."

You can hear Gavin speak in the Guest Speaker Centre at 11.30am and 1.30pm on Wednesday, October 1.

Mem Fox is in town

BELOVED children's author Mem Fox will be a star attraction at this year's field days.

Ms Fox will deliver two talks as part of the guest speaker program, presented by the Cunliffe Women in Agriculture and Business and the Arthurlton Women's Agricultural Bureau.

She has written more than 40 books for children, including Time for Bed, Where Is the Green Sheep?, Ten Little Fingers and Ten Little Toes, and the enduring classic Possum Magic.

First published in 1983, Possum Magic became Australia's best-selling picture book and is still available in hardback more than 30 years later. That same year, Ms Fox became Australia's best-selling author and has remained a leading figure in children's literature for generations.

Her latest book, Meerkat Mayhem, illustrated by Judy Horacek, was published in November.

Ms Fox has also written several non-fiction books for adults, including the widely acclaimed Reading Magic, which champions the importance of reading aloud to children.

A lifelong advocate for early childhood education and literacy, Ms Fox said nothing gives her more joy than sharing her stories with young audiences.

"There's nothing I enjoy more than watching the joy on children's faces as I fill their hearts and imaginations with my stories," she said.

She believes expressive reading is key to nurturing a love of books in young children.

"The more expressively we read, the more fantastic the experience will be," she said.

"The more our kids love books, the more they'll pretend to read them; and the more they pretend to read, the more quickly they'll learn to read.

Mem Fox, Australia's foremost writer of picture books for young children — including Possum Magic, and Where is the Green Sheep?

"Reading aloud is not quite enough — we need to read aloud well.

"When we read the story, we are usually familiar with it. We should like it. And naturally we'll maintain our enthusiasm for it — even if we've read it five thousand times.

"The ups and downs of our voices, and our pauses and points of emphasis are like music, literally, to the ears of young children, and young children love music.

"Simple tunes also make anything easier to remember, so it's useful to read a book in exactly the same way every time and... to read the same book over and over again.

"The more quickly children pick up the 'tune' of the words, the more they'll remember the words and the more quickly they'll have fun trying to 'read' the story themselves, with the same expression as we do."

Born in Melbourne, Ms Fox grew up in Zimbabwe and studied drama in England before returning to Australia in 1970. She later became an associate professor of literacy studies at Flinders University, South Australia, where she taught for 24 years.

Mem Fox will speak at the Guest Speakers' Centre at 10am and 1pm on Tuesday, September 30.

Fashions on the farm

WALLAROO boutique Moda Bella will showcase its spring collection in the Cunliffe Women in Agriculture and Business Fashion Show, after winning Best Pavilion Site at the 2023 Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Moda Bella founder and owner Hannah Pattingale — originally from a farming family in Port Broughton — has attended the field days since childhood and is excited to increase her involvement.

"From performing in the local school choir to having a stall at the previous two events and now having this opportunity with the fashion show is extremely exciting," she said.

"Being part of the field days and contributing to community spirit is important to me. Plus, it's entertainment for the ladies, and I hope it reminds people to come and visit us in the shop."

Hannah said she and her staff go above and beyond to help customers find the perfect piece, with new styles arriving weekly.

Moda Bella has been dressing Yorke Peninsula women for almost six years. Offering everything from casual daywear to special occasion attire, the boutique is a one-stop shop for all ages, shapes and sizes.

Inclusivity is part of the Moda Bella mission, with models in the fashion show to include Hannah's family, friends, staff and customers.

"We're hoping to have women from their 20s to their 70s modelling," she said. "It's a fashion show catered to the everyday woman — affordable, high quality, and with something for everyone."

The Cunliffe Women in Agriculture and Business Fashion Show will be held at 10am and noon on Thursday, October 2.

Moda Bella's bricks-and-mortar store is located in the Wallaroo Shopping Centre, next to Drakes.

Hannah Pattingale is excited to present Moda Bella's fashions in the Guest Speaker Centre.

Amee Dennis — fibre artist, farmer, designer, storyteller

FROM the paddock to the runway, gallery and beyond, South Australian fibre artist and farmer Amee Dennis is reshaping how we connect with the origins of what we wear and value.

Owner of Quentin Park Alpacos and Studio Gallery in Peterborough, Amee raises alpacos and transforms their fleece into handmade accessories and artworks that celebrate the fibre's natural colours and textures — and the stories behind them.

Before alpacos, Amee spent over a decade at Curtin Springs in central Australia, where she developed Curtin Springs Paper — a handcrafted paper made from native grasses — and launched three handmade jewellery collections.

Her “paddock to product” approach has taken her from some of Australia's most remote landscapes to the runways of Eco Fashion Week Australia in both Perth and Italy. There, she stood out as the only designer to grow and produce the raw materials for her collection.

In 2023, Amee relocated to Peterborough, bringing with her not only a herd of alpacos but a creative practice grounded in sustainability, storytelling and connection to place.

She has since rebuilt her business from the ground up, transforming Quentin Park into a working farm, gallery and agritourism destination.

Resilience and reinvention have defined her journey. What began as a drought-driven idea in New South Wales has evolved into a thriving enterprise that champions local production, creative thinking and ethical practices.

Whether she's speaking on stage, designing for the runway, or welcoming visitors to her farm, Amee encourages people to reconsider where their products come from — and why that story matters.

Don't miss Amee Dennis at the YPFD Guest Speaker Centre on Wednesday, October 1, at 10.30am and 12.30pm.

Cricketer a draw card

FORMER Australian test cricket spin bowler Brad Hogg should feel right at home at this year's YP Field Days, having grown up on a wheat and sheep farm at Narrogin in Western Australia's wheatbelt.

He will share lessons from his cricket career and life on the land when he appears in the Wallaroo Football and Netball Clubs bar and bistro at 4pm on Tuesday, September 30, and Wednesday, October 1.

Brad will also remind audience members about the importance of balance, connection and looking out for each other, as part of his role as national ambassador for the Farmer Mates Mental Health Initiative, led by Grain Producers Australia.

The initiative, supported by Lifeline, Rural Aid, the Grains Research and Development Corporation and Nufarm Australia, is helping bring conversations about mental health to regional communities and supporting the wellbeing of farmers and their families.

Brad shares important messages at community events and other forums, such as field days, while speaking openly about his personal experience with mental health.

“We want people to know that they're never alone, and that help is always a phone call away if they need it,” he said.

The Wallaroo Football and Netball Clubs bar and bistro is at Site 1155 Arthurlton Road.

Cricket legend Brad Hogg tours Australia on behalf of the Farmer Mates Mental Health Initiative.

Gluten-free living made simple

Kathleen Sisson from the Coeliac Society of South Australia will demonstrate how to make gluten-free rough puff pastry — perfect for sausage rolls — and gluten-free New York mini cheesecakes at the field days.

FOR Kathleen Sisson, supporting people with coeliac disease is more than a profession — it is personal.

A registered nurse with 27 years of experience, Kathleen has spent the past eight years working as a community and industry liaison, nurse educator and advocate at Gluten Matters — The Coeliac Society of South Australia Inc.

In July 2023, after serving seven years on its executive committee, she was elected society president, and she has also held a two-year term on the Coeliac Australia board.

Kathleen's nursing career has always been guided by a belief in the power of communication, education and support to improve patient outcomes.

Her focus is on creating a supportive environment for people with coeliac disease and related conditions, equipping them with the tools and skills to live healthy, independent and resilient lives.

Her passion is also deeply personal. With coeliac disease present on both sides of her family, Kathleen brings a unique blend of professional expertise and lived experience. She understands the daily challenges faced by clients and their families and is committed to making the gluten-free lifestyle more approachable.

At the Yorke Peninsula Field Days, Kathleen will share practical insights in the kitchen, demonstrating two recipes: gluten free New York mini cheesecakes and a versatile gluten free rough puff butter pastry, perfect for quiches, sausage rolls and pasties.

About Gluten Matters

Gluten Matters is the trading name of the Coeliac Society of South Australia Inc.

Established in 1975, the charitable organisation has supported South Australians and Northern Territorians living with coeliac disease, dermatitis herpetiformis, gluten intolerance and other associated conditions for nearly 50 years.

Its mission is to provide advice, advocacy and community to all who require a gluten-free diet to protect their health and wellbeing.

You can catch Kathleen in the Guest Speaker Centre on Thursday, October 2, at 11am and 1pm.

The Thermomix advantage: fuelling long days with smart prep

DISCOVER delicious creations and find out how the latest version of the well-known Thermomix can help you get through the busy harvest season.

Yorke, Mid North, Barossa and beyond Thermomix team leader Kimberly Hamilton, of Minlaton, has been a regular attendee at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days — but this is her first time attending as a Thermomix representative.

Her father previously had a site at every event, and she said she had only ever missed one in her life.

Kim said this year's focus would be on showing people how the Thermomix could help make life easier during the harvest season.

“We want to show the functions and features of the Thermomix, but also how it can help people — whether it be saving them some time, saving money, health, energy, and those sorts of things,” Kim said.

“Hay season, harvest season — everyone's busy. They don't call it the busy season for no reason.”

She said being organised — and having a few meal prep options ready — can make all the difference.

“In the first session we're going to focus on the prepping — steaming the eggs, chicken and salmon all at the same time so they can be used over the next few days in different dishes,” she said.

The demonstrations will also feature some of the new functionalities of the newly released Thermomix TM7 model including open-lid cooking, as well as the cutter accessory of the TM6, which will soon be available for the latest model.

The second session will focus on quick and easy snacks and “fillers” for lunchboxes such as side salads, wraps and scrolls.

“If you've got grated carrots, sliced cucumbers, shredded chicken, boiled eggs and other bits and pieces ready in the fridge, you're more likely to throw something together in a bowl and head out,” she said. “It's easier than reaching for a packet of chips or something less healthy.”

She said it's all about convenience and making better food choices during busy periods.

Cookidoo, the Thermomix recipe platform, has over 100,000 recipes that can help with meal planning and creating shopping lists; it even connects to Woolworths for online ordering.

“The aim is to take the pressure off during the busy season with simple, tasty food, and also help people use their Thermomix to get organised and keep everyone fed,” Kim said.

You can watch Kim and the Thermomix TM7 in action in the Guest Speaker Centre at 11am and 2pm on Tuesday, September 30.

The Yorke, Mid North, Barossa and Beyond Thermomix team leader Kimberly Hamilton says the newly released TM7 is perfect for fuelling long days in the paddock.

Rachael steps up — second in command

Journalist: Sarah Herrmann

YORKE Peninsula Field Days vice-president Rachael Ayles brings a strong tourism and events background, and a passion for women's and children's involvement in agriculture, to the biennial event.

Originally from Adelaide, Rachael married local farmer Craig and moved to Willamulka in 2006.

Having worked as a tourism and events coordinator for Copper Coast Council, including as chief executive of the Kernewek Lowender Copper Coast Cornish Festival, she took time off to raise her young family.

"It was a very well-timed phone call because I was at home and I was happy raising a family but getting a little bit bored and a field days committee member called and asked if I would like to join," Rachael said.

"I got the Greens Plains Children's Track up and going, that's my little project.

"This year we have a waitlist of exhibitors that would like to join it, so the success of that and getting the younger generation involved in the field days has been great."

Rachael said, at this year's event, which will be her third as a committee member, she is looking forward to meeting all the people who make the field days and wider industry special.

"Last year I was gifted a ticket to a women's ag lunch, and I remember just sitting in that room full of women who were so passionate about agriculture and farming and their businesses and the community.

"It made me realise this is not just running an event, this has got so much more potential."

Message from Member for Grey, Tom Venning MP

IT IS a great honour to officially open the 2025 Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Established in 1894, and now Australia's oldest field days, this event continues to attract the very best our region has to offer, with about 500 exhibitors on show.

The YP Field Days have long been a highlight of the agricultural calendar, bringing together farmers, industry leaders and regional communities to celebrate the strength of our sector.

For me, this occasion carries both professional and personal significance. My father was an active contributor, including as a volunteer and later as a judge in the machinery sections.

As a child, I always loved coming to Paskeville — whether it was chasing down the Centre State Exports soft footballs (many of which are still kicking about today) or marvelling at the latest machinery on display. That excitement has stayed with me as an adult.

These days I still enjoy seeing the innovation on show, but I also value the chance to sit in a pavilion meeting constituents, hearing directly from the people who make regional South Australia thrive, so please come and say hello at my site.

Events like the YP Field Days are vital to our state's agricultural story. They give an unrivalled opportunity for producers to connect with each other, as well as manufacturers, innovators, and service providers from right across the country. This exchange of ideas and technology ensures farmers stay at the forefront of innovation and productivity.

Just as importantly, the field days are a major economic driver. Thousands of visitors bring business to local shops, accommodation, and hospitality, boosting jobs and reinforcing Yorke Peninsula's reputation as a hub of agricultural excellence.

I congratulate the organisers, volunteers, exhibitors and sponsors who make the YP Field Days possible, and I look forward to all that this year's event will bring.

Official opening moved to first day

This year's official opening of the Yorke Peninsula Field Days will take place at 3pm on Tuesday, September 30 — the first day of the event.

Traditionally held on the second day, the opening has been brought forward in a change of format.

YP Field Days chief executive Peter Anderson said the adjustment made practical sense.

"We are very pleased to have Tom Venning open the field days this year, and visitors are welcome to attend the Guest Speaker Centre to hear his opening address," Mr Anderson said.

"Tom's family have been farmers in the region for generations, and to my knowledge this is the first time the sitting federal member has opened the YP Field Days.

"This will be followed by the presentation of awards to winning YPFD exhibitors, including for best new release of a product in the broadacre or general categories, and the best site awards."

Medical accommodation a saving grace

BACK surgery, bowel cancer, brain aneurysm, eye surgery, hip replacement, kidney transplant, leukaemia, stroke — these are just a few of the serious ailments clients of this year's YP Field Days official charity have faced.

Fortunately, rural people can call on Cottages 4 Country Care for accommodation when accessing medical services in Adelaide.

Last year, the charity hosted families for 2032 nights in its cottages and facilitated more than 1400 nights in partner hotels, saving on average a 350 kilometre round trip per booking.

Founded in 2008 as Rosemary's Place, C4CC's mission is to ease emotional and financial pressures by providing secure, self-contained accommodation to those who face the tyranny of distance.

C4CC operates six cosy cottages in Wayville and Unley, each with a full kitchen, free wi-fi, peaceful living spaces, private outdoor areas and laundry facilities.

When cottages are full, C4CC can arrange hotel rooms at partner venues across Adelaide, securing reduced corporate rates and handling bookings so families can focus on care.

Rural families with a valid medical referral can book quickly and easily with a single phone call.

Long-time volunteer Dianne Farrell says C4CC has hosted a number of Yorke Peninsula residents, including a stroke survivor from Maitland, a liver transplant recoveree from Wallaroo, and a Kadina woman with a high-risk pregnancy.

“We don't have funding to advertise but we're a much-needed organisation, so we are very honoured to be chosen as this year's charity,” Dianne said.

“Because we're a volunteer organisation and we've, in 17 years, not received any government funding, creating awareness and fundraising is key.

“Every cent that is donated goes to the charity — it doesn't go into advertising or salaries.”

Dianne, who has been involved with C4CC since its inception, said people can call her seven days a week to make a booking.

“We do aim to be a forever charity, because there's such a need for accommodation in Adelaide,” she said.

“You've got Ronald McDonald, Cancer Council, Under Our Roof, Leukaemia Foundation ... if you've got anything other than cancer or you're not a child, where do you go?”

“It's an honour and a pleasure to help country people every single day.”

Visit the C4CC site in the Cyclone Pavilion to find out more about it does, enjoy some fun and games, and donate.

For more information, visit cottages4countrycare.org.au or call Dianne on 0416 722 870.

Cottages 4 Country Care provides accommodation for rural people accessing medical services in Adelaide, including Kadina twins Billy and Zali, whose parents Simone and Nick Hewett stayed with the charity for 13 nights.

Historic medallion pulled from the ashes

The 1898 Northern YP Bute Field Trials and Show Society medal awarded to Stanley Freeman for ploughing.

THE Yorke Peninsula Field Days, first held in 1894, are the oldest in Australia — and now a precious artefact from the event's early days has been rediscovered.

While searching through the field days' former temporary office building at the Paskeville site recently, treasurer Rosalie Pearce came upon a scorched cardboard box.

To her delight, when she opened it, she discovered a medallion awarded to Stanley Freeman in 1898 by the Northern YP Bute Field Trials and Show Society, forerunner of Yorke Peninsula Field Days

Incorporated.

The medallion, stored in a plastic bag inside a silver cardboard box, had surprisingly survived the 2019 fire that destroyed the original administration building.

Remarkably, it was unaffected by the intense heat, along with three sheets of paper carefully wrapped around it.

Stanley Freeman owned a farm south of Wallaroo, east of the Moonta railway line. He travelled to a field trial site near Bute to attend an event hosted by the society on August 5, 1898, where he was awarded the medallion as first prize for ploughing.

In 2009, the medallion was donated to the YPFDC committee by Stanley Freeman's great-grandson Peter McDonald, of Broken Hill South.

The little scorched box was found in the ashes after the fire, then stored away for safekeeping and forgotten, its contents unknown.

The medallion will now be displayed in a glass cabinet in the recently completed YPFDC administration building, showcasing a historical artefact from the oldest field days in Australia.

Muster up for working dogs

Working dogs such as this one bred by Merv Simmonds of Gramer Border Collie stud at Willamulka will show off their skills at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Journalist: Michelle Daw

FOR fans of ABC TV's popular Muster Dogs series, the Yorke Peninsula Field Days offer a great chance to see some of Australia's top Kelpies and Border Collies in real-life action.

Working dog trials will run daily from 9 am to 5 pm in an arena on Dowlingville Road, near Main Entrance Gate West.

More than 100 dogs and handlers will compete in the novice, improver and open classes. Each pair will aim to guide three sheep through a series of obstacles within 15 minutes.

Competitors begin with 100 points, with judges deducting for faults such as sheep going off course, refusing to move or missing obstacles.

Trials convener Merv Simmonds says judges will be looking for calm and effective control of the sheep.

Merv, who breeds Border Collies at his Gramer Stud in Willamulka — between Kadina, Bute and Paskeville — will also compete.

A 12-month-old dog from the stud, Jazz, will make her trials debut with her owner, Kulpara farmer Ruth Millard.

"Jazz has been amazing — she has a lot of natural instinct," Ruth says.

"She's already done a couple of big jobs for me on the farm.

"The first trial could be a bit overwhelming for her, so it's more about getting her used to being in a competitive setting."

Ruth also competes with her other working dog, Ella, at trials around the state. She said trialling honed the dogs' skills and helped them learn to move sheep more precisely on the farm.

Ruth and her husband Tim run 350 Merino ewes and produce prime lambs crossbred with White Suffolks.

Merv Simmonds says interest in working dog trials has grown since the Muster Dogs series began in 2022, particularly among people from non-rural backgrounds.

"People are seeing what a dog can do, and they appreciate their value," he says.

"Their reward is to work — they love working. Their prime motivation in life is to be out working and pleasing their master.

"As long as you give them a pat and a feed at the end of the day, they're happy."

A study released by ANZ in August valued Australia's 270,000 working livestock dogs at approximately $3 billion. These dogs are found on sheep stations, cattle properties, mixed farms, feedlots, in livestock transport and at saleyards. They assist producers and agents in managing more than 70 million sheep and around 25 million cattle.

The study estimated that working dogs save about $800 million in labour costs and contribute an additional $600 million to regional economies. These gains stem from improved farm efficiency, such as reduced vehicle use and the capacity to manage larger flocks and herds.

Merv agrees that working dogs are not only economically valuable but also play an essential role in low-stress stock handling.

"They move stock more calmly than people on motorbikes can," he says.

He also emphasises the emotional support they provide.

"Dogs are known as man's best friend, and that's particularly true for working dogs," he says.

"Farmers can be working on their own all day — but you're never alone with a working dog by your side."

Kulpara farmer Ruth Millard and her dog, Jazz, will compete in the working dog trials at the field days.

LEARN how woollen garments are produced, from the sheep's back to your back, by visiting the Murray Allen Wool and Sheep Pavilion on Alford Road.

The program will include daily shearing demonstrations and wool fashion parades, plus static displays and trade sites, and the junior sheep and wool judging competition on Wednesday, October 1.

The pavilion will also have a quiet space where children and parents recharge with interactive activities, such as colouring-in, and each child will receive a free Sam the Lamb colouring book to take home.

Activities in the pavilion are co-ordinated by Carolyn and Grant Johnson, who breed Poll Merino, White Suffolk and Poll Dorset sheep at their Carcuma North Stud near Peake, in the Murray Mallee.

"People will be able to see first-hand the raw product coming off the sheep and follow along the processing journey in information around the pavilion, finishing in the fashion parade which will showcase local Merino garments," Carolyn said.

"The shearing demonstrations will be hosted by the Shearing Contractors' Association of Australia and they will have information available for people who would like to investigate a job pathway and training in the shearing industry."

The junior sheep and wool judging competition is open to people aged from 12 to 25 years; it is free to enter and offers cash and other prizes.

"Participants will be able to practise and develop animal and fleece visual assessment that connects to what helps improve profitability for sheep producers," Carolyn said.

The competition is sponsored by the Australian Wool Network, Merino SA, YP Field Days, Australian Wool Innovations, and Carolyn and Grant Johnson.

See the full program for the Murray Allen Wool and Sheep Pavilion on page 42.

Merino wool takes centre stage

THE Yorke Peninsula Field Days will once again feature the much-loved fashion parades produced by media personality Nadia Stamp, bringing a cross-section of new season styles, sustainability and Australian-made fashion to the catwalk.

This year marks Nadia's ninth YP Field Days fashion production, and she says audiences can expect the strongest showcase yet.

"I am thrilled to have such a strong display of Merino fashion in my shows that go beyond standard knitwear," she says.

"Merino fashion isn't only limited to winter garments. It's truly come such a long way. My mission is to make wool cool again!"

Among the highlights will be Crestwell Australia, a South Australian brand producing premium knitwear and apparel made on demand by Silver Fleece in Adelaide using Australian Merino wool and premium cotton. Crestwell merges elevated sportswear with timeless luxury, combining heritage with innovation through exceptional craftsmanship, 3D knitting technology and next-to-zero waste production.

The parades will also feature new labels Green Hip workwear and Zerafima, alongside Australian-grown Merino brands including Merino Polo, and Iris & Wool.

YP Field Day favourites Mickello, Bullrush, Petite Voyage by Huntress The Label, Moda Bella, and Prudie & Primmie will also be showcased.

Audiences can look forward to a brand-new parade layout and interactive styling sessions, with models from Finesse Model Management bringing the latest looks to life under Nadia's direction.

Visitors will even have the chance to enter a daily competition and take home some amazing beauty products, while learning practical "how-to"

tips for refreshing everyday style and building a sustainable wardrobe.

A touch-and-feel fashion display will allow audiences to connect with fabrics, and for the first time, a new sustainability segment will showcase a collection made entirely of pre-loved fashion.

Designed by RMIT fashion student Annabelle Lazarevski, the segment highlights creative ways to repurpose garments and embrace slow fashion.

Join Nadia and her fashion parades in the Murray Allen Wool and Sheep Pavilion, shows daily at 11.30am, 1pm and 2.30pm.

Luke reflects on the legacy and future of YPFD

Journalist: Austinn Lane

ARTHURTON farmer Luke Graham has served on the Yorke Peninsula Field Days committee since 2019.

"Agriculture has always been at the heart of who I am — I'm a fifth-generation farmer from Arthurton, where my wife Tara and I crop 1700 hectares of wheat, barley and lentils," he said.

With a growing family — soon to be three children — Luke said he is proud to continue a farming legacy that stretches back more than 100 years.

The field days hold a special place in his heart.

"It's more than just an event — it's a celebration of farming, community, and innovation," he said.

Having attended field days across the country, including AgQuip in Gunnedah, the Wimmera and Elmore Field Days in Victoria, and the Eyre Peninsula Field Days in Cleve, Luke understands the value of these events.

"I have seen firsthand how important such gatherings are.

"They provide farmers with the opportunity to keep up to date with the latest machinery, technology and practices that continue to shape our industry."

While the YP Field Days have evolved significantly in recent years, he said their purpose remained unchanged: bringing people together, sharing knowledge and showcasing the future of farming.

"That's why our business was proud to sponsor the new field days office complex.

"It's an investment not only in the future of the event, but also in the local farming community that benefits so greatly from it."

Luke said supporting the field days is about giving back to an organisation that has supported generations of farmers before him — and will continue to support generations to come.

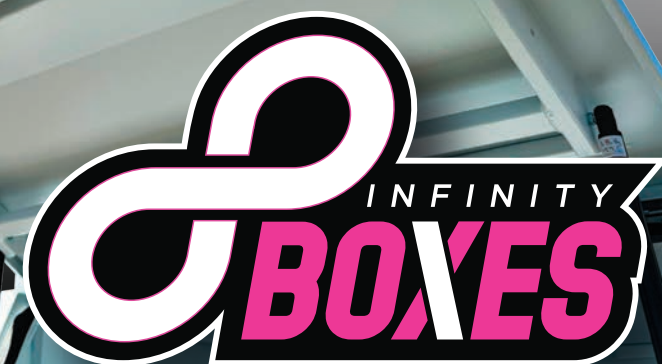

"For me, the Yorke Peninsula Field Days are a reminder of where we've come from, where we're heading, and why I'm so proud to be part of this community."

Luke Graham, from Arthurton, has served on the committee for four editions of the Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Wildeye Mobile App: Farm data at your fingertips

Advertising promotion

IN AGRICULTURE, having the right information, presented clearly and in real time, can help save time, water and money.

It also plays a vital role in keeping operations safe, particularly when it comes to understanding conditions such as Delta-T and the Fire Danger Index.

The Wildeye Remote Monitoring mobile app brings all this data together in one easy-to-use platform, whether you're in the paddock, the ute or the office.

Built for farmers, farm managers and agronomists, the app brings together data from Wildeye-connected weather stations, soil moisture sensors, tank and dam monitors, and water meters. It delivers the latest logged data as soon as your Wildeye device uploads, giving you a clear view of your operation in real time.

Users can switch easily between three view.

Widget view gives you the latest data and quick stats at a glance. Graph view helps you track changes and spot trends over time. Map view overlays all your Wildeye devices on satellite imagery using Google Earth, giving you spatial context and full farm visibility.

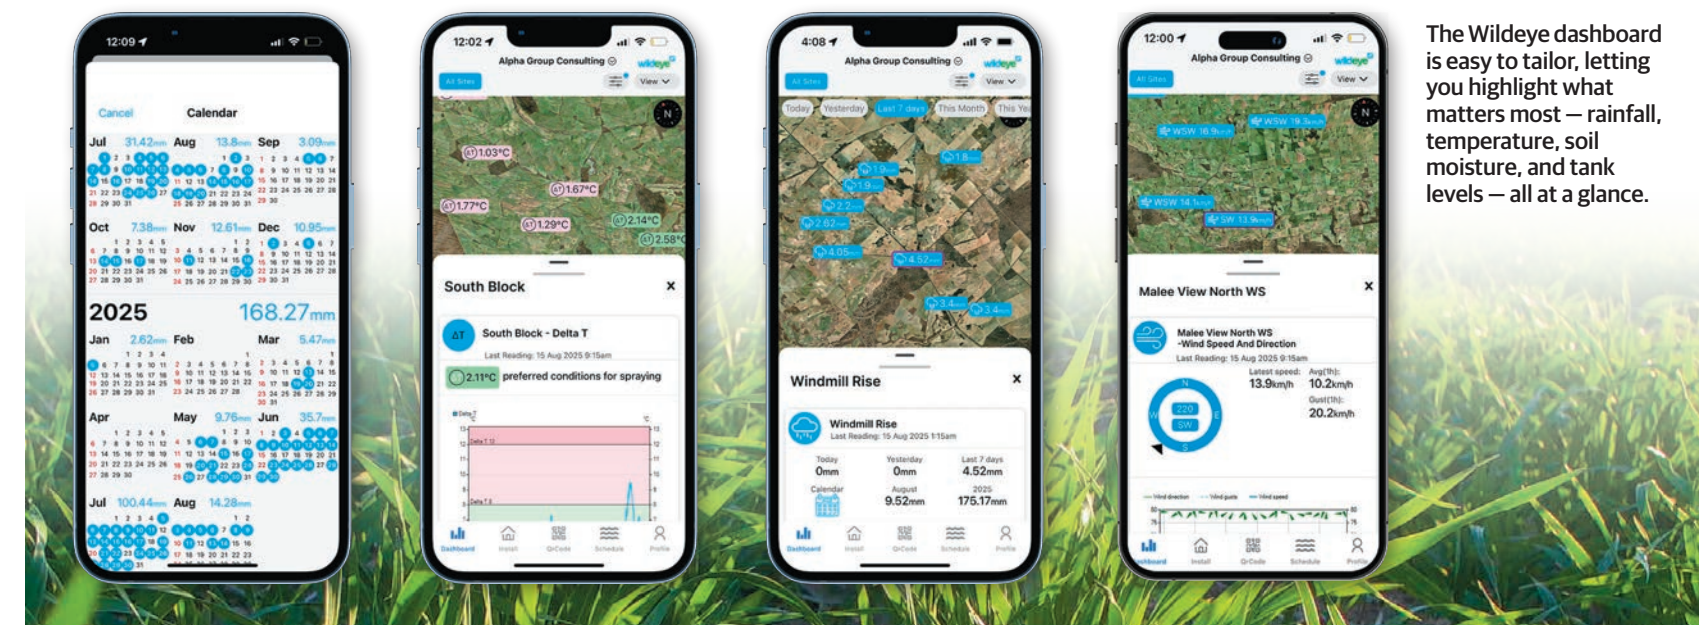

The app's customisable platform lets you prioritise key metrics such as rainfall, temperature, soil moisture, and storage levels — so you see what matters most, first.

Alarms and alerts notify you when conditions fall outside your preferred thresholds. Whether it's a drop in tank levels, rapid soil moisture loss, or an unexpected weather event, alerts are sent straight to your phone so you can act quickly.

Designed with simplicity in mind, the Wildeye app helps you spend less time hunting for data and more time making smart, informed decisions.

Wherever you are, Wildeye keeps you connected to your farm's vital stats.

The Wildeye dashboard is easy to tailor, letting you highlight what matters most — rainfall, temperature, soil moisture, and tank levels — all at a glance.

IMMANUEL College has been a home away from home for generations, offering a supportive, family-style environment for around 170 boarders.

As Australia's third-oldest co-educational private boarding school, boarding has been central to Immanuel since 1895. Today, the modern boarding house remains a vibrant and welcoming part of campus life.

Boarding at Immanuel is more than just accommodation – it's a supported journey to independence.

Students live in a nurturing environment where they grow academically, socially and personally, gaining valuable life skills along the way.

Davyn, a year 12 boarder from Yorke Peninsula, shares:

"Boarding at Immanuel has helped me grow into a confident and independent person.

"Living with others has taught me teamwork and patience.

"The friendships I've made are so special – we've grown together and shared so many memories. I'm beyond grateful."

Boarders benefit from state-of-the-art facilities, caring staff, academic support and a strong sense of community.

Whether through shared meals, weekend activities or everyday routines, boarding life fosters resilience, leadership and lifelong friendships.

Due to high demand, early applications are encouraged via www.immanuel.sa.edu.au.

Learning for life on the land

What if your child has a passion for agriculture?

Immanuel prepares students to lead the farms of the future by blending traditional skills with innovation, business and technology.

From year 10, students can explore electives such as drone craft, agribusiness and metals engineering.

In years 11 and 12, they can tailor their SACE with subjects including business innovation, accounting, legal studies, marketing and engineering.

Through partnerships with specialist agricultural education providers and VET courses in primary production, horticulture and animal care, students gain hands-on experience that complements their studies.

Immanuel's curriculum equips students to thrive in modern agricultural careers and contribute to an evolving industry.

Field day helps 'broaden horizons'

Journalist: Michelle Daw

FIFTH-generation Kulpura farmer Tim Millard sees a bright future for the Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

As a member of the field days committee and the Paskeville Agricultural Bureau, he is one of many volunteers who help stage the biennial event.

Tim says that, despite the wealth of information available online about farm equipment and machinery, there is no substitute for seeing products in person.

"Quite often, a lot of the latest tech is brought to the YP Field Days because it is one of the largest events of its kind," he says.

"I still learn plenty from the bit of time I get to walk around myself and check out the newer innovations.

"It's always good to look at things physically. You can do all the research you want online, but sometimes it isn't as valuable as seeing it."

He adds that the field days are also a great opportunity to ask company representatives questions and to discover brands or types of equipment that may not appear on your radar online.

"Every YP Field Days I find there's something new that I've never seen before or never been exposed to," he says.

"That's very valuable because it broadens your horizons.

"Quite often as farmers, we get stuck in our little bubble and don't venture too far, so it's good when the gear and equipment comes to you."

Members of the agricultural bureaus involved in the YP Field Days hold weekly busy bees in the six weeks leading up to each event, doing jobs such as mowing, weeding, painting, line marking and cleaning buildings inside and out.

Each bureau also has its own responsibility – for example, the Paskeville Agricultural Bureau runs the Robert Bawden Museum, which displays historical artefacts relating to the field days and the bureaus that support it.

Although Tim has been officially involved for the past 10 years, the field days have always been part of his life.

As a boy, he accompanied his grandfather, Howard "HB" Miller, who captured the people and attractions of the field as its official photographer. His father, Col, a former president of the Paskeville Ag Bureau, still volunteers at the busy bees.

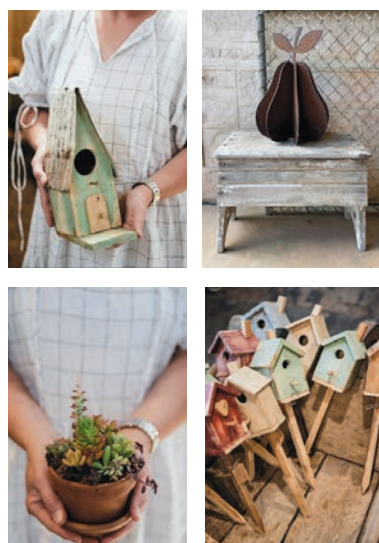

Tim says the changing demographics of farming have led the YP Field Days to broaden its volunteer base.

"The family farm tends to be getting bigger in scale, and the amount of workforce required on the same area is less, so there are fewer people in rural areas in general," he says.

"We're looking further afield for volunteers or committee members who aren't necessarily directly involved in farming.

"Their opinions and thoughts are very welcome on the committee for a different perspective."

YP Field Days committee member Tim Millard.

Seymour College: A boarding experience that feels like family

Advertising promotion

FOR Yorke Peninsula parents Kylie and Michael Cook, Seymour College stood out from the beginning — not just for its reputation, but for the warmth they felt from the very first conversation.

“Once we visited and saw the beautiful grounds and met the staff, we knew it was the right place,” Kylie says.

With both daughters, Matilda (year 11) and Annabelle (year 9), now boarding at Seymour, the family has found confidence in their decision and comfort in knowing their girls feel at home.

Matilda, who began boarding in 2024, says it's the people who've made the biggest impact.

“The sisterhood in the Boarding House is strong — it really does feel like a second family,” she says.

“The staff are supportive and genuinely interested in our lives, and the shared traditions, weekend activities and friendships with day girls help create a strong sense of belonging.”

For Matilda, the green, expansive campus also made a difference.

“Sometimes I forget I'm even in the city, the spaces make it feel just like home.” She adds that the presence of other ‘Yorke’ girls helped her settle quickly: “I always knew there'd be familiar faces around.”

Annabelle, who joined her older sister this term, echoes that sentiment.

“Even though I've only just started, everyone has gone out of their way to make me feel like I belong. It already feels like home.”

Kylie has seen both girls grow in different ways.

“Annabelle already seems happier and more confident.

“For Matilda, boarding has given her a chance to grow into her own identity.”

Her advice for other regional families considering boarding?

“Be guided by your child — look closely at subject offerings and co-curricular opportunities, and find the one that best suits your child.

“It is much easier when it's something they genuinely want.”

Seymour College students Annabelle and Matilda, with their parents, Michael and Kylie Cook, on their Yorke Peninsula property.

Big enough to know. Small enough to care.

Plenty of fun for little farmers

THE youngest visitors to the Yorke Peninsula Field Days can explore and enjoy all things agricultural at the all-new Little Farmers Zone.

Located at 845 Alford Road, the zone is a joint initiative of the YPFDD committee and the Arthurton Women's Agricultural Bureau. Both groups were keen to offer more activities for children, especially with this year's event taking place during the school holidays.

Committee and AWAB member Jessamy Correll said the space will give children a chance to connect, play and learn through hands-on experiences.

"Children can pedal their own tractor through a circuit to earn their very own tractor licence, or dig for fresh potatoes and learn how they grow," she said.

"They can throw a lamb's fleece onto a wool table like a roustabout in a shearing shed, or even mill their own grain from local wheat."

Parental supervision is required for all children participating in the Little Farmers Zone.

All activities are free, and the zone will be open daily until 3.30pm.

Explore careers in agriculture

CHILDREN and young people attending this year's Yorke Peninsula Field Days will have the chance to explore the exciting world of agriculture at the newly revamped Ag Learning Centre.

Coordinated by Kadina Memorial School, with support from the Agricultural Teachers Association of South Australia and ag teachers from across the Mid North, the centre is designed to spark curiosity and introduce future careers in agriculture.

Lead agriculture teacher with AgCommunicators, Sue Pratt, said the centre will offer a vibrant, hands-on learning experience for children of all ages.

"The Ag Learning Centre will be a welcoming space for our younger visitors," she said.

"There'll be farm animals to meet, interactive displays on grains and fibre, and even virtual reality headsets to bring agricultural concepts to life.

"A new feature for 2025 is a strong focus on careers in agriculture, with teachers available to chat with young people about post-school pathways and provide useful resources."

Kadina Memorial School teacher Darcy Cousins is leading the development of this year's exhibits, bringing fresh energy and new ideas to the learning space.

The Ag Learning Centre is located on Alford Road and is a stop on the Green Plains Track, making it easy for families to include in their visit to the field days.

The centre will be open daily from 9.30am to 4pm.

The Ag Learning Centre at YP Field Days will have a focus on careers in agriculture. Addelyn and George from Yorketown Area School prepare George, one of the school's led steers, for the grand parade and the handler and led classes at the Copper Coast Show.

Cornish mining World Heritage bid building momentum

Advertising promotion

THE historic copper mining landscapes of Burra and Moonta are a step closer to UNESCO World Heritage listing, following more than two decades of work by local volunteers and heritage advocates.

The bid is being led by a consortium comprising the Regional Council of Goyder, Copper Coast Council and the National Trust of South Australia.

It has recently received support from the South Australian Government, with Minister for Tourism Zoe Bettison and Senator Karen Grogan touring the sites in August, alongside UK-based World Heritage consultant Barry Gamble.

A reception hosted by Her Excellency the Honourable Frances Adamson, Governor of South Australia, brought together the bid consortium, community leaders and heritage advocates to discuss the global significance of the sites.

Located within the Burra and Moonta Mines National Heritage Areas, the two sites are among the best-preserved examples of 19th century copper mining in Australia.

Internationally recognised for their innovation and cultural legacy, the sites represent the first major transfer of Cornish mining technology to South Australia, beginning in the 1840s.

This transfer, supported by migration from Cornwall between 1846 and 1886, contributed significantly to the development of mining communities in Australia and influenced mining practices in New Zealand, North America and South Africa.

The sites' distinctive enginehouses illustrate how Cornish mining methods and skills were successfully adapted to the Australian context. They also highlight SA's contribution to global copper production. Notably, the Moonta Mining Company was the first in Australia to return £1 million in dividends, establishing the region's place in the international mining economy.

The Australian Cornish Mining Sites: Burra and Moonta are listed on both the state and national heritage registers.

A formal request for world heritage preliminary assessment was submitted to UNESCO earlier this month; if successful, the bid will proceed to a full nomination, with its submission planned for 2028.

Community members are encouraged to follow the bid's progress online or visit the team at the Grant Pavilion during the Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Catch up with the WSB team at the YP Field Days

Advertising promotion

WSB Distributors is heading to this year's Yorke Peninsula Field Days — and we'd love you to stop by.

It's a great chance to meet our local team, chat with staff from across our network, and get up close to the gear we stand behind.

We'll have a strong line-up on display, including the latest from Massey Ferguson and Fendt (AGCO), alongside equipment from Yamaha, Krone, Kubota, Manitou and more.

Whether you're after broadacre solutions or machinery for smaller blocks, there's plenty to see.

This year marks a milestone as WSB settles into its new Maitland location at 28 Robert Street.

As the exclusive AGCO dealer for Yorke Peninsula, this is another step in our 87-year history of supporting South Australian farmers.

You'll see familiar faces including Phil Rowntree and Nick Rodda.

"We're locals — we know the conditions and understand what farmers here need," Nick says.

The Maitland shop currently offers parts ordering and pick-up, with additional services on the way.

Diesel technician Jesse May is also based locally, providing on-farm servicing and support, backed by the WSB Clare team.

We're also offering field days specials.

From September 1 to October 2, get 10 per cent off genuine AGCO, Manitou or Kubota filters, and 5 per cent off genuine AGCO lubricants.

Spend $500 or more on eligible filter kits or lubricants — or book a service during the Field Days and spend $500 or more — and you'll go into the draw to win a gas-fired pizza oven.

Visit us at the WSB site to meet the sales, service and parts teams, check out the latest machinery, and see how we can help you get the most out of your farm.

WSB Distributors has everything you need to grow!

Check out the latest line-up of Fendt and Massey Ferguson tractors at the WSB Distributors site.

Adult one-day pass — $25 at the gate; $22 online
Child one-day pass — 12-18 years, $5 at the gate and online; under 12 years, free

Car parking

Free car parking is available in the western and eastern car parks. Parking is not permitted within the static display area.

Disabled parking

Areas have been set aside for people holding disabled parking permits and are located at the main gate and on the northern side of the main eastern and western entrances. Look for the disabled parking signs on the site map.

Official program

The official program and entry to all displays, demonstrations and pavilions are free.

Official charity

Cottages 4 Country Care has been selected by the YP Field Days committee as the YP Field Days official charity for 2025. You can find the charity at Site 1, Cyclone Pavilion.

Facilities

EFTPOS facilities are available at the intersection of Office and Bute roads.

Parcel pick-up — a YP Field Days courtesy service

Want to buy something but it's too big to carry? Use the free parcel pick-up service. Parcel pick-up dockets are available at exhibitor sites. Bookings to use the service must be made at the parcel pick-up office at the Mackley Road (side door) entrance of the Larwood Pavilion. Please allow time for the goods to be picked up from their point of purchase and delivered to the parcel pick-up depots at the site entrance gates in the western and eastern car parks.

Emergency services

Should you require the assistance of St John first aid, police or emergency services, they are located by the main front gate on Office Road.

Parenting facilities

A parenting facility with ready access to a toilet and baby changing, feeding and rest areas is located at Site 755 Paskeville Road.

Rest areas

Outdoor seating and rest areas are located throughout the site for the comfort of visitors.

No dogs allowed on site

Please don't bring your dog with you, as due to public health and safety issues, NO DOGS will be allowed on the YP Field Days site with the exception of guide dogs, hearing dogs and specific dogs which are part of the YP Field Days program.

Rostrevor College

Rostrevor College is a Catholic all boys day and boarding College in the Edmund Rice Tradition. Boarding at Walford, her way

Advertising promotion

LOCATED in Hyde Park, just 3.5 kilometres from Adelaide's CBD, Walford Anglican School for Girls empowers students to embark on an educational journey tailored to their needs and aspirations.

An Excellence Awardee for Boarding School of the Year in the 2024 Australian Education Awards, the Walford Boarding House offers comfort, care and belonging within the Secondary School campus.

Boarders describe it as a place where they receive an outstanding education while making lifelong friendships with their boarding 'sisters'.

The boarding community is just the right size for every girl to be known, while still feeling like family and a home away from home.

Principal Dr Deborah Netolicky described the Boarding House as a close-knit environment where girls flourish academically, socially and personally.

"We pride ourselves on our family-like boarding environment of care, safety and belonging, with modern facilities that set the standard for contemporary living, learning and leading," she said.

The Boarding House offers ensuite bathrooms with both shared and private rooms, alongside communal spaces that foster connection.

Movie nights and shared meals at the Fig Tree Cafe strengthen bonds, while a vibrant weekend program provides opportunities for fun, friendship and exploring Adelaide.

"Our dedicated boarding staff are committed to truly knowing each girl and understanding their individual needs," Dr Netolicky said.

"We create a welcoming, supportive environment that cultivates independence, self-confidence and respect."

While academic excellence is central, Walford's boarding philosophy also nurtures individual talents and prepares students for life beyond school.

With personalised support and diverse co-curricular opportunities, girls are encouraged to discover passions and build skills outside the classroom.

Head of Boarding Edwina Birrell said parents are partners in the boarding journey.

"We actively engage with parents to ensure their involvement," she said.

"Choosing Walford means choosing a nurturing community where your daughter can grow, thrive and find her place in the world."

DMS: Your local mobile heavy diesel reparer

Advertising promotion

FOR those who live and work on the land, having reliable machinery is non-negotiable. That's why Donald Mechanical Services (DMS) is proud to offer an honest, skilled and local mechanical service that comes to you.

With over 15 years of experience under his belt, Casey Donald has launched his own mobile heavy diesel mechanic service, covering Yorke Peninsula and surrounding areas.

From tractors, sprayers and combine harvesters to trucks, trailers and specialised equipment, Casey brings extensive knowledge, genuine care and a practical approach to every job he does.

A familiar face to many local farmers, Casey spent almost a decade working with one of the peninsula's most reputable machinery dealerships, specialising in top-tier brands.

Now, as a one-person operation with hopes to expand in the future, he's combining dealership-level expertise with small-business service — honest, approachable and competitively priced.

"I wanted to offer farmers a service with integrity," Casey says.

"If someone's broken down in the middle of harvest or seeding, they need help then and there, not a waitlist, which is why I offer after-hours breakdown support."

Casey's mobile service means he can come straight to your paddock, yard or shed.

Whether you're running agricultural machinery, earthmoving gear, road transport vehicles, commercial marine engines, or anything in between, he's got you covered.

He is passionate about keeping local businesses moving, and that's earned him a strong rapport with the farming community.

With no big company overheads, Casey can keep his rates competitive while delivering high-quality workmanship built on integrity.

"I will be at this year's Yorke Peninsula Field Days — so if you see me around, don't hesitate to say g'day and have a chat about how I can support your operation," he says.

Ahrens: Number 1 in rural infrastructure

Advertising promotion

FOR more than 120 years, Ahrens has been a trusted partner for Australian farmers, providing high-quality, locally manufactured grain storage and handling solutions that optimise efficiency and productivity.

Ahrens offers a complete range of flat-bottom and transportable silos, fertiliser silos, field bins, livestock feeders and grain handling systems — all built to Australian standards and backed by an industry-leading five-year warranty.

With manufacturing facilities in SA, VIC, NSW and QLD, Ahrens ensures faster production and delivery to keep farms running smoothly.

Their partnership with Brandt further enhances their offering, providing farmers with high-performance grain augers and belt conveyors featuring hydraulic winches, electric clutches and advanced mover systems to streamline handling operations.

With stock available now and expert after-sales support, Ahrens helps you get the most out of your investment.

In addition to rural infrastructure, Ahrens proudly delivers premium water storage solutions through Pioneer Water Tanks — Australia's leading large-scale water tank manufacturer.

Designed for durability, Pioneer tanks are trusted by farmers nationwide to capture, store and safeguard one of our most critical resources.

From domestic water storage to large-scale agricultural systems, Pioneer offers a range of capacities and accessories to suit each application, all backed by over 35 years of experience and engineering expertise.

Ahrens is committed to continuous improvement, investing in advanced manufacturing technology to increase capacity and efficiency.

Their vertically integrated approach provides greater cost control, faster turnaround times and consistent product quality — ensuring the best value for farmers.

Beyond manufacturing, Ahrens offers comprehensive servicing and maintenance, including 10-point silo and field bin inspections, welding and on-site repairs to keep infrastructure performing at its best post-harvest.

For custom-built or scalable rural infrastructure solutions, trust Australia's no. 1 rural infrastructure specialist.

Contact Ahrens today on 1800 810 420 or visit www.ahrensrural.com.au to find the right solution for your farm.

Join the growing trend of Australian farmers turning to Ahrens to strengthen their operations with high-quality and cost-effective rural infrastructure. Haulmark Trailers: built tough for Australia

Advertising promotion

HAULMARK Trailers (Australia) Pty Ltd is a proudly Australian, privately owned company established in Brisbane in 1963.

Over six decades, Haulmark has earned a reputation as one of the nation's leading designers and manufacturers of road transport equipment.

While Haulmark trailers operate across the country, the name is most closely associated with the road train regions of Queensland, the Northern Territory and Western Australia, where tough conditions demand equipment built to endure.

Haulmark manufactures a wide range of trailers for the transport industry, with strong representation in the livestock, earthmoving, mining and construction sectors.

Thanks to its specialised manufacturing facilities, the company also produces custom-built trailers for unique transport tasks, delivering equipment that maximises efficiency while reducing whole-of-life operating costs.

As the road transport industry has grown more sophisticated, so too has Haulmark.

The company now employs more than 300 people and operates branches in Brisbane, Townsville, Adelaide and Darwin, positioning itself as a high-quality specialist manufacturer and repairer trusted across Australia.

In 1998, Haulmark expanded its capabilities with the establishment of a specialised Tanker and Dangerous Goods division.

This division designs, manufactures and repairs equipment for the fuel and dangerous goods sector, supported by advanced on-site testing and facilities.

With compliance and reliability at the forefront, the division services a growing customer base with stringent industry requirements.

With a strong and diverse client base spread across metropolitan, regional and remote areas, Haulmark understands the importance of dependable support.

The company maintains a comprehensive spare parts inventory to ensure reliability, minimise downtime and keep customers moving.

From its beginnings in Brisbane to its role today as a leading name in road transport equipment, Haulmark remains committed to designing and building trailers that can stand up to the demands of Australia's toughest conditions.

Built for Australia's toughest conditions — Haulmark trailers deliver strength, reliability and efficiency across industries nationwide.

Fieldworks SA: your local precision ag specialists

Advertising promotion

FIELDWORKS SA is gearing up for this year's Yorke Peninsula Field Days — its local event and a highlight on the calendar for showcasing the best in agricultural technology and support.

Operating from nearby Bute, Fieldworks SA is a family-run business committed to helping Australian farmers embrace practical, cutting-edge solutions.

The team specialises in the sales, installation and servicing of Trimble GPS systems, the Carbon Bee camera spraying system, and BBLeap retrofit PWM spray control systems.

Each is designed to reduce chemical use, improve accuracy and save time in the paddock.

To keep growers connected, Fieldworks SA also operates its own RTK correction network, providing a fast, reliable and accurate signal across the region.

The business is also proud to be the trusted KUHN dealer for the Yorke Peninsula and Mid North, supplying a wide range of machinery including balers, spreaders, rakes and more.

Whether it's hay season, seeding or harvest, KUHN equipment is backed by Fieldworks SA's dependable service and support.

At the heart of the business is its motto — Passion for Precision.

The team takes a practical, farmer-first approach to everything they do, delivering proactive solutions that perform in the paddock, not just on paper.

By combining innovative technology with hands-on support, Fieldworks SA helps local growers get the best out of their machinery and their land.

The field days provide the perfect chance to see this approach in action. Visitors are invited to drop by the Fieldworks SA site to discover the latest in ag tech, ask questions and explore tailored options for their operation.

From upgrading spray systems to improving guidance or securing reliable local machinery, Fieldworks SA has the expertise and equipment to help.

The Carbon Bee Smart Striker X camera spraying system, fitted to a Case Patriot 4450, delivers precision weed control with less chemical use — available locally through Fieldworks SA.

A nurturing community, building lifelong opportunities

Advertising promotion

WITH a 90-acre campus as their backyard, boarders at St Peter's College enjoy a spacious and inspiring environment — one where they can explore their passions, feel a strong sense of belonging, and embrace every opportunity with confidence.

At the heart of this experience is the School & Allen Boarding House.

More than just a place to live, it is the hub of the boarding community, where each boy is personally known and individually valued.

Boarding at St Peter's College is a genuine partnership between students, families, teachers and staff, creating an exceptional environment for growth and learning.

The boarding team is dedicated to fostering a culture of inclusivity and care, prioritising kindness, connection and a true sense of family.

This approach ensures every boarder feels supported to develop independence, resilience and lifelong friendships.

House vice-captain Ben Allen, who grew up in Arthurton, speaks highly of the bonds forged within this community of boys from rural, regional, interstate and international backgrounds.

"The School & Allen House culture thrives on community and brotherhood.

"I'm deeply appreciative of the friendships and connections I've formed, and I value the role the boarding house has played in supporting my personal growth at SPSC."

The School acknowledges the commitment families make in choosing boarding and works hard to ensure parents feel connected and reassured that their sons' wellbeing and development are always the top priority.

With strong support networks, a welcoming environment and access to outstanding academic and co-curricular opportunities, boarding at St Peter's College provides the foundation for lifelong learning and success.

Boarders at St Peter's College enjoy a supportive community, lifelong friendships and opportunities to grow both inside and outside the classroom.

Keyhole mining: a smarter and cleaner approach to copper

EnviroCopper is assessing the potential for in-situ recovery of copper at its initial Alford West test site, where the resource lies in a narrow, weathered belt encased in hard rock — an ideal setting for ISR.

Advertising promotion

FOR the past eight years, EnviroCopper has been working to re-establish copper mining at the heritage Kapunda mine site using a low-impact, small-footprint and environmentally acceptable method of extraction called in-situ recovery (ISR).

This approach, often referred to as “keyhole” mining, involves no physical movement of rock, no open-cut pits, waste dumps or tailings dams.

ISR is generally more acceptable to local communities, as it can be done alongside other land use activities such as farming and tourism.

EnviroCopper is now taking the lessons learned at Kapunda to a second project north of Kadina, where working in partnership with local farmers is critical.

The company’s journey at Kapunda has focused on listening to concerns and educating people about the ISR process — a strategy that continues at the Alford West project.

At Alford West, copper sits in a narrow, weathered belt encased in surrounding hard rock — an ideal setting for ISR. EnviroCopper has been working closely with the local farmer at the initial test site (pictured) to assess its potential.

ISR is a cost-effective method of producing copper, a resource in high demand as the world transitions to electrification. The process can directly produce copper cathode, bypassing smelting and reducing both costs and emissions. With its low footprint, the ground can return to previous use quickly and completely after recovery.

All activities are overseen by the EPA and supported by a network of monitoring bores, along with a detailed groundwater monitoring and management plan.

Built for Australia, smarter and faster

Advertising promotion

OUTBACK Building Group believes great design should be straightforward, practical and built to last.

As an Australian-owned business, the company understands what it takes to construct buildings that can withstand the country’s toughest conditions.

Across Australia, demand for prefabricated and modular construction is growing, thanks to its speed, cost savings and reduced environmental impact.

From cosy cabins and extra living space for growing families to fully equipped staff accommodation on remote sites, modular building is opening new possibilities.

Every Outback Building Group project is custom-made to suit the client’s space, lifestyle and budget.

The team delivers for industries including mining, farming, construction and private housing, producing everything from single units to camp-style setups with kitchens, bathrooms and communal areas.

The company also simplifies the process by managing council applications on behalf of clients, streamlining approvals so projects can move forward faster.

Modular construction helps avoid many of the frustrations of traditional building: long delays, budget blowouts and unpredictable results.

Instead, it offers faster timelines, greater cost certainty and a more sustainable approach — all without compromising on quality.

Whether it’s a backyard addition, a remote installation or a more efficient way to build, Outback Building Group’s experienced team guides clients from approvals through to final handover.

The result is a prefabricated, custom-made modular home built to suit individual needs and lifestyles.

From augers to mowers: SYP Motors delivers

Advertising promotion

SYP Motors will once again be on show at the YP Field Days, continuing a proud tradition that spans more than three decades.

Based in Minlaton and owned by Ian and Anne Dreckow since 1981, the business has long been a trusted name for quality machinery and customer service across the region.

As the sole South Australian dealer for Australian-designed and built GrainRite augers, SYP Motors will showcase this essential farm implement, with stock available for the coming harvest.

Also on display will be the premium range of Ferris zero-turn ride-on mowers.

Renowned for their robust construction, advanced suspension and operator comfort, Ferris mowers offer models to suit everyone from residential users to commercial operators.

Over the years, Ian and Anne have built a reputation for stocking a wide range of reliable garden care products.

For 35 years, they have proudly supplied Australian-owned Cox ride-on mowers, Briggs & Stratton engines — including the powerful Vanguard big block auger engines — the ever-popular Victa mowers, Briggs & Stratton power products such as generators, and an extensive range of Stihl garden equipment.

The Ferris zero-turn ride-on mower — engineered for strength, comfort and efficiency for residential lawns to demanding commercial jobs.

Visitors are warmly invited to stop by the SYP Motors at Site 814 Alford West Road and see how the team can help with harvest, garden and property care needs.

AW Vater & Co: our strength is in the ground

Advertising promotion

FOR more than six decades, AW Vater & Co has stood shoulder-to-shoulder with South Australian farmers, helping them grow better crops, healthier livestock and stronger businesses.

From its beginnings as a small, family-run operation in the Mid North to its expansion into Yorke Peninsula, AW Vater & Co has grown into one of the state’s most trusted independent rural suppliers.

Through it all, the company’s heart has never left the paddocks, communities and people that shaped it.

The mission has always been simple: give local farmers the confidence, products and know-how they need to get the job done right.

Farming isn’t just about yields — it’s about families, communities and the next generation who depend on the land. That’s why the Vater team is still out in the field, checking crops, solving problems and sharing a laugh over the ute tray.

The Yorke Peninsula Field Days at Paskeville hold a special place in the AW Vater & Co story.

Every two years, this iconic event brings together the very best of South Australian agriculture.

For the Vater team, it’s more than a showcase — it’s a chance to reconnect with customers, swap stories, share new solutions and celebrate the spirit of farming on the peninsula.

AW Vater & Co has been part of the YP Field Days for decades, watching the event grow just as it has, and is proud to support its future by sponsoring the new function centre and office.

A visit to AW Vater & Co at Site 952 Bute Road means more than meeting suppliers. It’s a chance to meet neighbours, friends and people who’ve got your back all year round.

Whether you are there for advice, products or just a good yarn, you’ll leave with confidence for the season ahead.

Because, for AW Vater & Co, it’s simple: its strength is — and always will be — in the ground.

JetWave: driving innovation, backed by Australian manufacturing

Advertising promotion

FOR more than three decades, JetWave has pioneered the future of high-pressure water cleaning equipment.

Founded in 1992, the company began with a simple mission: to build machines that could withstand Australia's harshest conditions while delivering unmatched reliability and performance.

Today, that mission has grown into a legacy of innovation and leadership — with JetWave now recognised as one of the industry's global leaders.

Innovation at its core

JetWave doesn't just build machines — it reimagines them from the ground up.

The Generation 2 Series exemplifies this vision, with every detail engineered for operator value, safety and durability.

From premium Italian pumps to next-generation frames, every component is carefully considered to create equipment that stands the test of time.

Proudly Australian made

All JetWave machines are designed and manufactured in Adelaide.

By keeping production local, JetWave maintains strict quality control while supporting Australian jobs, skills and suppliers.

This commitment ensures customers can rely on genuine Aussie-made toughness, backed by responsive local support and technical expertise.

Global reach, local strength

While proudly Australian made, JetWave exports to markets across the globe — including Taiwan, Belgium, Spain, Africa, New Zealand and more.

Dealers, operators and industries worldwide trust JetWave because the company delivers more than machines — it delivers peace of mind.

A strong dealer network and on-site servicing ensure that customers always have local support when they need it most.

Leading the industry forward

JetWave continues to set the benchmark for reliability, toughness and innovation in industrial cleaning.

From agriculture to mining, plumbing to infrastructure, its equipment provides solutions that unlock productivity and new revenue opportunities for operators everywhere.

As the industry evolves, JetWave's focus remains clear: to be the most esteemed and dependable manufacturer of high-pressure cleaning equipment — made in Australia, built for the world.

Pastoral Panels: Australian-made yards built to last

Advertising promotion

BASED in Mildura, Victoria, Pastoral Panels is proudly 100 per cent Australian owned and operated.

The company designs and supplies permanent and semi-permanent stock yard kits, feeders and loading ramps — built to suit operations of every size, from hobby farms to large-scale enterprises.

Designed, tested and refined by experienced pastoralists, every product reflects a deep understanding of the day-to-day demands of livestock work.

Safety, durability and efficient stock flow are at the heart of every design.

The semi-permanent range is especially popular for its ease of use — fast to assemble with no welding or concreting required.

It's ideal for those who need strength and stability, without the hassle of complex installation.

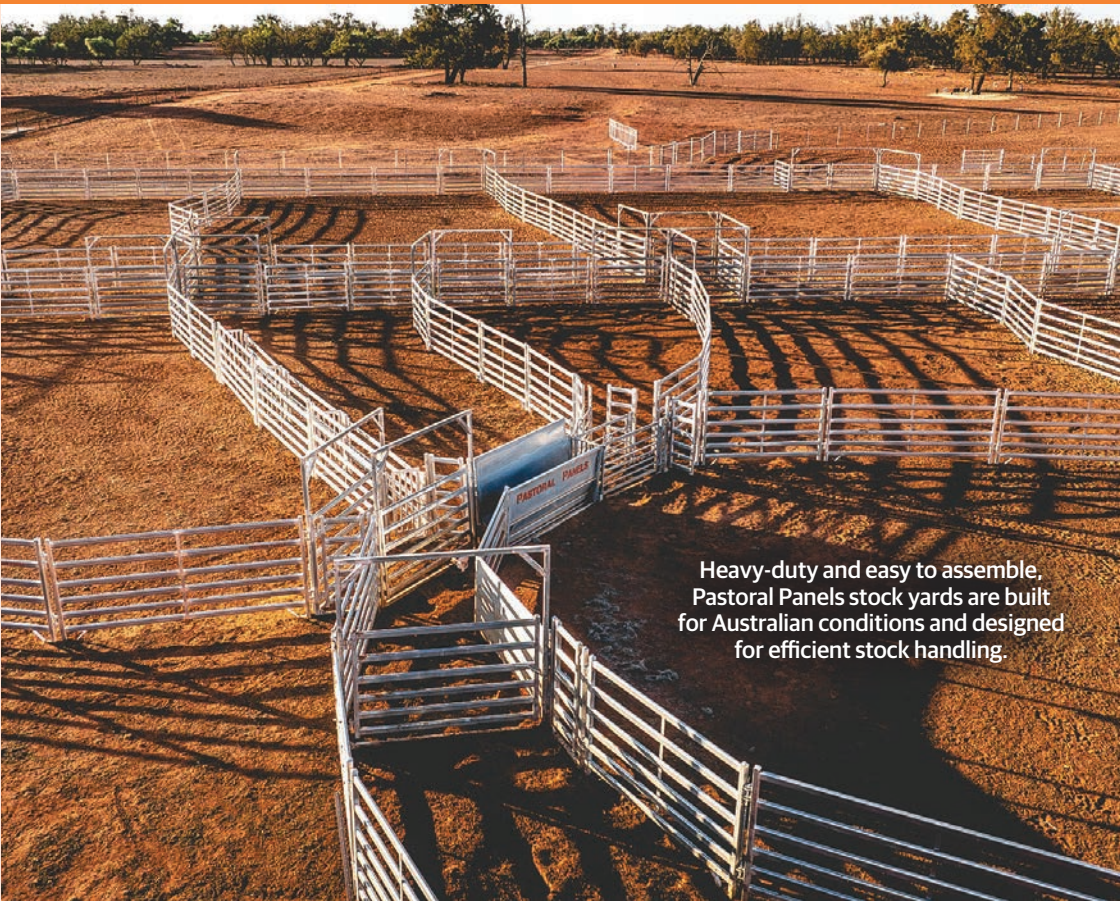

Made to handle the harshest Australian conditions, Pastoral Panels uses only heavy-duty materials proven to last.

Whether you're setting up a new yard or upgrading an existing site, the company offers flexible solutions and custom layouts to suit your needs.

Products can be easily combined to create a configuration that works for your property and your livestock. From seamless assembly to practical design, every element is made with the end user in mind.

That's why farmers across regional Australia continue to trust Pastoral Panels for reliable, cost-effective equipment that stands the test of time.

A safe pair of hands on the farm

Advertising promotion

SAFework SA is on a mission to empower farmers to improve safety and reduce the number of workplace deaths and serious injuries in agriculture.

Agriculture is vital to South Australia's economy, employing more than 30,000 people — around three per cent of the state's workforce.

Yet, the industry remains significantly over-represented when it comes to workplace fatalities.

In 2024-25, there were six deaths in agriculture, accounting for more than 20 per cent of all workplace fatalities in the state that financial year.

Agriculture is one of six priority industries identified by SafeWork SA for 2025-26, alongside construction, manufacturing, transport, forestry and health care.

SafeWork SA is soon to launch a 12-month farm safety campaign aimed at reducing deaths and injuries in agriculture while ensuring compliance with WHS laws.

Advisers Jason Rose and Katie Geszner are available for free on-farm visits to help farmers improve safety.

Jason Rose, who grew up on a Yorke Peninsula property and has more than 25 years of farm experience, says the campaign's focus is on helping farmers get up to speed and making workplaces safer for farmers, workers and their families.

Jason and Katie will be at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days on all three days at the SafeWork SA stand in the PIRSA tent at Site 752 Paskeville Road.

Farmers are encouraged to stop by with questions, or simply to say hello.

They will also host a farm safety presentation in the Guest Speaker Centre at 4pm on Tuesday, September 30.

SafeWork SA advisers Katie Geszner and Jason Rose will be in the PIRSA tent at the Field Days, helping farmers take practical steps to make their workplaces safer.

Soil carbon: building resilience and returns on farm

Advertising promotion

FOR farmers across Australia, soil carbon is proving to be a game-changer, delivering healthier soils, stronger crops and a valuable new source of income.

Kaniva mixed farmer Geoff Vivian recently built 3870 tonnes of soil carbon in just 18 months. His project generated more than $369,000 worth of credits, enough to cover several years of his soil carbon program.

For Geoff, the credits weren't just a financial bonus. They gave him the confidence to keep investing in biology-led inputs and provided proof his soils were improving while creating a financial buffer for the future.

Timing is critical. Geoff notes that having carbon credits in the bank creates a backup income stream that can help smooth out the tough years, such as during drought. Instead of relying solely on grain or livestock prices, soil carbon offers another string to the bow—directly tied to healthier, more productive soils.

Other farmers are also seeing results. Ian Clarke in Western Australia became the first in his state to be issued soil carbon credits, while Victorian grower Luke Felmingham has already recorded outstanding gains that strengthened his soils and positioned his farm for future income.

The lesson is clear: small, incremental changes with the right tools make a

Bishop Building the team behind new YPFD complex and function venue

Advertising promotion

BISHOP Building is a family-owned South Australian construction company with a dedicated team of builders, project managers and tradespeople who pride themselves on delivering high-quality outcomes.

The business specialises in residential builds and small to medium commercial projects, working with renowned architects as well as offering a design-and-construct service.

With ISO certification and a strong track record across the state, Bishop Building has completed a number of landmark projects that reflect both craftsmanship and innovation.

The company's involvement in the new office and function venue complex at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days site grew from an earlier project, The Barns of Freeling.

That development included a stone barn converted into a function centre, another stone barn converted into accommodation suites, and three new grain silos converted into unique accommodation — the first project of its kind in South Australia.

The YPFD committee toured the Freeling site to see what Bishop Building was achieving and how it could be applied locally, and the idea for the YPFD complex developed from there.

The Freeling project was also Bishop Building's first experience working with silos.

Silos are a unique type of build, presenting challenges such as working with curved walls, managing noise and insulation, and creating practical, functional spaces within a circular footprint.

Another key aspect was collaborating closely with engineers to ensure the adapted silos met all modern building codes and safety requirements, without losing their original character.

Despite these complexities, silos offer a striking architectural statement and strong regional identity, demonstrating how rural structures can be reimagined into innovative and highly usable spaces.

Bishop Building is proud to have contributed to the YP Field Days development and looks forward to seeing the complex serve the region for years to come.

New and returning demonstrations showcased

AS WELL as regular favourites, this year's Yorke Peninsula Field Days will showcase several new demonstrations designed to appeal to all ages.

Demonstration coordinator Paul Browning said he was excited about what's planned for 2025.

"This year, Simon Huntington from Huntington Engineering is bringing his 1909 Fowler steam tractor to the field days for the first time," Paul said.

"He will be operating his tractor at 2.30pm each day, sponsored by Larwoods Ag Services."

The Antique Caterpillar Machinery Owners Club Chapter 30, based in Milang, will also return and take part in the tractor pull.

Other returning favourites include the Xtreme Drones, which were a hit at the last field days, and the popular tractor pulls, run by the Mundoorra Progress Association. The tractor pulls will begin at 1.30pm each day, supported by Hunts Fuel and Impact Fertilisers.

"Some extra demonstrations we will have include the Murray Allen Wool and Sheep Pavilion, which will feature daily shearing demonstrations.

"AW Vater & Co will also have crop trials available to inspect on the site's southern side."

Rare steam traction engine to feature

Journalist: Austinn Lane

A RARE 1909 steam traction engine will be on display in the demonstration area at the 2025 Yorke Peninsula Field Days, thanks to owner and restorer Simon Huntington.

Based in Mount Compass, he is believed to be the sixth owner of the historical engine, originally owned by the Wills Brothers in Werribee, Victoria.

"I purchased it in 2021, around my 50th birthday, and immediately spent three months working on the engine," Simon said.

The engine is a Fowler class B5 with a B6 boiler and operates at a boiler pressure of 140psi. It is powered by heat from a wood fire and features a two-speed gearbox, reaching a top speed of five kilometres per hour.

Simon estimates the engine is about 90 per cent original; to prepare it, he stripped it down to the boiler for inspection, repainted it, and did additional repairs in June 2021.

"About 12 months ago, I was approached by Kelvin Stringer about the possibility of bringing it down to the Yorke Peninsula Field Days in 2025, which I thought was a great idea," he said.

"This year at the Price tractor pull, I talked to some committee members and we got things organised, which was really good.

"All this isn't possible without the support of the YP Field Days committee.

"Thank you also to Peter Faint, Wallace Jolly and John Smart for their encouragement and help restoring the engine."

The engine will be on display each day of the field days near the tractor pull area.

The 1909 steam traction engine, owned by Simon Huntington, is set to feature at this year's edition of the YP Field Days.

Take a free tram ride

IF THE sheer size of the Yorke Peninsula Field Days feels a little daunting, visitors can take a break and hop aboard a free road tram as it circulates the Paskeville site.

With more than 500 exhibitors spread across 30 hectares, the tram makes it easy to get around. It can carry up to 15 passengers at a time and will pick up and drop throughout the day.

The tram and its wagon are owned by the Moonta branch of the National Trust of South Australia and driven by dedicated volunteers.

The branch will also host a stand in the Grant Pavilion, selling souvenirs from the Moonta Mines Museum alongside old-fashioned treats from the Moonta Old Sweet Shop.

The Moonta National Trust road trams will run at regular intervals every day of the field days, so why not enjoy a ride, for free?

This tram, owned by the Moonta branch of the National Trust of South Australia, will transport people around the huge YP Field Days site.

Tractor pull returns for round three

Journalist: Austinn Lane

BACK for the third consecutive YP Field Days, the tractor pull — run by the Mundoorra Progress Association — will once again be a highlight.

The event will run daily from 1.30pm, with at least 15 tractors confirmed for the demonstration.

The event is coordinated by Mundoorra Progress Association member Kelvin Stringer, who designed and built the sled himself.

"It can be a pain to get the sled from place to place — I need to hire a semitrailer to get it to each event," he said.

"But it is worth it to see the interest from people all around the field days site who want to see the tractors in action."

Mr Stringer built the sled in 2019 to support the inaugural Mundoorra tractor pull (held in 2022) and tested it at the 2021 field days.

"I actually damaged the chain by stretching it, so I went home after the field days and built a stronger chain for the sled," he said.

Joining the demonstration again this year is the Antique Caterpillar Machinery Owners Club Chapter 30, based in Milang. The group, with members from across South Australia, has been part of the field days since its inception.

Bringing between six and eight tractors each year, ACMOC members travel from far and wide to take part.

"It is a longer trip for us and it essentially takes four days out of our working weeks, so sometimes it can be hard for us to get numbers to come along," member Trevor Scott said.

"It is good this year — we have tractors more than 100 years old coming along. I think the most recently built one is 1963, which I will bring."

Mr Scott said the tractor pull demonstration is both impressive and educational.

"The way it works is the sled has a skid pan at the front and wheels at the back. As the moving weights go from the wheels to the skid pan, the tractor is put under more load.

"People get to see these tractors in action at the field days, which is really awesome."

He also acknowledged the support of sponsor Hunts Fuel.

Local Blacksmiths and Lost Skills Association thriving

Journalist: Austinn Lane

Yorke Peninsula Blacksmiths and Lost Skills Association member Clayton Penley demonstrates blacksmithing at a recent event.

SINCE its inception in 2023, the Yorke Peninsula Blacksmiths and Lost Skills Association has grown into a thriving community group.

Based in Minlaton, in a heritage building at the town oval, the association has around 25 members who gather each Saturday morning.

"We also get lots of visitors stopping by to see what we're up to, which is great and really spreads the word of what we do down here," member Doug Carruthers said.

The group regularly gives demonstrations for local organisations, including schools and community clubs, with 16 groups hosted so far.

After making their debut as an association at the 2023 Yorke Peninsula Field Days, the blacksmiths are returning in 2025. Mr Carruthers has been part of the field days since 2019.

"I used to come down and demonstrate before we formed the club, so it was good to have that interest in the area already established," he said.

At the 2025 field days, visitors will be able to watch live blacksmithing demonstrations and try their hand at making items ranging from door handles and fire pokers to toasting forks and other, more complex, creations.

"With blacksmithing, you can make a million different things — it is endless what you can create," Mr Carruthers said.

"We will have plenty of items for sale too, which is always popular at Paskeville and a great way to display what we can make."

Beyond blacksmithing, the association also showcases traditional skills including wool spinning, lace making, weaving, basket making and rope making.

"We have recently restored the original town baker's cart, which, if I say so myself, looks awesome," Mr Carruthers said.

The Yorke Peninsula Blacksmiths and Lost Skills Association will be at Site 459 South Hummocks Road.

Treasure trove of vintage machinery and vehicles

Journalist: Michelle Daw

LOVERS of vintage engines and work vehicles will be in their element at the YP Field Days.

The Malv Haynes Vintage Machinery Centre will feature more than 40 exhibits, from a Petter two-stroke petrol and kerosene engine manufactured in 1915, to a steam locomotive and wagons.

Vehicles will range from a 1928 Singer Junior delivery van to a 1971 Leyland 238A truck.

Other exhibits will include a 1953 Corgi motorcycle, small model Sterling engines and a 1950 Southern Cross diesel engine and various water pumps, generators, ploughs and winnowers.

A special attraction this year will be a steam traction engine, built from a kit over the past 20 years by Dean Manderson, of the Clare Valley. Dean will drive the tractors, with wagons attached, around the field days site and some lucky children will be able to take a ride.

Convener of the display, John Haynes, is vice-president of the Copper Coast Region Old Machinery and Engineering Club, which operates the miniature train at the Farm Shed Museum in Kadina.

Club members will display static engines, and miniature and model trains at the field days.

Other groups involved in the display will include the Northern Automotive Restoration Club from the Mid North, the Gawler Machinery Restorers Club and Maitland Auto Preservation Society, along with the Clare Valley Model Engineers, who will bring their miniature steam train to Paskeville.

John is a third-generation farmer from the Paskeville area. He inherited his love of machinery from his father, Malv Haynes, who coordinated the vintage machinery display at the field days for 30 years.

The display was named after him in 2021 and Malv stepped down from the role after the 2023 event.

"Dad could fix anything and keep it going with a bit of baling twine, some fencing wire and some string," John said.

The vintage machinery display always drew good crowds and was a lot of nostalgia for the days when machinery and vehicles were primarily mechanical, rather than electronic, and owners could do their own repairs and maintenance, he said. "Anything that makes noise and smoke and steam does attract people."

"Some of the machinery we will have on display is more than 100 years old and is still running fine."

This 1956 International ASC 160 truck, owned by Malcolm McPherson, of Kadina, will feature at the Malv Haynes Vintage Machinery Centre. Inset: John Haynes will exhibit this Southern Cross YB 4hp diesel engine, originally used to drive a saw bench, at the Malv Haynes Vintage Machinery Centre, where it will demonstrate pumping water.

Bentleys having a wheely good time at Paskeville

Advertising promotion

UP FOR some fun? Head to Site 638, Cunliffe Road at the field days and spin the Bentleys Big, Not-So-Beautiful Wheel — where every spin wins a prize.

Debuting in 2023, the wheel has since clocked up hundreds of spins at field days across rural SA. Along the way, prizes have included $50 RM Williams vouchers, a $500 cash card, and a $1000 consultation, with plenty of trucker caps and stubby holders making their way into the hands of participants.

After countless trips in and out of utes, the wheel now looks like it's worked harder than a rotary tiller.

Bentleys partner and agribusiness specialist Tim Siebert says the wear and tear only adds character.

"We thought about giving it a facelift, but it's not broken — so we'll keep it around a bit longer," he says.

"The challenge now is how many more field days it lasts."

For Bentleys, the wheel is more than fun — it's a conversation starter.

"It's led to discussions with farmers and regional businesses where we've listened, given specialist advice, and helped them," Tim says.

"That's what we're here for." Proudly South Australian and independently owned for more than 40 years, Bentleys SA/NT is an integrated advisory, accounting and audit firm supporting individuals and businesses at every stage — from start-up through to succession.

At the field days, Bentleys is sharing a site with Grain Producers, Rural Business Support, Regional Investment Corporation, Mellor Olsson, Purvis Agrifinance, National Heavy Vehicle Regulator and Ag Ex Alliance.

See them at Site 638 Cunliffe Road, or contact the team at advice@adel.bentleys.com.au.

DEPARTMENT of Primary Industries and Regions SA will showcase its wide range of services, programs and initiatives at the field days.

Experts will provide information and advice on biosecurity, resilience and recovery programs, fisheries, animal health and more.

PIRSA's Drought Resilience and Recovery team, alongside Family and Business Mentors, will share resources to help farmers manage the impacts of drought.

The fisheries team will promote the updated recreational fishing app and provide the latest rules, regulations and resources. Fishcare volunteers and fisheries officers will also answer complex questions, including about the ongoing algal bloom.

The Grains Farm Biosecurity Program will offer free merchandise and advice, while Animal Health staff and NLIS advisors will answer questions on livestock health and electronic eID ear tags.

PIRSA's Soils team will be on hand to discuss soil acidity and liming practices.

Rural Aid will share information about its support for farmers impacted by natural disasters. This includes financial assistance, wellbeing services, fodder distribution and free, confidential counselling. Counsellors meet with farmers where they feel most comfortable – on farm, in town or over the phone.

Australian Wool Innovation's Extension SA team will share resources to help woolgrowers build knowledge and skills, while AgCommunicators and the Ag Career Start Program will showcase pathways to careers in agriculture, horticulture and fisheries.

Varroa Development Officers will provide updates and guidance on best practice management techniques for beekeepers.

Visitors to PIRSA at Site 752 Paskeville Road can enter a free draw to win local produce valued at $300.

Building confident, capable young women

Advertising promotion

BOARDING at Loreto College Marryatville offers girls from South Australia's regions a nurturing and empowering environment, just minutes from the heart of Adelaide.

At Karrawood House, the college's dedicated boarding facility, students from country communities are supported to grow into confident, independent young women.

Senior director of boarding and strategic projects, Jane Grech, says the transition to boarding school can be life changing.

"We understand that sending a child away to school is a big decision for families," Ms Grech says.

"That's why we focus on building strong relationships, maintaining open communication and creating a sense of home.

"Our boarders aren't just students — they're part of a supportive community."

More than boarding: a place to thrive

Karrawood House is more than a place to sleep and study. It offers a vibrant, inclusive

Loreto boarders Sienna, Maisie, Madeleine, Kate, Meg, Nellie and Daisy share a moment of connection and friendship at Loreto Marryatville, a place where they learn, grow and belong.

community that values connection, wellbeing and personal growth. Boarders benefit from modern facilities, structured study support and a rich co-curricular life that includes sports, performing arts and service learning.

"We want every girl to feel known and supported," Ms Grech says.

"Whether it's helping with homework, offering a listening ear, or celebrating birthdays, the small things really matter."

Boarders are encouraged to explore all that city life offers — regular outings include trips to the cinema, cultural festivals, sporting events and the Royal Adelaide Show.

"These experiences help the girls build confidence and friendships while enjoying a new environment," Ms Grech explains.

"It's about creating memories, growing independence, and learning to navigate the world with resilience."

Honouring regional roots

Many Loreto boarders come from towns such as Alford, Ardrossan, Arthurlton, Koolywurtie, Maitland and Yorketown, bringing, bringing with them a strong sense of community and connection to country.

The boarding program honours this regional heritage by fostering leadership, responsibility and a deep commitment to others.

"Country girls are capable and grounded," Ms Grech says.

"We're here to help them step confidently into the next chapter of their lives."

Families are encouraged to book a visit and see firsthand how Loreto College is supporting the next generation of South Australian leaders.

Goodies galore!

St Mary MacKillop School, Wallaroo, students Trae Wellgreen and Lachlan Donnell hold bags students designed to pick up goodies on the children's track at the 2023 YP Field Days.

IF YOU are bringing the kids to the YP Field Days, the Greens Plains Children's Track is the perfect way to discover family-friendly exhibitors while enjoying a day of fun, learning, and exploration.

This year's track blends popular favourites with exciting new participants, offering fresh experiences for returning visitors.

You'll find a strong focus on agriculture and community connections, plus valued sponsors and exhibitors who've been part of the track since it began in 2021.

Children can collect exclusive giveaways — from cool keepsakes to tasty treats — at each stop, while engaging with exhibitors, exploring their sites and discovering something new at every turn.

The track is aimed at children under 12, but everyone is welcome.

Track founder Rachael Ayles says there will be 16 exhibitors this year, including the SES, SA Police, Keep South Australia Beautiful and the Ag Learning Centre.

"Some of the feedback is that there's exhibitor stops that people wouldn't naturally go to that they've found really quite interesting and interactive and informative," she says.

"The Northern and Yorke Landscape Board has an amazing site, and last time they had all their native animals.

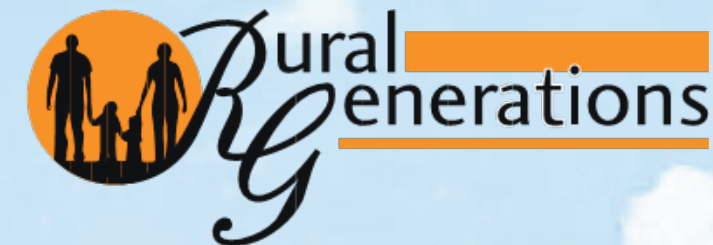

"SA Power Networks has got quite a good interactive site for kids as well."

The official starting point is the Information Centre (Office Road) where, for just $6 per child, you'll receive a special map to guide your adventure.

St Mary MacKillop School, Wallaroo, students have designed bags to store your goodies in.

The Greens Plains Children's Track runs every day of the Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

Don't miss the chance to give the kids a memorable day they'll talk about long after the event!

Planning today for tomorrow's legacy

Are you a farmer, landowner, or someone deeply connected to the rural way of life?

Do you want to preserve your legacy for the next generation?

At Rural Generations, we understand that succession planning is more than just paperwork — it's a journey. It's about protecting your life's work, supporting your family's future, and maintaining the land you've built your life around. Whether you're a farmer, grazier, pastoralist, or part of the broader agricultural industry, we're here to guide you.

Meet John White - Farmer, Financial

Guide, and Trusted Advisor

Based in South Australia's Mid North, John and Sandra White are the heart behind Rural Generations. With their son and family running the home farm, John brings a deep understanding of farming and rural life.

John's Background includes:

- Over 13 years in the financial planning industry
- Nearly 10 years with the SA Rural Financial Counselling Service
- A passion for helping farming families plan for the future — because he is one of them

Getting started — know your options before you make big decisions (and mistakes) — we help you clarify where you stand and what's possible.

This includes:

- Identify your needs — We help you map out what the future might look like, and involve your family from the start.
- Pre-retirement & the sustainability of the family farm — Including personalised, family-focused sessions to lay the foundation for a smooth transition into retirement.
- Succession planning — We help build tailored succession strategies including access to Pensions, Household Allowance and other available support.
- Business planning — From current operations to long-term sustainability — we work with your situation and future goals in mind.
- Pension and Aged Care guidance — We simplify the complex rules around Pensions, Aged Care costs, and their impact on your farm finances.
- Let's start the connection — While costs vary depending on your situation, the value of early planning can save significant stress, money, and also provides the possibility of an early pension and a possible reduction of the cost of Aged Care.

A few hours now can protect your family and legacy for years to come.

Boarding at Wilderness: a place to belong

Advertising promotion

THE Wilderness School Boarding House is a warm and welcoming second home, where girls in years 7 to 12 are supported to thrive – academically, socially and personally.

With more than 140 years of experience in girls' education, Wilderness offers a boarding experience that is grounded in tradition and designed for the future.

Located in Medindie, one of Adelaide's most beautiful suburbs, the boarding house blends heritage charm with modern comfort.

Refurbished common rooms, a new gym, music practice spaces and dedicated study areas create a calm, connected and inspiring environment.

Connection is at the heart of boarding life at Wilderness.

"Our boarders develop lifelong bonds," principal Belinda Arnfield says.

"These relationships enrich their lives and build their self-worth."

A dedicated mentoring program helps new boarders settle in, pairing each girl with a buddy or 'big sister' who provides friendship and guidance.

The activities program gives students access to some of Adelaide's best cultural and sporting experiences, including AFL at Adelaide Oval and the Adelaide Fringe Festival.

Head of boarding, Carolyn Matthews, brings extensive leadership experience and a deep commitment to developing the 'whole girl' – through strong relationships, resilience and a love of learning.

"Boarders at Wilderness are immersed in opportunity, tradition and life-changing relationships," she says. Boarding entrance scholarships are available for students entering years 7 to 11 who demonstrate academic achievement and a strong contribution to their school or community.

Uni Hub brings higher education closer to home

Advertising promotion

COPPER Coast University Centre is making university study more accessible for Yorke Peninsula residents, helping locals upskill, gain qualifications and pursue new careers without leaving the region.

Uni Hub Spencer Gulf and the Copper Coast Council established the centre through a strong partnership, sharing a commitment to create more opportunities for people to study closer to home.

The centre is part of Uni Hub's expanding network across regional South Australia, which includes University Centres in Port Lincoln, Port Augusta, Port Pirie and Kadina (Copper Coast).

Uni Hub also operates a study hub in Roxby Downs and outreach services in Wudinna, Minlaton, Whyalla and the Goyder region. Together, these centres support more than 500 students studying over 90 degrees with 22 different universities.

Students range from recent school leavers starting their first degree to professionals seeking career progression and mature-age learners ready for a fresh start.

Copper Coast University Centre manager Sue Barry says the centre gives students access to free academic support, high-speed internet, quiet study spaces and a supportive community.

"Many people think that going to uni means moving away, but that's not the only option," Sue says.

"At the Copper Coast University Centre, we support students to study online through a range of universities, without having to leave their hometown.

"Whether you're finishing school, returning to study or changing careers, we're here to help."

To learn more, stop by the Grant Pavilion at the field days, visit unihubsg.org or drop in to the Copper Coast University Centre in Kadina.

Innovation in crop nutrition and drone technology

Advertising promotion

SPRAYTEC will make its YP Field Days debut at Site 260 Wintanerta Road, in collaboration with Horizon Ag Tech.

A global leader in foliar nutrition and application technology, Spraytec delivers innovative, research-driven solutions that help Australian growers improve crop productivity, sustainability and profitability.

Its flagship products — Fulltec Max, TOPZinc Max and CUBO — are designed to maximise nutrient uptake, enhance plant health and optimise spray efficiency, while reducing input costs and environmental impact.

What sets Spraytec apart is its commitment to local research and development.

The company works closely with agronomists, growers and research institutions across Australia to rigorously test products under real-world conditions. Trials consistently demonstrate improved yields, faster plant response and enhanced herbicide efficacy, particularly in challenging environments.

Spraytec's approach is partnership-driven.

More than selling products, the company supports growers with tailored recommendations that align with their goals — whether boosting micronutrient delivery in cereals or improving herbicide uptake in fallow management.

This year, Spraytec is partnering with Horizon Ag Tech, a leader in agricultural drone solutions.

Horizon provides advanced spraying and mapping drones, along with expert consulting and training to help farmers harness aerial data for smarter decisions and greater efficiency.

Visitors to the YP Field Days can expect hands-on demos, expert advice and insights into how Spraytec and Horizon Ag Tech are working together to future-proof Australian agriculture.

One and All changes young lives under sail

The One and All under full sail — a proud symbol of South Australia's maritime heritage and a life-changing experience for young sailors.

Advertising promotion

BERTHED in Port Adelaide and sailing the length of South Australia's coast, the tall ship One and All is a floating classroom, a confidence builder and a community icon.

For over 38 years, this traditional brigantine has delivered youth development voyages that are as transformative as they are unforgettable.

Operated by Friends of the One and All Sailing Ship Inc. — a registered not-for-profit charity — the ship is crewed entirely by dedicated volunteers who give their time and skills to empower the next generation.

Each youth voyage offers participants a unique, hands-on experience at sea. From setting sails and climbing the rigging to steering at the helm, young people are immersed in teamwork, responsibility and resilience.

Many come aboard nervous or unsure — and leave with new friends, fresh confidence and life skills that stay with them long after the voyage ends.

The One and All sails into regional ports, joins community events and represents South Australia with pride — but its greatest impact is personal and lasting, one young sailor at a time.

As a community-supported vessel, the ship relies on sailing events, fundraising, grants and sponsorships to continue its work. Local support ensures more young people get the chance to experience this life-changing journey.

To find out more, donate or support a youth on board, visit www.oneandallship.com.au.

Native plantings to create a cooler experience at YPFD

Advertising promotion

GOING forwards, the Yorke Peninsula Field Days site at Paskeville will be cooler and greener thanks to new native plantings.

More than 700 native trees and shrubs will be established this year and next, providing much-needed shade and shelter for attendees while also helping to control dust.

The YPFD organising committee has secured a $5000 Grassroots Grant from the Northern and Yorke Landscape Board to plant 500 native plants in 2026.

In the meantime, the NYLB team has established 200 native seedlings in the lead-up to this year's event, to start delivering benefits sooner.

As well as improving comfort for visitors, the plantings will create habitat corridors for native wildlife, act as shelterbelts for surrounding paddocks and serve as a living demonstration of best-practice planting design.

Visitors keen to learn more can stop by the NYLB stall at Site 668 Paskeville Road to explore how native vegetation supports farming systems through ecosystem services such as pollination, pest insect control, carbon sequestration, livestock and crop shade, and soil moisture retention.

Highlights at the stall will include live animal encounters with native creatures from Animals Anonymous, native plant giveaways and free seed bombs packed with local species.

New native plantings at the YP Field Days site will provide shade, shelter and long-term benefits for visitors, farmers and local wildlife.

Supporting access to justice across South Australia

Advertising promotion

WESTSIDE Community Lawyers is one of South Australia's Community Legal Centres, providing free legal assistance to clients in Adelaide's western suburbs, the Mid North, the outback and across Yorke Peninsula.

For 50-plus years, WestSide Community Lawyers has remained committed to its founding vision: ensuring just and equitable access to legal advice for all members of the community.

The organisation provides free legal advice and representation — subject to eligibility — in the areas of family law, criminal law and civil law. More information about these areas of law is available on the firm's website.

By offering free legal assistance, WestSide Community Lawyers aims to improve access to justice for individuals who cannot afford private legal representation and who might otherwise suffer injustice.

The organisation also delivers legal education and community support to empower people to take control of their legal matters and help prevent issues from arising in the future.

With offices in Port Adelaide and Port Pirie, WestSide's dedicated team works tirelessly to meet the needs of clients. The team also regularly travels to the Mid North and the outback to deliver free legal advice clinics.

WestSide Community Lawyers looks forward to connecting with attendees at the 2025 Yorke Peninsula Field Days.

To learn more or to book an appointment, visit www.westsidelawyers.com.au or call (08) 8340 9009.

Sophia Moustakos, Daniela Popovic and Amelia Goldring from WestSide Community Lawyers will be at the YP Field Days to provide information about free legal services and how they support communities across regional South Australia.

MGA Insurance: built on local insight and lasting relationships

Advertising promotion

BORN from a simple idea in 1975, MGA Insurance has grown into one of Australia's top insurance brokerages, with offices across the country and one in Asia.

Its story has been one of steady, deliberate growth. Much like a crop growing through the seasons, or the gradual expansion of a family farming business, MGA's rise has been fuelled by passion, determination and diversification.

As well as servicing rural clients' needs, the South Australian-based insurer now covers everything from high-rise residential strata to home insurance and corporate aviation.

Fresh out on his own as a broker in 1975, John George saw a need. To him, big insurers felt distant, almost impersonal. So, he asked himself: What if there was a company that truly understood the local market, offered a personal touch, and genuinely looked out for its clients?

That question sparked the beginning of MGA Insurance Group, in a small office, fuelled by ambition and a strong belief in community.

John recalls the early days as a blur of hard work, long hours, countless phone calls and building relationships one client at a time.

Every handshake and every policy written felt like laying another brick in MGA's foundation.

The first two decades were marked by joint ventures and mergers. The next three saw consistent growth.

During the 1990s alone, 10 new branches were opened, including at Ceduna, Port Lincoln, Tumby Bay, Cummins, Booleroo Centre, Port Pirie, Naracoorte and Mount Gambier.

Another nine branches were added in the 2000s, and a further 18 from 2010 to 2020.

Even through this significant growth, MGA has remained true to its roots — committed to personal service and local understanding. It has fostered a culture where staff and clients are like family.

"Fifty years on, it's humbling to see what MGA has become," John says.

"From that single office, we've grown into one of Australia's largest privately owned insurance broking groups.

"It wasn't always easy, of course. The industry has seen its share of changes and challenges, but our core values have guided us through every storm.

"It's been an incredible journey, built on the hard work of so many, and I'm immensely proud of what we've achieved."

MGA managing director Paul George, and MGA executive chairman John George OAM reflect on nearly 50 years of family-led growth and service across Australia.

Primary Sales marks 40 years supporting growers

Advertising promotion

FOUNDED in 1985, Primary Sales Australia is this year celebrating four decades of supporting Australian growers.

The PSA team will be at the YP Field Days with One Shot Harvest, focusing on optimising header setup, cutting crop waste and boosting productivity.

To mark 40 years of harvest innovation, PSA is offering special field days pricing on the popular Bushel Plus SmartPan System, with the option for the team to visit during harvest and conduct on-farm testing.

This advanced, field-tested system measures grain loss quickly, accurately and safely, and is operated remotely.

For the PSA team, being out in the paddock with growers is a core value. More time is spent on the road than behind a desk, ensuring firsthand insights drive product improvements and deliver practical, high-performance solutions where growers need them most.

Brothers Jack and Sam Gall from northeast Victoria have two Bushel Plus SmartPan Systems in action.

Jack shared his experience: "Bushel Plus — love it. It's very good; it's been a cheap asset to buy. We transfer it between our different headers. We bought one each so we can test a couple of machines on the go."

To further reduce grain loss, PSA recommends switching from OEM knife guards to the Adapt-a-Gap system. These knife guards feature easily interchangeable plastic crop fingers — recognisable by their signature pink and blue colours — available in varying angles and gap widths. This unique design significantly reduces front-end losses.

Visit Primary Sales Australia at Site 533 Boors Plains Road.

The Primary Sales Australia team comes together to celebrate 40 years of supporting growers with innovation, service and trusted solutions.

Bruce Rock Engineering: built in Australia, for Australia

Advertising promotion

BRUCE Rock Engineering is one of Australia's leading designers and manufacturers of road transport equipment, delivering high-performance trailer solutions to the agricultural, mining, construction and freight sectors.

Proudly family-owned and operated, BRE has built a reputation over four decades for innovation, reliability and quality.

Founded in 1980 by Mike and Gay Verhoogt in the wheatbelt town of Bruce Rock, Western Australia, BRE began with just one employee and a 300 square metre workshop.

Today, led by the Verhoogt brothers, the company employs more than 360 staff across four state-of-the-art facilities, with its expanded Bruce Rock site still the heart of operations.

The head office now includes advanced fabrication workshops, blast and paint booths, fit-out areas, a tyre service centre and administrative offices.

BRE's product range is as diverse as the industries it serves.

The company designs and manufactures tipplers, road trains, flat tops, drop decks, skels, dollies, refrigerated and dry vans, along with Performance Based Standards solutions — all built in WA to withstand the toughest Australian conditions.

A standout in BRE's agricultural range is the BulkEX grain trailer.

Designed for grain, fertiliser and other lightweight bulk products, it features a one-piece body for added strength and low tare weight.

Its curved bowl ensures efficient cleanout and maximum payload, reducing downtime in the field.

BRE also produces robust belly dumpers, engineered for smooth discharge and long service life — making them a trusted choice for bulk haulage.

Behind every BRE trailer is a culture of continuous improvement.

The company's integrated processes mean full control over design, fabrication and delivery, ensuring each product meets exacting standards and can be tailored to operator needs to deliver consistent results that customers across Australia trust.

From its country town roots to a national footprint, BRE continues to deliver exceptional transport solutions — Australian-made and built to perform.

Engineered for Australian conditions — Bruce Rock Engineering trailers deliver strength, reliability and efficiency in every haul.

Two local Christian schools with one shared vision

Advertising promotion

HARVEST Christian College in Kadina and Mid North Christian College in Port Pirie share a common goal: to provide quality, Christ-centred education that nurtures the whole child — academically, spiritually, socially and emotionally.

At Harvest Christian College, a member of the Tyndale Group of Christian Schools, students from Foundation to Year 12 are encouraged to discover their God-given gifts and talents in a caring, community environment.

Facilities include a modern sports stadium, an AFL-sized football oval, state-of-the-art science labs and a well-equipped Agriculture Department with a focus on sheep, agronomy and technology.

Dedicated bus routes service the Copper Coast, Yorke Peninsula and Port Broughton regions.

Mid North Christian College is known for its engaging, challenging and authentic learning experiences through a biblical worldview.

Students develop curiosity, creativity, collaboration and valuable life skills, alongside a deep faith in God.

A unique highlight is the Aviation Program, where students can experience aviation first-hand — a rare opportunity in a regional setting.

Bus routes connect families from throughout the Mid North region.

Both schools partner closely with families and the community, offering opportunities for students to excel in academics, sport, agriculture, the arts and more.

Whether on the sports field, in the science lab, tending livestock or even in the air, students are equipped for a future of hope, meaning and purpose.

Meet your local Christian schools in person at this year's Yorke Peninsula Field Days in the Oster Pavilion.

We look forward to meeting families, answering your questions and sharing how a Christ-centred education can help your child grow, flourish and find their purpose.

Harvest smarter with the Midwest advantage

Discover Midwest Fabrication's Australian-built platforms transforming harvest efficiency across the country.

Advertising promotion

MIDWEST Fabrication has been setting the benchmark in harvesting innovation for almost 30 years, delivering Australian-made platforms built to withstand the toughest real-world conditions.

At this year's YP Field Days, the Midwest team will be on hand at Site 110 Bawden West Road to discuss the range, answer questions and help growers prepare for a more efficient harvest.

Whether it's wheat near Kadina, canola around Maitland or rotations into barley and lentils, Midwest platforms are engineered to do more with less. Less wear. Less fuel. Less downtime.

In return, growers benefit from improved control, smoother crop flow and stronger returns across every hectare.

Every Midwest platform is designed, fabricated and assembled in Australia, ensuring faster lead times, reliable local parts and genuine after-sales support.

Two flagship platforms lead the range.

The Legacy platform, built for John Deere X9, 10 and 11 Series combines, is designed for smooth crop flow, reduced loss and lower running costs.

The Durus platform, available in widths up to 60 feet and compatible with all major combine brands, delivers maximum efficiency with fewer moving parts.

With a national dealer network, strong resale value and integrated accessories, Midwest platforms continue to help Australian growers harvest smarter, not harder.

Visit the Midwest team at the field days, go to midwest.net.au, or call (07) 4662 2137 to speak with the team.

Planning for the future: succession, retirement and what comes next

Advertising promotion

FOR many regional families and business owners, planning for the future means more than just numbers on a page — it's about protecting what you've built, looking after your family, and leaving a legacy that lasts.

That's where RSM's local experts come in. Brad Loftus, Partner in Business Advisory, works closely with business owners and farmers navigating succession planning and transition.

"Succession can be complex," Brad says.

"It's about family, timing, and making sure the business or farm keeps running smoothly into the next generation.

"Getting the right structure in place early makes all the difference."

Alongside him, David McArthur, Partner in RSM Financial Services, develops tax efficient strategy around superannuation and off-farm investments to prepare for retirement and build intergenerational wealth.

"Financial planning and wealth management goes hand in hand with succession," David explains. "By focusing on superannuation and off-farm wealth creation strategies, we create tailored solutions to achieve tax efficient retirement planning, that will align comfortably with your succession objectives."

With 32 offices in Australia, RSM brings together business advisory and financial planning expertise to support regional Australians through life's big transitions. The advice is practical and personalised. Visit the RSM Adelaide page to talk about your future.

Telstra at YP Field Days: Helping regional Australia stay connected

Advertising promotion

EVERY two years, the Yorke Peninsula Field Days provide a great chance to connect with the people and communities who power regional Australia.

In 2025, Telstra is proud to return — ready to meet locals face-to-face, answer questions, and help visitors get the most from their connectivity.

Whether it's upgrading a mobile, improving home internet, or making sure you're on the right plan, the Telstra team is here to help.

This year, there's a real buzz around a game-changing innovation: Telstra Satellite Messaging.

Launched in June, it's Australia's first satellite-to-mobile SMS service, created in partnership with SpaceX's Starlink Direct to Cell network.

It allows eligible Telstra customers to send and receive SMS when outside regular mobile coverage — so long as they're outdoors, have a clear view of the sky, and use a compatible handset.

For farmers, travellers and remote workers, coverage can mean more than convenience — it's safety.

From the back paddock to the outback, Telstra Satellite Messaging adds an extra layer of peace of mind.

It's not a replacement for mobile coverage, but it's a smart addition that helps bridge the gaps across Australia's wide-open spaces.

The Telstra team will also be on hand to walk you through other services, including Telstra Plus rewards, coverage solutions, plan health checks, and support for small business.

They'll be happy to help you compare devices, answer billing questions, and show you how to get the most out of your tech.

Even if you just want to drop in for a chat, you'll find friendly faces and practical advice at the Telstra site — Site 552, corner Office and South Hummocks roads.

Reshaping agricultural education as Westminster

Westminster head of agriculture Andrew Malcolm, with agriculture teacher Isabelle Linde, and students Ebony and Bradley.

Advertising promotion

WESTMINSTER School's Sturt Grove Farm continues to evolve as a centre for innovative, hands-on agricultural education.

Located on 4.5 hectares at the school's Marion campus, the farm now features the Thomas Foods International Centre for Agriculture — an industry-aligned learning facility supporting viticulture, aquaculture, livestock handling and food technology.

The redeveloped farm reflects the changing face of agriculture and its growing integration with science, technology and environmental management. It positions agriculture as a core subject relevant to all students, not just those from farming backgrounds.

Sturt Grove Farm was originally restructured in 1972 under the leadership of the late Ian Young, Westminster's then head of agriculture. His vision was to create a practical teaching space that could engage students across a diverse range of agricultural disciplines — from rare sheep and meat birds to viticulture and aquaculture.

In tribute to his legacy, the main road through the farm is now named Ian Young's Way, symbolising his belief in education as a pathway to lifelong learning. Former students recall Ian's ability to open their eyes to new possibilities and help them find their place beyond the mainstream.

Current head of agriculture and old scholar, Andrew Malcom, is a product of this legacy. As a former student who had no farming background, Andy believes the farm's outstanding facilities help normalise agriculture in the curriculum. He sees the subject as vital to understanding the systems that support daily life — and as a gateway to diverse careers in a fast-evolving industry.

Situated on Kaurna land beside the Warripari (Sturt River), Sturt Grove is first recorded in 1838 as a 20-acre property managed by John Bradford for the South Australian Company.

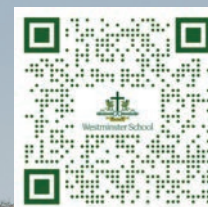

Westminster School took ownership in 1966. Agriculture has remained central to learning at the school ever since.

Westminster School representatives will be in the Bowley Pavilion during the field days.

Westminster School

Where your adventure begins.

At Westminster, we believe that every child's inherent sense of adventure is the best learning tool they have – and boarding wholeheartedly fosters that sense of adventure.

A home away from home, Westminster has steadily grown to become one of South Australia's largest co-educational Year 7 – 12 boarding schools, thanks to its dedicated team of experienced, professional and supportive staff and tutors, contemporary and expansive grounds and facilities, and a welcoming 'family' atmosphere.

With a philosophy of educating students, not subjects, Westminster teaches students to be curious and find the adventure in their learning. Facilitating this is our newly expanded Sturt Grove Farm. Students benefit from unmatched hands-on experience, with agriculture, aquaculture and viticulture facilities including outdoor learning spaces, wet labs, shearing facilities, washdown zones, commercial kitchen, farm shop and more.

Build safer, smarter fertiliser storage on-farm

Advertising promotion

ON-FARM fertiliser sheds are becoming essential infrastructure for cropping operations — boosting safety, efficiency and long-term profitability.

The shift to on-farm storage accelerated during the COVID-19 pandemic, when price spikes and unreliable deliveries revealed the risks of just-in-time supply. Since then, ongoing volatility — driven by global conflict and poor silo performance — has made secure, flexible fertiliser storage more important than ever.

In 2026, growers are looking to store smarter.

A well-designed Action Steel fertiliser shed gives you control, improves handling safety and offers more versatility than silos. These sheds save time at seeding and provide year-round value.

Craig Henderson of Darcra Farming says his new Action shed is already paying off.

“We can store around 9000 tonnes on-farm now,” he says.

“We’ve seen what happens to the price, so we’re trying to level out those prices.”

You don’t need to store at Craig’s scale to benefit. Action’s Standard Fertiliser Shed Range now includes 200t and 400t options — making safe, purpose-built storage more accessible for farms of all sizes.

These standard designs are a practical starting point. Action’s team works with you to refine every detail to suit your operation.

Jason Stone, building consultant at Action, says clearance height is key.

“The best height depends on how you load and unload the shed,” he explains.

He also highlights Action’s commitment to detail. “Footy coaches love one-percenters, and we do too,” he says. “Every fertiliser shed includes angled flashing from the concrete panels to the walls to prevent product escaping if overfilled.”

Looking to improve your on-farm storage?

Visit Action Steel at the Yorke Peninsula Field Days. Chat with the team about building safer, smarter infrastructure for your cropping program.

Action Steel’s standard fertiliser shed range includes options for 200, 400, 500, 1000 and 1500 tonnes of storage. Learn more about the designs at Site 610 Cunliffe West Road.
